Mine Pact Has Non-Union Coal Boycott Clause

Contract Signed Providing Wage Boost Of $2 Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veteran union boss John L. Lewis Wednesday wangled from major soft coal producers a new contract agreement providing for a tight marketing boycott on non-union produced coal.

The effect of the proviso—grudgingly accepted by operators and probably headed for a court test—would be to make non-union coal production almost impossibly difficult and unprofitable. Mines not under contract would probably have to sign or abandon the business to mines organized by Lewis' United Mineworkers Union.

The union has organized most of the bituminous industry, which is the major source of the nation's power supply. But about one-fifth of all coal production still comes from mines the UMW never has put under contract.

Other, previously reported terms of the labor contract signed Wednesday provide a $2-a-day pay boost for the 180,000 UMW miners, along with improved vacation allowances.

The miners will get a $1.20 raise Jan. 1 and 80 cents more on April 1, boosting their basic daily pay to $24.25. The two step increase means a pay hike of about 26 cents an hour. The contracts run a year or longer until terminated.

The 78-year-old Lewis called the boycott proviso a protective wage clause. He said it was designed to protect wage, royalty and other conditions the UMW has spent years in obtaining for miners. He said the clause would help make a sounder coal industry.

U.S. Satellite Plans Include 5-Ton "Moon"

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government Wednesday announced a far-reaching satellite launching program that may include a five-ton artificial moon—far bigger than any shot off by Russia so far.

The ambitious undertaking, dubbed "Project Discoverer," also calls for the launching of satellites carrying monkeys and mice as a giant step toward eventually shooting a man into orbit and returning him to earth.

The program was announced by Roy W. Johnson, director of the Defense Department's space agency. It will get under way at Vandenberg Air Force Base near Lampoc, Calif., in about 30 days. Further launchings will follow throughout the coming year at the rate of about one a month.

Johnson said the Atlas intercontinental missile, plus a "high energy" upper stage rocket now under development, would enable the United States to launch a five-ton payload.

Russia's Sputnik III satellite weighed 3,000 pounds. The heaviest U.S. satellite totaled about 38 pounds.

The first attempted launching will be made at the California base late this month or early next. The Air Force's 1,500-mile Thor intermediate range missile will be used to hurl a 1,300-pound satellite into space. This shot apparently will deal with the problem of re-entry into the atmosphere.

Johnson said that for the time being at least all West Coast launchings would be in orbits passing over the South and North Poles.

All previous U.S. satellite launchings from Cape Canaveral, Fla., have been on an east-to-west pattern.

Johnson explained the government did not want to fire rockets eastward from California over heavily populated areas. A "terrific weight penalty" would be imposed if the rockets were fired westward against the earth's rotation, he said.

Sputnik Rocket Believed Down

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Cautious scientists said Wednesday night that the enormous rocket which sent the Soviet Union's Sputnik III into orbit may have burned up in the earth's atmosphere.

Dr. John White, at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, said the evidence was purely negative. So far as known nobody saw the big tube, as long as a Pullman car, flaring in a final hot plunge through the earth's dense atmosphere. But even so, scientists doubted it was still in flight.

Absence of any reports whatsoever on the rocket after observations during the forenoon tended to support predictions that this would be the last day of the rocket's life. The empty metal tube, hurtling around the earth in revolutions of less than an hour and a half, had been dragged steadily lower by the pull of the earth's gravity.

Suit With Two Pairs Of Pants Proves Costly

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — John Wallace may never again buy a suit with two pairs of pants.

Outside, he discovered he had the wrong pair. His home and a second pair of pants—containing $700 withdrawn from a bank Tuesday—were destroyed by fire.

TWA, Striking Union Agree On Settlement

By The Associated Press

The 13-day strike of Machinists against Trans World Airlines was tentatively settled Wednesday, but other segments of the industry remained in a turmoil of labor disputes.

The 6,500 members of the International Assn. of Machinists still must ratify the TWA agreement, but the airline began calling back the 12,000 other employes it laid off during the walkout.

TWA set 12:01 a.m. Monday as the target for resuming its flights in the United States and abroad.

In Miami, negotiations between Eastern Air Lines and striking flight engineers appeared to be in a stalemate. Progress was reported, however, in negotiations with the Machinists, who also are striking against Eastern.

Eastern planes have been grounded for 10 days. EAL Vice President S. L. Shannon, in a letter to the strikers said Eastern "cannot sit idly by while your committee spurns our every effort to reach a fair and just solution."

A union spokesman said, "It's their turn to make an offer." At issue, in addition to wages, is the airline's insistence that flight engineers be qualified as pilots.

American Airlines, threatened by a strike of the Air Line Pilots Assn., has asked a federal court for a permanent injunction against a walkout. In the meantime American Airlines is continuing its flights.

There were no developments in a dispute between Pan American World Airways and the Transport Workers Union.

'Copter Crashes Into Potomac; 9 Rescued

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nine men were rescued Wednesday night after a large Navy helicopter apparently crashed on the Potomac River near here. The fate of a tenth man believed to be aboard was not immediately known.

The downed craft was described as a Sikorsky HR2-S, one of the largest helicopters used by the Navy and Marines.

The Defense Department said those aboard included four civilians and four crewmen.

The helicopter was attached to the service test division of the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent, and was on a routine flight from Patuxent to the Anacostia Naval Air Station here.

School Fire's Exact Cause Still Mystery

Church Officials Dispute Theories By Investigators

CHICAGO (UPI)—A top fire investigator charged Wednesday that rubbish at the foot of a stairwell and a lack of doors at its top spread the flaming horror which killed 87 children and three nuns in a matter of minutes at Our Lady of the Angeles School.

Church officials, however, clashed with theories by Chester Babcock of the National Fire Protection Assn. and the Chicago arson squad over the origins of the Monday holocaust which left heartache and grief in a West side neighborhood which may last for a generation.

The mystery of the fire deepened and some authorities feared it might never be solved.

Two Schools Of Thought

Forty-eight hours after the tragedy, there were two opposing schools of thought on what happened.

Babcock said an exhaustive examination of the two-story school convinced him that waste material had been allowed to accumulate at the bottom of the stairwell and the flames were sucked to the second floor because there were no doors at the second floor landing.

Babcock agreed with Police Sgt. Drew Brown, head of the arson squad, who hammered at the theory that the blaze started in stacks of paper beneath the stairwell. Brown said firemen had found papers stacked at least five inches deep under the stairwell. Police suspected the flames could have been touched off when a student flicked a forbidden cigaret into the containers of newspapers and examination papers.

Janitor's Story Challenged

Brown quoted an assistant school janitor, Mario Camerini, as saying rubbish sometimes accumulated so heavily at the stairwell base that he had to push it aside to get to the washroom.

Msgr. Joseph Cussen, pastor of Our Lady of the Angels Church, challenged the charge that "sloppy housekeeping" played a role in the disaster.

He said that as far as he knows there was no stack of papers underneath the stairwell. He said he and adjustors who toured the building with him believe the fire started on the first floor and spiralled up the stairwell to the second story.

Gen. De Gaulle Flies To Algeria

ALGIERS (UPI)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle flew into Algeria on Wednesday to begin a five-day mission and immediately made an extensive helicopter inspection tour over rebel-infested areas near the Tunisian frontier.

The premier's post-election visit was expected to bring a reshuffle of the Algerian high command as well as the first steps in his announced five-year plan for economic development of Algeria.

De Gaulle landed at the French air force base of Telergma, 24 miles west of Constantine, shortly after noon in an army transport plane. The aircraft was escorted by fighter planes on the final stretch of the flight from Paris.

In the company of Gen. Raoul Salan, commander-in-chief in Algeria, de Gaulle quickly took off in a helicopter to fly over rebel hideouts in the rugged, heavily-forested regions of Ain Kercha, Bou Nouara and Ain Beida in eastern Algeria.

Salan is expected to be replaced as military commander in Algeria by Gen. Maurice Challe and appointed to the now vacant post of inspector general of national defense.

Man With 30-Year Case Of Hiccups Dies

AMBRIDGE, Pa. (UPI) —Funeral services will be held Thursday for Victor Dionise, husky crane operator who puzzled doctors at famous clinics with hiccups that lasted 30 years.

Dionise died Tuesday of complications following an operation for an unrelated ailment. The 51-year-old native of Italy weighed 220-pounds and his plight was publicized widely.

He received remedies from well-wishers throughout the world but none of them worked.

Lew Ayres Loses Home To Fire

This was all that remained yesterday of the $50,000 home owned by actor Lew Ayres after an explosive brush fire roared through it during the night. Included in the loss were valuable paintings, a library of historic and religious volumes and a meteorological station he had built. The brush fire in the Malibu Beach, Calif., area has blackened more than 17,000 acres and destroyed an estimated 29 homes.

Soviets Reject Sneak Attack Warning Plan

GENEVA (UPI)—The United States Wednesday proposed a control system to prevent surprise attacks by ballistic missiles which Russia promptly rejected.

In another attempt to get the deadlocked conference on surprise attack moving forward, the United States, backed by its Western Allies, offered a detailed technical outline for an elaborate warning system. The system would apply to intercontinental and intermediate range land-based ballistic missiles.

U.S. experts who presented the plan said the system could alert an intended victim within minutes after a surprise missile attack was launched. They believed the system at least could double the present warning time for such an attack against the United States.

The Soviets, in turning down the proposal, called instead for a ban on nuclear weapons. They argued that such a ban was necessary before any plan for prevention of surprise attacks with ballistics missiles could be feasible.

Western delegates expected a more detailed Communist reply to the U.S. plan at a future session, but they were pessimistic about any change in the Soviet stand. The Communist side so far has rejected all Western proposals on purely technical issues and has tried to swing the conference to a discussion of political and disarmament questions.

At the parallel conference on a suspension of nuclear weapons tests, the United States and Britain pressed their efforts to get a firmer Soviet commitment on controls to police a ban on explosions.

The pace of the nuclear talks was described as slow and tedious. A communique issued after Wednesday's session said merely the delegates continued their discussions, begun Monday, on a test ban with built-in controls.

Colombian President Acts To Thwart Plot

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — President Alberto Lleras Camargo decreed modified martial law throughout Colombia Wednesday to thwart a reported coup against his government. Former dictator Gustavo Rojas Pinilla was arrested as the suspected ringleader of the plot.

The arrest came shortly after armored units and other military forces surrounded Rojas Pinilla's residence in the northern residential section of Bogota.

According to congressional sources, the plot was to break out in Bogota next Saturday with a series of terrorist acts.

Lleras Camargo, shortly after his inauguration last Aug. 7, lifted a state of siege which had prevailed in Colombia for nearly ten years because of political violence which amounted to virtual civil war.

Rojas Pinilla was forced to resign on May 10, 1957, by a nationwide popular movement against his four-year-old dictatorship.

50% Control Of Vast Brush Fire Claimed

MALIBU BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Firemen Wednesday claimed 50 per cent control of a brush fire that overran with explosive swiftness miles of home and ranch-dotted hills behind this resort area.

But, with winds expected to continue Wednesday night, they declined to predict when complete control is likely.

The big blaze had blackened more than 17,000 acres of brush, destroyed an estimated 29 homes and routed hundreds of families in 24 hours. There were more than 1,500 men fighting it along a 42-mile perimeter.

Much of the fire was burning over the same ground covered by blaze that charred 42,000 acres and ruined 99 homes two years ago.

Wind velocities dropped Wednesday to between 15 and 30 miles an hour enabling firemen to control 50 per cent of the perimeter of the huge blaze.

Continued winds in the 25 m.p.h. range were forecast for Wednesday night, with continued low humidity. Temperatures in the area Wednesday were in the high 80s.

The fire broke out Tuesday — arson is suspected—and lashed by hot desert winds up to 60 m.p.h. raced quickly from the inland slopes of the Santa Monica Mountains to the sea.

It cut a swath of ruin roughly five miles long and eight miles wide, charring ranchlands and roaring down half a dozen canyons lined with homes.

Flames reached brush only a quarter of a mile from the famed Malibu film colony, a strip of seaside homes where film figures dwell. But a massed array of firemen and pumper trucks checked the blaze at the coast highway before it could do damage.

Winds along the ocean were only around 15 m.p.h. Wednesday enabling firemen to check the flames along most of the perimeter. Temperatures were in the high 80s.

Syrian, Israeli Gunners Duel

JERUSALEM (AP) — Syrian and Israeli artillery exchanged heavy gunfire for an hour Wednesday in the pastoral hills of Galilee.

The big shooting was set off by an incident involving shepherds tending their livestock.

Israel reported one shepherd was shot dead and three Israeli settlers wounded. Israeli villagers were terrorized and damage to their property was reported.

A U.N. spokesman said the artillery duel ended at nightfall, 15 minutes after a U.N. demand for a cease-fire.

U.N. truce supervision organization observers are preparing a report.

A United Arab Republic army spokesman in Damascus said there were no Syrian casualties.

Both sides agreed livestock was a factor in the incident, which flared along the central Jordan Valley south of Israel's four-million-dollar Huleh reclamation project.

Elderly Woman Stages Daring Bank Robbery

NEW YORK (UPI) —A thin, gray-haired woman, so harmless looking that three nearby guards gave her no more than a glance, robbed a crowded bank in midtown Manhattan of $3,000 Wednesday by threatening to throw acid in a teller's face.

The woman, about 60, staged the robbery with such calm precision that none of the some 75 customers in the First National City Bank of New York branch, some standing in line behind her, was aware that a holdup was in progress.

The teller stepped on an alarm button as she strolled from the bank. The guards rushed into the street but the woman had vanished in crowds of Christmas shoppers.

Gambling Kingpin, Wife Found Slain, Throats Cut

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Gus Greenbaum, Las Vegas gambling power and resort hotel owner, and his wife were found dead Wednesday, their throats cut with a nine-inch butcher knife in what police called a double murder.

Capt. Orme Morehead of the Phoenix police said "All indications point to a double murder," but declined to say whether he considered it a possible gangland slaying.

Greenbaum, the mild-mannered president of the Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas, was found in a bedroom of his one-story, ranch-style home in an exclusive residential area. His body was some 75 feet from that of his wife, Bess Greenbaum, who was fully clothed. Greenbaum was wearing pajamas.

The weapon was a knife from the Greenbaum's own kitchen, Morehead said. There was no sign of a disturbance between the bedroom and the den, where the woman's body was found on a divan.

Mrs. Greenbaum's hands were tied with her husband's bow ties, police said. Her head was almost severed by the wound.

The blood-smeared knife, a plastic bag wrapped around the handle, was found at the foot of the divan.

Sgt. Lou Troutman, who declined to reveal details of the apparent double slaying, said there was no blood between the den and the bedroom.

Greenbaum, who had been in ill health for a year but was still active in operation of the Riviera Hotel, left Las Vegas Monday to spend a week here, but planned to return to Nevada next week.

40-Minute Police Siege Flushes Barmaid's Killer

BALTIMORE (AP)—A 27-year-old barmaid was slain in a northeast Baltimore tavern Wednesday night and police flushed her killer after a 40-minute siege of the building.

Dead on arrival at Johns Hopkins Hospital was Mary Tinius of Dundalk.

Police said she was shot twice in the head as patrons of the bar scattered out the doors.

Two police cars answering a report of trouble at the place found the tavern barricaded with the man and dead woman inside. They called for reinforcements and 20-odd police cars, including two canine corps patrols, were at the scene when the man surrendered about an hour after the shooting occurred.

Police said the gunman was a 33-year-old man who lived near the two-story tavern. He was held for investigation.

The man held more than 50 policemen at bay before surrendering to two officers who crept to within a few feet of him.

Daniel J. Bolger, 21, was helping out at the bar when the gunman walked in.

Bolger said the man waved a .45 caliber automatic at about a dozen patrons and said, "This is a holdup. I'm not kidding."

Customers fled, Bolger said, as the man leaped over the bar and fired at Mrs. Tinius, who was standing at the rear of the bar.

Mrs. Tinius was the mother of a 2½-year-old daughter.

Defense Dept. To Keep Team Of Scientists

Jet Propulsion Lab Will Be Transferred To Civilian Agency

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army won President Eisenhower's approval Wednesday to keep the ballistic missile agency at Huntsville, Ala., with its brilliant team of space age scientists.

But, as a compromise, Eisenhower ordered the Army to turn over to the new civilian space agency the jet propulsion laboratory at Pasadena, Calif. The civilian agency, set up this fall, had bid for the major part of both installations in the face of stiff Army opposition.

Eisenhower said the two federal agencies had worked out an agreement under which the space agency will "use the unique capabilities" at Huntsville on a fully cooperative basis.

In turn, the Army will continue for the next year a program of weapons development the Pasadena laboratory has been conducting under Army contracts—principally the Sergeant Bombardment Missile.

President Gratified

The Army also will keep control of equipment at the jet propulsion laboratory which deals primarily with military operations and weapons development.

In a statement announcing his executive order, Eisenhower said he was gratified that the space agency and the Defense Department had reached agreement.

"This decision is necessary in the national interest," Eisenhower said. "It prevents unnecessary duplication and effects economies in space research and development.

"This development will enhance close cooperation between the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Department of Defense to the end that the peaceful use of space will redound to the benefit of mankind."

Fund Transfer Ordered

In turning over the Pasadena laboratory to the space agency, Eisenhower ordered the Defense Department to transfer $4,078,250 from its appropriations to NASA to carry out jet propulsion laboratory projects.

Eisenhower directed the space agency to give all the assistance it can in view of its own responsibilities to help with military matters at the Pasadena laboratory.

In October, when word leaked that the space agency was trying to take over the bulk of the Army's missile facilities, there were loud protests from Army officials and from many of the scientists involved.

Moon Shot Will Test 'Radio Ear'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army's imminent try at reaching the vicinity of the moon will test a new space communications system deemed capable of keeping radio contact at distances up to 400,000 miles.

And by 1962, project scientists say, the system should be able to capture space signals from as far as four billion miles away.

Informed sources said Wednesday the new system will make use of an 85-foot diameter antenna in the Mojave Desert in Southern California.

The Air Force's worldwide network of six tracking stations also has been made available for tracking the Army's moonshot, scheduled for the next few days. So has the big radio telescope at Jodrell Bank in England.

But experts said primary reliance would be placed on the new device which will be operated by scientists of the California Institute of Technology's jet propulsion laboratory.

Lebanon Accepts Aid

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Premier Rashid Karami announced Wednesday Lebanon had accepted an offer of 10 million dollars in economic aid from the United States. He said the money would be a straight grant with no strings attached.

Forty-eight hours after the tragedy, there were two opposing schools of thought on what happened.

Babcock said an exhaustive examination of the two-story school convinced him that waste material had been allowed to accumulate at the bottom of the stairwell and the flames were sucked to the second floor because there were no doors at the second floor landing.

Babcock agreed with Police Sgt. Drew Brown, head of the arson squad, who hammered at the theory that the blaze started in stacks of paper beneath the stairwell. Brown said firemen had found papers stacked at least five inches deep under the stairwell. Police suspected the flames could have been touched off when a student flicked a forbidden cigaret into the containers of newspapers and examination papers.

Janitor's Story Challenged

Brown quoted an assistant school janitor, Mario Camerini, as saying rubbish sometimes accumulated so heavily at the stairwell base that he had to push it aside to get to the washroom.

Msgr. Joseph Cussen, pastor of Our Lady of the Angels Church, challenged the charge that "sloppy housekeeping" played a role in the disaster.

He said that as far as he knows there was no stack of papers underneath the stairwell. He said he and adjustors who toured the building with him believe the fire started on the first floor and spiralled up the stairwell to the second story.

Gen. De Gaulle Flies To Algeria

ALGIERS (UPI)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle flew into Algeria on Wednesday to begin a five-day mission and immediately made an extensive helicopter inspection tour over rebel-infested areas near the Tunisian frontier.

The premier's post-election visit was expected to bring a reshuffle of the Algerian high command as well as the first steps in his announced five-year plan for economic development of Algeria.

De Gaulle landed at the French air force base of Telergma, 24 miles west of Constantine, shortly after noon in an army transport plane. The aircraft was escorted by fighter planes on the final stretch of the flight from Paris.

In the company of Gen. Raoul Salan, commander-in-chief in Algeria, de Gaulle quickly took off in a helicopter to fly over rebel hideouts in the rugged, heavily-forested regions of Ain Kercha, Bou Nouara and Ain Beida in eastern Algeria.

Salan is expected to be replaced as military commander in Algeria by Gen. Maurice Challe and appointed to the now vacant post of inspector general of national defense.

Man With 30-Year Case Of Hiccups Dies

AMBRIDGE, Pa. (UPI) —Funeral services will be held Thursday for Victor Dionise, husky crane operator who puzzled doctors at famous clinics with hiccups that lasted 30 years.

Dionise died Tuesday of complications following an operation for an unrelated ailment. The 51-year-old native of Italy weighed 220-pounds and his plight was publicized widely.

He received remedies from well-wishers throughout the world but none of them worked.

Lew Ayres Loses Home To Fire

This was all that remained yesterday of the $50,000 home owned by actor Lew Ayres after an explosive brush fire roared through it during the night. Included in the loss were valuable paintings, a library of historic and religious volumes and a meteorological station he had built. The brush fire in the Malibu Beach, Calif., area has blackened more than 17,000 acres and destroyed an estimated 29 homes.

Soviets Reject Sneak Attack Warning Plan

GENEVA (UPI)—The United States Wednesday proposed a control system to prevent surprise attacks by ballistic missiles which Russia promptly rejected.

In another attempt to get the deadlocked conference on surprise attack moving forward, the United States, backed by its Western Allies, offered a detailed technical outline for an elaborate warning system. The system would apply to intercontinental and intermediate range land-based ballistic missiles.

U.S. experts who presented the plan said the system could alert an intended victim within minutes after a surprise missile attack was launched. They believed the system at least could double the present warning time for such an attack against the United States.

The Soviets, in turning down the proposal, called instead for a ban on nuclear weapons. They argued that such a ban was necessary before any plan for prevention of surprise attacks with ballistics missiles could be feasible.

Western delegates expected a more detailed Communist reply to the U.S. plan at a future session, but they were pessimistic about any change in the Soviet stand. The Communist side so far has rejected all Western proposals on purely technical issues and has tried to swing the conference to a discussion of political and disarmament questions.

At the parallel conference on a suspension of nuclear weapons tests, the United States and Britain pressed their efforts to get a firmer Soviet commitment on controls to police a ban on explosions.

The pace of the nuclear talks was described as slow and tedious. A communique issued after Wednesday's session said merely the delegates continued their discussions, begun Monday, on a test ban with built-in controls.

Colombian President Acts To Thwart Plot

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — President Alberto Lleras Camargo decreed modified martial law throughout Colombia Wednesday to thwart a reported coup against his government. Former dictator Gustavo Rojas Pinilla was arrested as the suspected ringleader of the plot.

The arrest came shortly after armored units and other military forces surrounded Rojas Pinilla's residence in the northern residential section of Bogota.

According to congressional sources, the plot was to break out in Bogota next Saturday with a series of terrorist acts.

Lleras Camargo, shortly after his inauguration last Aug. 7, lifted a state of siege which had prevailed in Colombia for nearly ten years because of political violence which amounted to virtual civil war.

Rojas Pinilla was forced to resign on May 10, 1957, by a nationwide popular movement against his four-year-old dictatorship.

50% Control Of Vast Brush Fire Claimed

MALIBU BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Firemen Wednesday claimed 50 per cent control of a brush fire that overran with explosive swiftness miles of home and ranch-dotted hills behind this resort area.

But, with winds expected to continue Wednesday night, they declined to predict when complete control is likely.

The big blaze had blackened more than 17,000 acres of brush, destroyed an estimated 29 homes and routed hundreds of families in 24 hours. There were more than 1,500 men fighting it along a 42-mile perimeter.

Much of the fire was burning over the same ground covered by blaze that charred 42,000 acres and ruined 99 homes two years ago.

Wind velocities dropped Wednesday to between 15 and 30 miles an hour enabling firemen to control 50 per cent of the perimeter of the huge blaze.

Continued winds in the 25 m.p.h. range were forecast for Wednesday night, with continued low humidity. Temperatures in the area Wednesday were in the high 80s.

The fire broke out Tuesday — arson is suspected—and lashed by hot desert winds up to 60 m.p.h. raced quickly from the inland slopes of the Santa Monica Mountains to the sea.

It cut a swath of ruin roughly five miles long and eight miles wide, charring ranchlands and roaring down half a dozen canyons lined with homes.

Flames reached brush only a quarter of a mile from the famed Malibu film colony, a strip of seaside homes where film figures dwell. But a massed array of firemen and pumper trucks checked the blaze at the coast highway before it could do damage.

Winds along the ocean were only around 15 m.p.h. Wednesday enabling firemen to check the flames along most of the perimeter. Temperatures were in the high 80s.

Syrian, Israeli Gunners Duel

JERUSALEM (AP) — Syrian and Israeli artillery exchanged heavy gunfire for an hour Wednesday in the pastoral hills of Galilee.

The big shooting was set off by an incident involving shepherds tending their livestock.

Israel reported one shepherd was shot dead and three Israeli settlers wounded. Israeli villagers were terrorized and damage to their property was reported.

A U.N. spokesman said the artillery duel ended at nightfall, 15 minutes after a U.N. demand for a cease-fire.

U.N. truce supervision organization observers are preparing a report.

A United Arab Republic army spokesman in Damascus said there were no Syrian casualties.

Both sides agreed livestock was a factor in the incident, which flared along the central Jordan Valley south of Israel's four-million-dollar Huleh reclamation project.

Elderly Woman Stages Daring Bank Robbery

NEW YORK (UPI) —A thin, gray-haired woman, so harmless looking that three nearby guards gave her no more than a glance, robbed a crowded bank in midtown Manhattan of $3,000 Wednesday by threatening to throw acid in a teller's face.

The woman, about 60, staged the robbery with such calm precision that none of the some 75 customers in the First National City Bank of New York branch, some standing in line behind her, was aware that a holdup was in progress.

The teller stepped on an alarm button as she strolled from the bank. The guards rushed into the street but the woman had vanished in crowds of Christmas shoppers.

40-Minute Police Siege Flushes Barmaid's Killer

BALTIMORE (AP)—A 27-year-old barmaid was slain in a northeast Baltimore tavern Wednesday night and police flushed her killer after a 40-minute siege of the building.

Dead on arrival at Johns Hopkins Hospital was Mary Tinius of Dundalk.

Police said she was shot twice in the head as patrons of the bar scattered out the doors.

Two police cars answering a report of trouble at the place found the tavern barricaded with the man and dead woman inside. They called for reinforcements and 20-odd police cars, including two canine corps patrols, were at the scene when the man surrendered about an hour after the shooting occurred.

Police said the gunman was a 33-year-old man who lived near the two-story tavern. He was held for investigation.

The man held more than 50 policemen at bay before surrendering to two officers who crept to within a few feet of him.

Daniel J. Bolger, 21, was helping out at the bar when the gunman walked in.

Bolger said the man waved a 45 caliber automatic at about a dozen patrons and said, "This is a holdup. I'm not kidding."

Customers fled, Bolger said, as the man leaped over the bar and fired at Mrs. Tinius, who was standing at the rear of the bar.

Mrs. Tinius was the mother of a 2½-year-old daughter.

Defense Dept. To Keep Team Of Scientists

Jet Propulsion Lab Will Be Transferred To Civilian Agency

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army won President Eisenhower's approval Wednesday to keep the ballistic missile agency at Huntsville, Ala., with its brilliant team of space age scientists.

But, as a compromise, Eisenhower ordered the Army to turn over to the new civilian space agency the jet propulsion laboratory at Pasadena, Calif. The civilian agency, set up this fall, had bid for the major part of both installations in the face of stiff Army opposition.

Eisenhower said the two federal agencies had worked out an agreement under which the space agency will "use the unique capabilities" at Huntsville on a fully cooperative basis.

In turn, the Army will continue for the next year a program of weapons development the Pasadena laboratory has been conducting under Army contracts—principally the Sergeant Bombardment Missile.

President Gratified

The Army also will keep control of equipment at the jet propulsion laboratory which deals primarily with military operations and weapons development.

In a statement announcing his executive order, Eisenhower said he was gratified that the space agency and the Defense Department had reached agreement.

"This decision is necessary in the national interest," Eisenhower said. "It prevents unnecessary duplication and effects economies in space research and development.

"This development will enhance close cooperation between the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Department of Defense to the end that the peaceful use of space will redound to the benefit of mankind."

Fund Transfer Ordered

In turning over the Pasadena laboratory to the space agency, Eisenhower ordered the Defense Department to transfer $4,078,250 from its appropriations to NASA to carry out jet propulsion laboratory projects.

Eisenhower directed the space agency to give all the assistance it can in view of its own responsibilities to help with military matters at the Pasadena laboratory.

In October, when word leaked that the space agency was trying to take over the bulk of the Army's missile facilities, there were loud protests from Army officials and from many of the scientists involved.

Moon Shot Will Test 'Radio Ear'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army's imminent try at reaching the vicinity of the moon will test a new space communications system deemed capable of keeping radio contact at distances up to 400,000 miles.

And by 1962, project scientists say, the system should be able to capture space signals from as far as four billion miles away.

Informed sources said Wednesday the new system will make use of an 85-foot diameter antenna in the Mojave Desert in Southern California.

The Air Force's worldwide network of six tracking stations also has been made available for tracking the Army's moonshot, scheduled for the next few days. So has the big radio telescope at Jodrell Bank in England.

But experts said primary reliance would be placed on the new device which will be operated by scientists of the California Institute of Technology's jet propulsion laboratory.

Government Sees Early Spurt In Jobless Totals

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Government officials said Wednesday the recent improvement in unemployment is expected to end soon with the result that more than 4,500,000 Americans may be looking for work in mid-winter.

Labor Department manpower experts said the anticipated rise in unemployment would be only "seasonal." But they said the upturn was starting from a much higher level than usual since unemployment was estimated at 3,805,000 in October.

A spurt in jobless totals was considered almost certain to bring renewed congressional demands for federal aid to depressed areas and improved unemployment benefits. Both would run counter to the administration's economy drive.

The advent of cold weather always signals layoffs for workers on farms and in construction and amusement industries. However, pre-Christmas retail trade and services will soften the impact of the layoffs until after the holidays, the economists said.

One recent clue to the forthcoming spiral was the first increase since mid-July in the number of workers claiming jobless benefits. The total receiving unemployment compensation probably will surpass three million by February or March, one Labor Department official said.

Ewan Clague, commissioner of labor statistics, recently expressed concern that unemployment would be relatively high for most of 1959.

Clague believes there are three reasons why joblessness will be a national headache next year despite the evident recovery in production, income and sales.

First, he said, employers are getting increased production per man-hour by use of labor-saving machinery and abandonment of obsolete, wasteful plants. A normal 3 per cent advance in productivity would wipe out the need for 2 million workers in 1959, he said.

Secondly, the economy must provide jobs for about 1,250,000 of the present 3,800,000 unemployed to get back to a relatively low level of joblessness.

Third, about 790,000 newcomers who will join the labor force in 1959 must be absorbed.

Soviets Remind West Of Their Berlin Deadline

BERLIN (AP)—The Soviet Union insisted Wednesday that the Western Allies have just six months to turn West Berlin into an unarmed neutral city.

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia jeered at Western talk of a top-level parley aimed at reuniting Germany.

The West has tried many times "by hook or crook to convert the internal German problem into an international one, to no avail," Izvestia said. It contended any further such effort is doomed to failure since the aim "belongs in the sphere of pure fantasy."

The newspaper claimed the Western powers wanted to use the Berlin issue "once more to try to dictate their will on the German people."

The Soviet Union opposes the Western plan for reunifying Germany through free elections, and wants the two German governments to get together themselves on a confederation.

Soviet and East German propaganda took a tougher line as it became apparent that the West would reject Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's bid to ease out U.S., British and French garrisons and convert isolated West Berlin into a free city.

As a counterproposal, Western diplomats have discussed the possibility of a summit or foreign ministers conference that would seek an all-German settlement, including one on Berlin.

Izvestia reminded the United States, Britain and France of the six-month deadline set by the Soviet government Nov. 27.

"They have sufficient time — half a year," the newspaper said.

From the East German Communist party organ, Neues Deutschland, came the declaration that West Berlin is "a time bomb which must be defused before it's too late."

Negro Stages Bank Stickup At Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — A well-dressed Negro in his 30s was sought Wednesday for the $1,886 robbery of a branch of the Fidelity-Baltimore National Bank.

The bandit kept his hand covered with a handkerchief, as if concealing a gun, when he took the money from the bank at Baltimore and Carey streets.

Miss Elizabeth Nickel, a teller, said the man walked up and told her "This is a holdup."

He also handed her a piece of paper with writing on it, but she said that in the excitement she was unable to make out the writing.

Miss Nickel gave him all the money she had in her cash drawer. Without trying to rob other tellers, the man fled.

The stolen money was in denominations of ones, fives, tens and twenties.

Employes Cleared In DES Forgeries

BALTIMORE (AP)—Handwriting checks have cleared employes of the Department of Employment Security of the forging and cashing of unemployment checks totaling $192, a department spokesman said Wednesday.

Eight checks are involved in the investigation, which is continuing.

Police were called last September after five claimants filed affidavits saying they never got the checks.

At the same time, the department discovered that certain records pertaining to the claims were missing.

Robert B. Kimble, executive director of the department, said that as a result of the forgeries changes have been made in the claim paying procedure and in the layout of the office here.

Metal screening has been erected at the desk where claims are paid and at the file room where clerks prepare the checks.

Gas That Puts Enemy To Sleep Is Army's Goal

NEW YORK (AP) — An Army general said Wednesday the Army is experimenting with a gas that it hopes will put an enemy to sleep without serious harm.

Maj. August Schomburg, deputy chief of ordnance, emphasized that the Army is a long way from such a goal. He discussed the attempts, along with the Army's basic research program, before the 40th annual meeting of the American Ordnance Assn.

Schomburg showed a brief film of a cat which backed away in fright from a mouse after being sprayed with an unspecified gas.

Army chemical research on various nerve gases have been reported for years. The basic purpose of such nonpoisonous gases is to immobilize an enemy, possibly by an airplane spray.

Killer Recaptured On Flight To Mexico

CARRIZO SPRINGS, Tex. (UPI) —Dimmit County Sheriff Tom Brady said Wednesday he was holding for Georgia authorities convicted killer Spence Edwards, who was tripped up by a Texas highway patrolman and wild cactus country on a flight to the Mexican border.

Edwards, 31, had been the object of a nationwide search since he walked off a prison work camp last Tuesday at Dalton, Ga., where he was serving a life term for the slaying a decade ago of a Georgia FBI agent. He was last seen at Birmingham, Ala. after a flight involving two kidnapings and the overpowering of a Tennessee policeman.

Edwards told Brady he was headed for the border city of Laredo on the Rio Grande and hoped to enter Mexico. He almost made it as he was only a few miles from the border when captured Tuesday night.

Astonished Patient Told He Had Been Shot Twice

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — For weeks Nicholas Bovoso had a bad hurt in his back. He had no idea what caused the pain. Tuesday night it got worse and he went to see Dr. Louis Chaess.

Examination disclosed that the 40-year-old Bovoso had two bullets in his back.

"I didn't even know I'd been shot," said the astonished patient.

By law, the police had to be informed. Anyway, Bovoso was vastly curious. How could such things be?

Bovoso told detectives he had neither heard nor felt the bullets. He could think of nothing except that as he turned a corner near his home one night a while ago he felt for a moment as if someone had taken a quick poke at him from behind. No more than that. He saw no one, however, and kept moving. The pains came later.

Detectives said Bovoso was shot with a .32 bullet which left no trace on his clothing.

Bullets from smaller caliber guns do that, they said, drill right through cloth without making even a tiny hole.

"Strange as it may seem," commented a detective, "a man can be shot as this one was, without visible signs of the shooting. Unless there are bloodstains or powder marks, assuming the firing was at close range. Bovoso did not bleed. That is not too rare. Everything indicates the bullets were fired from a considerable distance."

The whale shark does not attack either human beings or fishes.

LUGGAGE — FIRST BALCONY

Legislator Says Federal Spending Bound To Rise

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rep. Wilbur D. Mills (D.-Ark.) said Tuesday night he expects both federal defense and non-defense spending to continue to increase in the foreseeable future.

At the same time the lawmaker predicted the government will show a deficit of from three to five billion dollars in fiscal 1960. This would compare with an expected 12 billion dollar deficit in fiscal 1959.

The chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee said defense spending must be expected to increase if we are to continue our development of intercontinental ballistic missiles, to step up our exploration of outer space, and at the same time maintain large military forces to fight in either an all-out war or in a polo-type action."

The ever-increasing number of people in this country demanding more services from their local, state and federal governments does not point to "material" cuts in non-defense expenditures, Mills said, "although major economy efforts may dampen down increases in this area."

Mills, in a speech at the 21st annual dinner of Tax Foundation, Inc., denied the recent Democratic sweep represented a public mandate for "big spending."

"I do not personally subscribe to this interpretation, but on the other hand I do not believe the electorate as a whole showed the type of interest in an economy drive which was in evidence early in 1957," the congressman said.

First U.S. A-Plane May Be No Larger Than B52

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first U. S. atomic aircraft is expected to be no bigger than the B52 jet bomber.

That bit of information about the super-secret program to develop a nuclear powered airplane came out Tuesday when Air Force installations specialist John M. Ferry testified before the House Armed Services Investigations subcommittee.

The investigators are looking into use of materials for runways. Chairman F. Edward Hebert (D-La) asked Ferry, a special assistant to the Air Force secretary, whether the atomic plane would cause unforeseen problems because of its weight.

Ferry replied the plane is not far enough along to fix its weight positively, but that under present plans it would be no heavier than the B52.

That Boeing-made big bomber has a wing span of 185 feet, is 156.5 feet long and 48.3 feet high and weighs over 350,000 pounds.

The magazine Aviation Week said Sunday the Soviet Union has been flying an aircraft with atomic engines for the last two months. It was described as longer than a B52 but with a smaller wing spread.

McKeldin Declares Racial, Religious Discrimination In U. S. Impractical

CHICAGO (AP) — Maryland's Gov. McKeldin said Tuesday racial and religious discrimination in America is impractical.

McKeldin set aside the moral questions of discrimination in a speech prepared for delivery before the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

"If there were no objection to it on ethical grounds," the governor said, "still it would fail the test because it is not rational."

"When men practice it they are working against their own interest . . ."

McKeldin, a longtime champion of minority interests, said racial and religious discrimination in America costs money, impairs morale and hinders straight thinking about other problems.

"Discrimination based on anything other than brains and character is a fruitful breeder of hatred and bitterness. Therefore, discrimination is inefficient . . .," he said.

McKeldin referred to discrimination against Negroes in the South as "the most spectacular demonstration of the disastrous effect of a policy of discrimination."

He said it is undeniable that discrimination is practiced more in the southeastern states than elsewhere because of the larger Negro population there.

"Everyone agrees that the low standing of these states is attributable to the fact that about 30 per cent of their workers are definitely below the national average in productivity per man-hour.

"There is no convincing evidence that this low productivity is due to a biological factor and much strong evidence that it is due to restricted oportunity arising from racial discrimination," McKeldin said.

McKeldin emphasized that discrimination against the Negro is not limited to the South.

"I am tired of the common assumption that there is something peculiarly southern in a moral flaw that has been characteristic of the white man wherever he has come into intimate contact with people of another color," he said.

Moreover, McKeldin said, "in the South we are witnessing a powerful reaction against discrimination, which means that in the South there is a better chance of correcting it than in areas still unaware of its effects and therefore not yet alarmed."

Unlucky Day

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Tuesday 13 is the unlucky day here.

Few marry on that day: Children born of such marriages are expected to be albinos, pretty bad in a nation where most are dark. And wives turn out to be prime naggers.

Other don'ts: Don't travel; don't leave home with left foot first; don't leave hat or raincoat on table; beware of black cats and broken windows; if you spill salt you're out of luck; and go around ladders.

CONDEMN RABBITS

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's rabbit advisory council braved the wrath of the nation's youngsters Wednesday by condemning all those bedtime stories about Alice's white rabbit, Br'er Rabbit and the Easter bunny as pure humbug. The concil launched a campaign to try to prove rabbits really were not cuddly, powder-puff creatures, but mean, thieving, dirty villains which carried fleas.

McKeldin Declares Racial, Religious Discrimination In U. S. Impractical

CHICAGO (AP) — Maryland's Gov. McKeldin said Tuesday racial and religious discrimination in America is impractical.

McKeldin set aside the moral questions of discrimination in a speech prepared for delivery before the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

"If there were no objection to it on ethical grounds," the governor said, "still it would fail the test because it is not rational."

"When men practice it they are working against their own interest . . ."

McKeldin, a longtime champion of minority interests, said racial and religious discrimination in America costs money, impairs morale and hinders straight thinking about other problems.

"Discrimination based on anything other than brains and character is a fruitful breeder of hatred and bitterness. Therefore, discrimination is inefficient . . .," he said.

McKeldin referred to discrimination against Negroes in the South as "the most spectacular demonstration of the disastrous effect of a policy of discrimination."

He said it is undeniable that discrimination is practiced more in the southeastern states than elsewhere because of the larger Negro population there.

"Everyone agrees that the low standing of these states is attributable to the fact that about 30 per cent of their workers are definitely below the national average in productivity per man-hour.

"There is no convincing evidence that this low productivity is due to a biological factor and much strong evidence that it is due to restricted oportunity arising from racial discrimination," McKeldin said.

McKeldin emphasized that discrimination against the Negro is not limited to the South.

"I am tired of the common assumption that there is something peculiarly southern in a moral flaw that has been characteristic of the white man wherever he has come into intimate contact with people of another color," he said.

Moreover, McKeldin said, "in the South we are witnessing a powerful reaction against discrimination, which means that in the South there is a better chance of correcting it than in areas still unaware of its effects and therefore not yet alarmed."

Unlucky Day

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Tuesday 13 is the unlucky day here.

Few marry on that day; Children born of such marriages are expected to be albinos, pretty bad in a nation where most are dark. And wives turn out to be prime naggers.

Other don'ts: Don't travel; don't leave home with left foot first; don't leave hat or raincoat on table; beware of black cats and broken windows; if you spill salt you're out of luck; and go around ladders.

CONDEMN RABBITS

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's rabbit advisory council braved the wrath of the nation's youngsters Wednesday by condemning all those bedtime stories about Alice's white rabbit, Br'er Rabbit and the Easter bunny as pure humbug. The concil launched a campaign to try to prove rabbits really were not cuddly, powder-puff creatures, but mean, thieving, dirty villains which carried fleas.

Tunnel Of Love Safe Place To Travel

CHICAGO (AP) — The safest place to travel these days is in a tunnel of love.

So said Paul Jones, information director of the National Safety Council, who stressed he was speaking statistically rather than romantically.

"Our records fail to show a single accident in a tunnel of love," he said. "I wish I could say the same for other forms of travel."

Jones spoke Tuesday to the National Assn. of Amusement Parks, Pools and Beaches whose members run, among other things, tunnels of love.

Japan's Biggest Romantic Guessing Game Ends With Engagement Of Crown Prince To Commoner

By KENNETH ISHII

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's biggest romantic guessing game is over.

Last week the Imperial Household Council announced the engagement of Crown Prince Akihito, heir to the world's oldest ruling monarchy. He will be 25 next month.

The girl who will become the next empress of Japan-when and if Akihito succeeds his father, Emperor Hirohito-is 24-year-old Michiko Shoda, daughter of the president of the giant Nisshin flour firm. Her family is descended from Samurai warriors and numbers scholars in its ranks.

Never in recent Japanese history has such an announcement been so eagerly awaited. The reason is that the girl is a commoner.

A commoner as empress will break all precedent in this tradition-bound nation which, according to mythology, has been ruled by an unbroken line of 125 emperors for more than 2,600 years.

Newspapers, magazines and radio agreed to remain silent on Akihito's marital future until official announcement is made. But Miss Shoda's name became well known to the man in the street in recent weeks.

A few new magazines, obviously out for circulation, ran "inside" biographies of the girl.

Another good reason for the general excitement was Akhito himself.

A likeable young man, self-assured, with poise and dignity, Akihito is easily one of the most popular imperial princes Japan has had. Postwar democratization has enabled him to venture outside the chrysanthemum curtain far more than his tradition-bound precedessors.

A series of foreign tutors, including Mrs. Elizabeth Vining of Philadelphia, helped develop the Western side of his education.

Another factor which whetted public interest in the crown prince's future, was the reported decision to permit him a large degree of freedom in choosing his own friends from whatever sphere he found them.

This fitted in with the "new Japan" which emerged from the ashes of the war.

Below the nobility proper are the remains of the Samurai warrior class—today numbering between 5 to 10 millions of Japan's 90 million. After these come the true commoners.

Miss Shoda's family is of Samurai origin. While a bride might be picked from a Samurai family, it is considered unthinkable that an imperial bride could be chosen from a truly common family.

One magazine quoted the crown prince's own views on a mate:

". . . A girl who has both parents living, is good-looking, not too tall (Akihito stands 5 feet 5 inches) but slender, able to make witty remarks, a sports lover and music lover, and capable of playing hostess at a reception."

Michiko fills the bill completely, according to all the information about her.

A highly reliable source says the prince fell in love at first sight with Miss Shoda, whom he met at Karuizawa, a mountain resort north of Tokyo, in August 1957 when they played tennis together.

At first the girl's parents, awed at the growing possibility of a romance and marriage, informally told associates of the prince they wanted their daughter to back out of the friendship.

Then the prince began a passionate courtship of the girl, "largely by telephone."

Miss Shoda finally accepted the prince some time early this month, shortly after her return from a tour of Europe and the United States.

Marriages of royal princes always have been a tricky business in Japan.

Before Akihito's time, imperial brides were chosen from among daughters of a few select noble families.

Now a list of candidates is drawn up and studied by a special committee consisting mainly of topmost imperial household chamberlains.

The longevity of a candidates parents and grandparents, her own state of health, height, intelligence, popularity, deportment and numerous other factors are cafefully weighed. The emperor, empress and others concerned are consulted.

In Akihito's own case there was reported to have been a wide split of opinion among members of the aristocracy.

Some favored a girl with noble blood in keeping with tradition and to help maintain imperial prestige. Others favored a commoner to bring new blood into the imperial line and avoid further inbreeding.

Akihito's wedding is not expected to take place until a year after the engagement announcement.

Montgomery Council Has Woman Leader

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — Mrs. Stella B. Werner Tuesday became the first woman president of the Montgomery County Council.

She was chosen by her six fellow council members shortly after the newly elected all Democratic council was sworn into office.

Other officers are Grover K. Walker, president pro-tem, and William F. Hickey, secretary.

The new council's first official act was adoption of a resolution establishing a committee to study conflicts of interest.

Alleged conflicts of interest of office holders was a campaign issue in the Democratic primary.

The resolution directs the new committee, yet to be named, to report to the council and to the county delegation in the Maryland General Assembly by Nov. 1, 1959.

'NAIL PICKER' TOURS TEXAS FOR A LIVING—Joe Webb probably knows the highways of Texas better than any other man. He has covered every square inch of the state's major highways six or seven times, at a speed of 5 miles an hour. He drives a yellow pickup truck equipped with a magnet which picks up nails and other pieces of metal lying on and alongside the roads. He works for the state highway department, and has been called "Texas nail picker" since 1944.

Mayors Urged To Plan For Emergencies

BOSTON (UPI) — U. S. Civil Defense Agency Director Leo A. Hoegh told 1,200 American mayors and city officials Tuesday they must keep their local governments going even through a nuclear attack.

If local governments fail during such an attack "the people are lost," Hoegh said.

He addressed the 35th annual meeting of the American Municipal Assn. Hoegh said federal, state and local governments are being advised on how to shift into emergency operation.

He outlined four main actions local governments must take to prepare for nuclear emergencies:

—Local governments must determine lines of succession.

—A safe place must be found for vital documents.

—An emergency site for city government must be located.

—There must be assurance that all branches of local government know how to cooperate fully in civil defense activities.

Carter Page of the Army Corps of Engineers, warned the mayors that this country must increase its water conservation activities. Page, chief planner for the corps, said that since 1900 the nation's population has doubled while its water usage has increased six times.

Today's water consumption of 262 billion gallons will reach 453 billion gallons by 1975, he said. Page said the Commerce Department has predicted the current population of 175 million persons will reach 206 million by 1975.

Case Of Missing Cuffs

HONOLULU (AP)—It was an embarrassing report Patrolman Andrew Uramoto turned in at police headquarters. He had lost his handcuffs.

Worse than that, the handcuffs happened to be clamped on a prisoner at the time they disappeared.

Officer Uramoto was bringing a juvenile auto thief suspect to his patrol car when the handcuffed youth broke into a run. Officer Uramoto stumbled and the boy got away.

COAL PRODUCTION UP

PARIS (UPI) — French coal production climbed 9 per cent in 1957 over the previous year, a government report said Tuesday. The report showed 59.1 million tons of coal were mined in 1957 against 57.4 million in 1956.

". . . A girl who has both parents living, is good-looking, not too tall (Akihito stands 5 feet 5 inches) but slender, able to make witty remarks, a sports lover and music lover, and capable of playing hostess at a reception."

Michiko fills the bill completely, according to all the information about her.

A highly reliable source says the prince fell in love at first sight with Miss Shoda, whom he met at Karuizawa, a mountain resort north of Tokyo, in August 1957 when they played tennis together.

At first the girl's parents, awed at the growing possibility of a romance and marriage, informally told associates of the prince they wanted their daughter to back out of the friendship.

Then the prince began a passionate courtship of the girl, "largely by telephone."

Miss Shoda finally accepted the prince some time early this month, shortly after her return from a tour of Europe and the United States.

Marriages of royal princes always have been a tricky business in Japan.

Before Akihito's time, imperial brides were chosen from among daughters of a few select noble families.

Now a list of candidates is drawn up and studied by a special committee consisting mainly of topmost imperial household chamberlains.

The longevity of a candidates parents and grandparents, her own state of health, height, intelligence, popularity, deportment and numerous other factors are cafefully weighed. The emperor, empress and others concerned are consulted.

In Akihito's own case there was reported to have been a wide split of opinion among members of the aristocracy.

Some favored a girl with noble blood in keeping with tradition and to help maintain imperial prestige. Others favored a commoner to bring new blood into the imperial line and avoid further inbreeding.

Akihito's wedding is not expected to take place until a year after the engagement announcement.

Montgomery Council Has Woman Leader

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — Mrs. Stella B. Werner Tuesday became the first woman president of the Montgomery County Council.

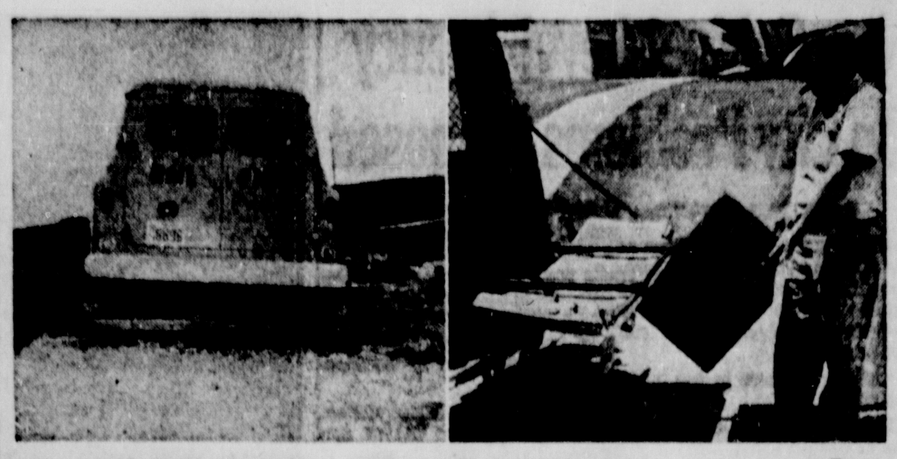
She was chosen by her six fellow council members shortly after the newly elected all Democratic council was sworn into office.

Other officers are Grover K. Walker, president pro-tem, and William F. Hickey, secretary.

The new council's first official act was adoption of a resolution establishing a committee to study conflicts of interest.

Alleged conflicts of interest of office holders was a campaign issue in the Democratic primary.

The resolution directs the new committee, yet to be named, to report to the council and to the county delegation in the Maryland General Assembly by Nov. 1, 1959.



'NAIL PICKER' TOURS TEXAS FOR A LIVING—Joe Webb probably knows the highways of Texas better than any other man. He has covered every square inch of the state's major highways six or seven times, at a speed of 5 miles an hour. He drives a yellow pickup truck equipped with a magnet which picks up nails and other pieces of metal lying on and alongside the roads. He works for the state highway department, and has been called "Texas nail picker" since 1944.

Mayors Urged To Plan For Emergencies

BOSTON (UPI) — U. S. Civil Defense Agency Director Leo A. Hoegh told 1,200 American mayors and city officials Tuesday they must keep their local governments going even through a nuclear attack.

If local governments fail during such an attack "the people are lost," Hoegh said.

He addressed the 35th annual meeting of the American Municipal Assn. Hoegh said federal, state and local governments are being advised on how to shift into emergency operation.

He outlined four main actions local governments must take to prepare for nuclear emergencies:

—Local governments must determine lines of succession.

—A safe place must be found for vital documents.

—An emergency site for city government must be located.

—There must be assurance that all branches of local government know how to cooperate fully in civil defense activities.

Carter Page of the Army Corps of Engineers, warned the mayors that this country must increase its water conservation activities. Page, chief planner for the corps, said that since 1900 the nation's population has doubled while its water usage has increased six times.

Today's water consumption of 262 billion gallons will reach 453 billion gallons by 1975, he said. Page said the Commerce Department has predicted the current population of 175 million persons will reach 206 million by 1975.

Case Of Missing Cuffs

HONOLULU (AP)—It was an embarrassing report Patrolman Andrew Uramoto turned in at police headquarters. He had lost his handcuffs.

Worse than that, the handcuffs happened to be clamped on a prisoner at the time they disappeared.

Officer Uramoto was bringing a juvenile auto thief suspect to his patrol car when the handcuffed youth broke into a run. Officer Uramoto stumbled and the boy got away.

COAL PRODUCTION UP

PARIS (UPI) — French coal production climbed 9 per cent in 1957 over the previous year, a government report said Tuesday. The report showed 59.1 million tons of coal were mined in 1957 against 57.4 million in 1956.

New Cabinet-Level Agency On City Problems Proposed

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Over at the Department of Agriculture, Ezra Taft Benson and 92,550 little helpers have hired out to worry exclusively over the farmer and his problems.

And who is there to fret about the city folks?

Practically nobody. Certainly no one at Cabinet level.

Indeed, in Congress and in our folklore, it always has been assumed that city folks can look out for themselves. Always it's the city slicker, quick to take advantage of the hapless, hayseedy farmer.

Well, times have changed. The farmer has swapped in his double-shovel and his ancient mule. Today he often is fairly big business. He may drive a big car, and handle big, expensive farm machinery.

And though you never would suspect it listening to Congress—congressmen still tend to come from places like McLaughlin, S.D., South Boston, Va., or Hoquiam, Wash.—the farmer now is completely outnumbered by his city cousins.

So it's not too surprising to note a bipartisan, coast-to-coast movement in favor of the city slicker.

True, it still doesn't amount to much. But in Boston Monday Sen. Joseph Clark (D) of Pennsylvania said the time has come to create a new department to deal with city problems. He suggested a Department of Urban Affairs, headed by an officer in the Cabinet.

"City people, too," Clark said, "need an advocate in Washington."

Well, here he is following Rep. J. Arthur Younger (R) of San Mateo, Calif., which is some 16 miles—as the commuter flies—from San Francisco. For five years, Younger has been arguing that what this country needs is a Department of Urbiculture.

Younger told a congressional committee that the word isn't in any dictionary, that he had made it up.

Back in 1862, Younger said, when Abraham Lincoln set up the first Agriculture Department, 80 per cent of the nation lived on farms.

"Today," he said, "we find that roughly 85 per cent of our peohle live in urban communities and only 15 per cent in rural or farm areas."

Younger has no quarrel with agriculture. How could he since he comes from the heart of the artichoke belt? But he does think it's time for a centralized approach to such citified problems as slum clearance, housing, crime, smog and civil defense.

ANXIETY, THEN SHATTERING GRIEF — Over and over this happens as an aftermath of the parochial school fire in Chicago. Tensely awaiting news is Phil Comparetto (left) with his wife, Rosemarie, as a sister, Marguerite, comforts them. At this time he is unaware — definitely — of the fate of his son, Norman, 14, a pupil at Our Lady of the Angels Catholic grade school. Moments later he breaks down as he identifies body of Norman at county morgue. Ninety died in the fire. (AP Photofax)

DEVELOPS INSECTICIDE NEW YORK (UPI) — Union Carbide Corp. unveiled Wednesday a new type of insecticide—sevin—which it says will control all major cotton insects from thrips and fleahoppers to the boll weevil.

Work Guides For Many Heart Patients Too Soft

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—A physician contended Tuesday that thousands of heart patients are able to hold down jobs thought too rigorous for them.

Dr. Edward E. Gordon of Chicago blamed the situation on standard classifications that guide doctors in determining how much energy a patient expends in various work tasks and recreation.

These classifications set limits, ranging from no restriction to marked restriction, based on how heart patients react while performing the tasks.

Dr. Gordon said the classifications make no distinction between continuous and intermittent work, although most work and domestic activities fall into the intermittent class. The worker gives short bursts of high energy output followed by pauses.

He told family physicians attending the annual clinic conference of the American Medical Assn. that many cardiac patients will be able to accomplish tasks of higher (energy) costs than would appear compatible with their condition, provided activity is interrupted at frequent intervals.

"By further eliminating heavy peaks with the cooperation of the employer, many patients may undertake their previous jobs on return to society," he said.

"It appears quite possible that overcaution has been the rule in regulating physical activity."

He pointed out that many patients develop heart symptoms when relegated to a new, but easier, job. These same patients, however, perform their customary more arduous tasks without difficulty.

Dr. Gordon, director of physical medicine at Chicago's Michael Reese Hospital, attributed this to emotional tensions caused by the change in jobs.

Fears Grow For Future Of Democracy In France

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

Fears for the future of democracy in France are now being more widely expressed than ever because of the number of rightists elected to Parliament after bundling themselves in Charles de Gaulle's coattails.

The leader himself, whose election to the presidency is expected to be little more than a formality, is depicted as embarrassed.

His gerrymandering of election districts and voting regulations designed to wipe out the Communists not only accomplished his purpose, but also wiped out many Moderates and Socialists who are among the natural leaders of France.

Jacques Soustelle, propelled into the leading role in Parliament through his leadership of a wide variety of rightist elements who voluntarily grouped themselves around him and tried to assume the aura of de Gaulle, was known during the Fourth Republic as a wrecker of parliaments.

While Soustelle himself is not rabid, and while no one is expected to offer a frontal challenge to de Gaulle, many of those who wrapped themselves in the Soustelle-de Gaulle banner are extremists.

In particular, many of them stand for imposition of complete integration on Algeria as against de Gaulle's own desire to devise a workable association.

Thus the majority bloc is itself divided, a situation which has become a commonplace in French politics. The question is how much this will affect the stability toward which de Gaulle is directing his efforts. The rightist bloc can hardly be called a party, and any program it may have is yet to develop.

Some are expressing the fear that it will be capable of interfering with civil liberties—especially strikes—and with freedom of the press in the name of stability, if a sufficient crisis arises.

De Gaulle, of course, will have the power no other president has had to rule Parliament under the threat of dissolution. If he did not already have it under the new constitution, his popularity would give it to him.

But there is wonderment as to how many of the new rightist deputies, having proclaimed their fealty to de Gaulle in order to be elected, will now live up to it.

There also is wonderment as to the undercover pressures which may be built up by the fact that a fifth of the nation's voters — some Communists and the rest protest voters who chose the Communist ticket as their means of expression—will have only one fifty-fourth of the seats in Parliament.

In the cold, desolate regions of the high Andes in Ecuador, Quechua-speaking Indians are reacting enthusiastically to the combined efforts of their government and of the specialized agencies of the United Nations, in a vast rehabilitation program for their neglected people. Scarcity of water has for generations forced the Indians to walk miles to obtain even enough for their cooking, a returned expert said a few days ago.

Maryland School Fire Safety Check Shows No 'Bad Spots'

BALTIMORE (AP)—Maryland's chief fire investigator said Wednesday that this year's fire safety check of Maryland schools has so far turned up no "bad spots."

John J. Meyers said Maryland is steadily weeding out sub-standard schools.

There are schools in remote sections of some counties, he said, that still have all-frame interior construction. But "there are very, very few of these and counties are getting away from them as fast as taxes permit."

Meyers is chief fire investigator in the office of Charles S. Jackson, who is State Insurance Commissioner and Fire Marshal.

Meyers' division inspects schools in all but Prince Georges, Montgomery, Baltimore, Wicomico and Anne Arundel Counties and Baltimore and Cumberland. They have their own fire marshals.

Meyers was asked for an outline of Maryland's fire safety program in the wake of the tragic Chicago school fire that took 90 lives.

Meyers has five men working full time inspecting schools. He said the regular annual inspection has been completed on the Eastern Shore, Western Maryland and in Harford County in schools covered by his office. The inspection is currently under way in Howard County.

In addition to the regular inspections, Meyers said his men are "in and out of the schools" periodically during the year, especially in areas where follow-up checks are needed. Some schools are checked once a month. Some as many as six to eight times a year, Meyers said.

"If we find anything bad we immediately get in touch with the county superintendent of schools and recommend changes," he said.

"We have received 100 per cent cooperation," from the superintendents, he said.

He said detailed reports on each school are turned over to the school superintendent and discussed with them and a copy goes to the State Department of Education in Baltimore.

All schools built in Maryland in the last 12 to 15 years are of "semi-fireproof construction with inside fire escapes," Meyers said. The escapes are of steel and concrete and have fire doors top and bottom.

If a really dangerous school is found it could be ordered closed if the situation warrants, Meyers said.

In addition to inspections by his men, Meyers said, volunteer fire departments around the State have a keen interest in school fire safety and make frequent visits to schools.

Tree Farmer Is Indicted

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—A Maryland tree farmer is accused of illegally transporting Canadian woodcutters to his farm to save money on labor.

Six woodcutters also were indicted by a federal grand jury Tuesday. They are charged on misdemeanor counts of giving false information at the Rouses Point border station of the immigration service.

Bruno Maisonneuve of Ironsides, Md., was named in felony indictment charging that he transported groups of woodcutters on two occasions.

U. S. Atty. Theodore F. Bowes said Maisonneuve had driven the men from their homes to the border, then picked them up again on this side of the border and drove them to Maryland to cut wood for paper pulp. The men told immigration officers they were just going visiting in the United States, Bowes said.

Three of the Canadians were arrested at the tree farm Oct. 30. Maisonneuve and the four others were arrested at Ogdensburg, just this side of the border, Nov. 10.

Maisonneuve is free on bail. The Canadians, except for a juvenile, are in jail here. They are expected to be arraigned next week.

Maryland's 1958 Highway Death Toll Reaches 449

By The Associated Press

Maryland's highway death count for 1958 climbed to 449 Wednesday.

Mrs. Dorothy Ward, 42, of Baltimore, died of head injuries suffered in a seven-car accident on rain-swept U.S. 40 near the Patapsco River bridge in Howard County. Two other persons were injured in the pile-up.

William H. Donoway of Parsonsburg died Tuesday night in a Salisbury hospital of injuries suffered when his pick-up truck overturned on Shavox road a mile south of Parsonsburg.

The 449 deaths recorded to date compare with 518 at the same time last year.

Six Children Rescued From Burning Homes

BALTIMORE (AP) — Six children, all unconscious, were rescued from their burning homes Wednesday after being trapped on upper floors by dense smoke.

Three of the Negro children were reported in serious condition at St. Joseph's Hospital. The others were treated for smoke inhalation and released.

A 6-year-old boy trapped on the second floor of one of the adjoining homes leaped 15 feet to safety into the waiting arms of a passerby.

Two babes-in-arms were carried out by older children before firemen arrived. Firemen and policemen brought the others out of the three-story building.

Admitted to the hospital were three children of Mrs. Corinne Bell, Janice, 2, Catherine, 3 and Patricia, 4.

Three small children of Mrs. Veronica Johnson were released after treatment.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

25 Prisoners Freed Under New Program

BALTIMORE (AP) — Twenty-five prisoners previously considered unsatisfactory risks were released Wednesday under Maryland's new experimental parole program.

The program, approved last September by the Board of Public Works, is designed to relieve overcrowding in state institutions.

The 25 were serving not more than two years at the House of Correction and Reformatory for Males.

They previously were considered unfit for parole possibly because they were without job prospects or because of alcoholism, officials explained.

Prisoners with terms of less than a year who have served over half their time, but who are yet to become eligible for release with credit for good behavior, also will be included in the experiment later.

Since approval of the program, the Board of Parole and Probation has added a number of parole officers. Each will have a case load of not more than 50 men, which will permit closer supervision.

Traffic Safety Meeting Held

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission called together about 175 military and civilian law enforcement officers here Wednesday in an effort to curb highway deaths in the coming Yuletide season.

The group include State Superintendent Elmer Munshower, Lt. Col. Lehman J. Lewis, provost marshal at Fort Meade; representatives of schools, and the State Department of Education.

The conferees discussed the possibilities of an upsurge in highway accidents during the Christmas-New Year's season caused by servicemen on leave, students returning home, and the large numbers of holiday drivers on the road.

Gov. McKeldin urged the conference to start a special traffic safety campaign for the holidays and to keep it in force throughout the new year.

He made his proposals in a paper read to the meeting by Secretary of State Claude B. Hellmann.

Limping Bank Bandit Given 25-Year Sentence

BALTIMORE (AP) — Benjamin Glenn Barney was sentenced to 25 years in prison Wednesday for robbing a suburban Washington bank despite his attorney's plea that polio in his childhood and auto injuries had impaired his mentality.

The 28-year-old Saginaw, Mich. man pleaded guilty to a five-count indictment charging that he was the limping bandit who held up the Marlow Heights Branch of the First National Bank of Southern Maryland last July 16 and fled with $30,566.

Judge R. Dorsey Watkins, in imposing sentence, said "it must be perfectly clear that there will be no open season on bank employes in this state."

Barney was identified as the gunman who tricked the bank manager, G. Robert Sellner, into giving him a ride on his way to work, then pulled a gun and forced him to drive to the bank and open the vault.

The slightly-built Barney was arrested by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents at Laredo, Tex. Aug. 20 as he was expelled from Mexico. The FBI said he had undergone plastic surgery on his face after the holdup to escape detection.

U.S. Atty. Leon H. A. Pierson said that $25,246 of the loot has been recovered. Of the total, $1,715 was found on Barney, $8,460 was in a Los Angeles safe deposit box, $2,392 in a bank account, $10,099 in the trunk of a Cadillac found at the Los Angeles airport, plus $4,295 Barney used to buy the car.

Defense Attorney Alan H. Murrell said Barney had an inferiority complex because one leg had been left shorter by the polio attack. He once had tried to have the short limb amputated, Murrell said.

Murrell said that several days after a physician refused to remove the leg Barney went to Detroit and held up three hotels on successive nights. As a result he was placed on probation for three years.

Murrell told the court that Barney suffered a fractured skull and was unconscious for several days after an automobile accident in 1955. Since that time, he was unable to hold on to a job, the attorney said.

On the day of the Marlow Heights robbery, Barney feigned motor trouble with a rented car. He waved off other motorists until Seliner came along, police said, and then got the ride to the bank.

Maryland School Fire Safety Check Shows No 'Bad Spots'

BALTIMORE (AP)—Maryland's chief fire investigator said Wednesday that this year's fire safety check of Maryland schools has so far turned up no "bad spots."

John J. Meyers said Maryland is steadily weeding out sub-standard schools.

There are schools in remote sections of some counties, he said, that still have all-frame interior construction. But "there are very, very few of these and counties are getting away from them as fast as taxes permit."

Meyers is chief fire investigator in the office of Charles S. Jackson, who is State Insurance Commissioner and Fire Marshal.

Meyers' division inspects schools in all but Prince Georges, Montgomery, Baltimore, Wicomico and Anne Arundel Counties and Baltimore and Cumberland. They have their own fire marshals.

Meyers was asked for an outline of Maryland's fire safety program in the wake of the tragic Chicago school fire that took 90 lives.

Meyers has five men working full time inspecting schools. He said the regular annual inspection has been completed on the Eastern Shore, Western Maryland and in Harford County in schools covered by his office. The inspection is currently under way in Howard County.

In addition to the regular inspections, Meyers said his men are "in and out of the schools" periodically during the year, especially in areas where follow-up checks are needed. Some schools are checked once a month. Some as many as six to eight times a year, Meyers said.

"If we find anything bad we immediately get in touch with the county superintendent of schools and recommend changes," he said.

"We have received 100 per cent cooperation," from the superintendents, he said.

He said detailed reports on each school are turned over to the school superintendent and discussed with them and a copy goes to the State Department of Education in Baltimore.

All schools built in Maryland in the last 12 to 15 years are of "semi-fireproof construction with inside fire escapes," Meyers said. The escapes are of steel and concrete and have fire doors top and bottom.

If a really dangerous school is found it could be ordered closed if the situation warrants, Meyers said.

In addition to inspections by his men, Meyers said, volunteer fire departments around the State have a keen interest in school fire safety and make frequent visits to schools.

Tree Farmer Is Indicted

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—A Maryland tree farmer is accused of illegally transporting Canadian woodcutters to his farm to save money on labor.

Six woodcutters also were indicted by a federal grand jury Tuesday. They are charged on misdemeanor counts of giving false information at the Rouses Point border station of the immigration service.

Bruno Maisonneuve of Ironsides, Md., was named in felony indictment charging that he transported groups of woodcutters on two occasions.

U. S. Atty. Theodore F. Bowes said Maisonneuve had driven the men from their homes to the border, then picked them up again on this side of the border and drove them to Maryland to cut wood for paper pulp. The men told immigration officers they were just going visiting in the United States, Bowes said.

Three of the Canadians were arrested at the tree farm Oct. 30. Maisonneuve and the four others were arrested at Ogdensburg, just this side of the border, Nov. 10.

Maisonneuve is free on bail. The Canadians, except for a juvenile, are in jail here. They are expected to be arraigned next week.

Maryland's 1958 Highway Death Toll Reaches 449

By The Associated Press

Maryland's highway death count for 1958 climbed to 449 Wednesday.

Mrs. Dorothy Ward, 42, of Baltimore, died of head injuries suffered in a seven-car accident on rain-swept U.S. 40 near the Patapsco River bridge in Howard County. Two other persons were injured in the pile-up.

William H. Donoway of Parsonsburg died Tuesday night in a Salisbury hospital of injuries suffered when his pick-up truck overturned on Shavox road a mile south of Parsonsburg.

The 449 deaths recorded to date compare with 518 at the same time last year.

Six Children Rescued From Burning Homes

BALTIMORE (AP) — Six children, all unconscious, were rescued from their burning homes Wednesday after being trapped on upper floors by dense smoke.

Three of the Negro children were reported in serious condition at St. Joseph's Hospital. The others were treated for smoke inhalation and released.

A 6-year-old boy trapped on the second floor of one of the adjoining homes leaped 15 feet to safety into the waiting arms of a passerby.

Two babes-in-arms were carried out by older children before firemen arrived. Firemen and policemen brought the others out of the three-story building.

Admitted to the hospital were three children of Mrs. Corinne Bell, Janice, 2, Catherine, 3 and Patricia, 4.

Three small children of Mrs. Veronica Johnson were released after treatment.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

25 Prisoners Freed Under New Program

BALTIMORE (AP) — Twenty-five prisoners previously considered unsatisfactory risks were released Wednesday under Maryland's new experimental parole program.

The program, approved last September by the Board of Public Works, is designed to relieve overcrowding in state institutions.

The 25 were serving not more than two years at the House of Correction and Reformatory for Males.

They previously were considered unfit for parole possibly because they were without job prospects or because of alcoholism, officials explained.

Prisoners with terms of less than a year who have served over half their time, but who are yet to become eligible for release with credit for good behavior, also will be included in the experiment later.

Since approval of the program, the Board of Parole and Probation has added a number of parole officers. Each will have a case load of not more than 50 men, which will permit closer supervision.

Traffic Safety Meeting Held

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission called together about 175 military and civilian law enforcement officers here Wednesday in an effort to curb highway deaths in the coming Yuletide season.

The group include State Superintendent Elmer Munshower, Lt. Col. Lehman J. Lewis, provost marshal at Fort Meade; representatives of schools, and the State Department of Education.

The conferees discussed the possibilities of an upsurge in highway accidents during the Christmas-New Year's season caused by servicemen on leave, students returning home, and the large numbers of holiday drivers on the road.

Gov. McKeldin urged the conference to start a special traffic safety campaign for the holidays and to keep it in force throughout the new year.

He made his proposals in a paper read to the meeting by Secretary of State Claude B. Hellmann.

Limping Bank Bandit Given 25-Year Sentence

BALTIMORE (AP) — Benjamin Glenn Barney was sentenced to 25 years in prison Wednesday for robbing a suburban Washington bank despite his attorney's plea that polio in his childhood and auto injuries had impaired his mentality.

The 28-year-old Saginaw, Mich. man pleaded guilty to a five-count indictment charging that he was the limping bandit who held up the Marlow Heights Branch of the First National Bank of Southern Maryland last July 16 and fled with $30,566.

Judge R. Dorsey Watkins, in imposing sentence, said "it must be perfectly clear that there will be no open season on bank employes in this state."

Barney was identified as the gunman who tricked the bank manager, G. Robert Sellner, into giving him a ride on his way to work, then pulled a gun and forced him to drive to the bank and open the vault.

The slightly-built Barney was arrested by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents at Laredo, Tex. Aug. 20 as he was expelled from Mexico. The FBI said he had undergone plastic surgery on his face after the holdup to escape detection.

U.S. Atty. Leon H. A. Pierson said that $25,246 of the loot has been recovered. Of the total, $1,715 was found on Barney, $8,460 was in a Los Angeles safe deposit box, $2,392 in a bank account, $10,099 in the trunk of a Cadillac found at the Los Angeles airport, plus $4,295 Barney used to buy the car.

Defense Attorney Alan H. Murrell said Barney had an inferiority complex because one leg had been left shorter by the polio attack. He once had tried to have the short limb amputated, Murrell said.

Murrell said that several days after a physician refused to remove the leg Barney went to Detroit and held up three hotels on successive nights. As a result he was placed on probation for three years.

Murrell told the court that Barney suffered a fractured skull and was unconscious for several days after an automobile accident in 1955. Since that time, he was unable to hold on to a job, the attorney said.

On the day of the Marlow Heights robbery, Barney feigned motor trouble with a rented car. He waved off other motorists until Seliner came along, police said, and then got the ride to the bank.

Beryl Man Is Sentenced In Petty Larceny Case

The first in a series of thefts at Luke on property of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and the Western Maryland Railway has been solved.

Lt. Bernard F. Bealky of the Western Division detachment of the railroad police department said one Beryl man was given a six-month sentence for petty larceny in the Mineral County Jail, Keyser, while a 15-year-old boy is being held under $500 bond for the January term of Mineral County Circuit Court.

Edward Gordon, 26, was given the six-month term by Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle for the theft of 11 steel plates from flat cars in the Western Maryland's West Virginia Central Junction yards.

The case was cracked through the teamwork of railroad and paper company officers and West Virginia and Maryland State Police.

Lt. Bealky said he and Sgt. H. W. Davis of the railroad police went to the Luke Mill when the heavy steel plates were reported stolen from flat cars in the yards.

The railroad cars, used by the paper company, haul unpressed pulp wood from the mill over the Western Maryland tracks to the firm's loading yard for storage.

After unloading, they are stored for several hours on railroad property. By the time they reached the mill, the plates would be gone.

Lt. Bealky said he and Davis made a check of junk yards in the tri-towns area and found 11 of the plates in a junk yard owned by John Armentrout, 29, of Beryl.

Cpl. Evan Moody of the Keyser Detachment of State Police joined the two railroad officers and took a statement from Armentrout. The latter said he purchased them from two men driving a grey, 1949 car.

Finally, after they had tried to locate this car, Lt. Bealky said, Armentrout changed his story and identified Gordon and the youth as the ones he paid $7 for the plates valued at $150. Armentrout notified Maryland Trooper Milton Hart of his story change.

With Trooper Robert Noechel of the Keyser Detachment, Lt. Bealky and Sgt. Davis, together with Walter Riley, head of the mill's plant detective force, took Gordon and the youth into custody.

The man admitted taking the plates from the cars on railroad property, and said he drove the truck that Armentrout allowed him to borrow, Lt. Bealky said.

The officer said charges against Armentrout are pending.

School Buses Are Rated Good In Inspection

The results of the last week's inspection of the fleet of 103 buses and ten passenger cars used to transport over 6,000 Allegany County public school children to classes each day were the best in the history of inspections in the county.

This report was made yesterday by Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of transportation for the Board of Education.

Of the 103 buses checked, 85 of them or 82½ per cent, were found to meet all safety requirements. All ten passenger cars inspected had the same record.

Ramey pointed out that of the 18 remaining buses which had some item not approved, 11 of them had minor troubles, such as faulty spotlights, tail lights or clearance lights.

Of the seven others, two had defects in steering mechanisms, and five had defects in the exhaust systems. As for the five, only two had leaks while the other three needed brackets for the pipes.

Ramey, in pointing to the excellent record made by the school bus contractors last Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, said the number of perfect faultless vehicles usually runs from 65 to 70.

Ramey was assisted in the inspection by Lester Brenneman, Frostburg mechanic, and Walter Jones, of the State Department of Motor Vehicles.

D. C. Ballet Has Share Of Troubles

The Washington Ballet Troupe has its troubles making trips between the nation's capital and Wheeling.

Saturday night, icy and practically impassable Route 40 forced the 43 members of the troupe to find lodging in Grantsville as they were returning from an engagement in Wheeling.

Then Sunday after dropping off the dancers at the Washington Ballet School at 3515 Wisconsin Avenue, N. W., in the District of Columbia, the bus got stuck for two hours.

While backing down the incline, in front of the school, the rear bumper dug into the street. The forward pair of rear wheels which supply the power were suspended in the air. After two hours and some help from a service truck, the bus drove away.

Last summer, the troupe narrowly avoided a serious accident on Route 40 on its way back from Wheeling when its bus skidded off the National Highway and down a cliff. Everyone escaped unhurt.

Pence Plans To Take Part In Meetings

Robert E. Pence, supervisor of physical education for the Allegany County Board of Education, will participate in three meetings during the coming week.

Saturday as chairman he will preside at a session of the committee appointed by the State Department of Education to make plans for the state high school basketball tournament.

Then, because of his instituting the physical fitness program in county schools, he has been invited to attend the National Conference for Physical Fitness in Secondary Schools.

This meeting will be held Sunday through Thursday at the Willard Hotel in Washington. Pence said he plans to attend the session for city and county supervisors.

The national unit has been established to recommend ways of strengthening secondary school programs in the areas of health, safety, physical education, recreation, athletics, driver training and outdoor recreation, he pointed out.

Today, as a member of the Governor's Committee on Physical Education, he will attend a session of that body in Baltimore.

Iser, Bryant Face Prison Breach Charges

Charges of breach of prison will be placed against Howard M. Iser, 37-year-old local man, and Robert C. Bryant, 18-year-old Westernport youth, who escaped last month from the Allegany County jail.

Officials at the state's attorney's office yesterday said the charges will be preferred, adding that neither of the returned escapees has asked for an immediate hearing.

Spokesmen pointed out that Bryant will have completed a 90-day sentence at the end of this month on a charge of unauthorized use of an automobile. A warrant will be served on Bryant and he will be charged at the January term of Circuit Court, it was explained.

Iser's status depends on Sheriff Edward R. Muir since the sheriff can have him taken to the state penitentiary for safekeeping. His escape was made while he was awaiting an appeal from a 10-year sentence for armed robbery. In the event that he remains in jail here, Iser will also be charged with breach of prison at the January term of court.

Iser was questioned further yesterday by County Investigator Edwin R. Lilya, who said Iser has indicated he may drop his appeal.

D. C. Ballet Has Share Of Troubles

The Washington Ballet Troupe has its troubles making trips between the nation's capital and Wheeling.

Saturday night, icy and practically impassable Route 40 forced the 43 members of the troupe to find lodging in Grantsville as they were returning from an engagement in Wheeling.

Then Sunday after dropping off the dancers at the Washington Ballet School at 3515 Wisconsin Avenue, N. W., in the District of Columbia, the bus got stuck for two hours.

While backing down the incline, in front of the school, the rear bumper dug into the street. The forward pair of rear wheels which supply the power were suspended in the air. After two hours and some help from a service truck, the bus drove away.

Last summer, the troupe narrowly avoided a serious accident on Route 40 on its way back from Wheeling when its bus skidded off the National Highway and down a cliff. Everyone escaped unhurt.

But after spending all night in freezing temperatures, the monkey decided that freedom in the cold, cold outside world wasn't worthwhile.

Pence Plans To Take Part In Meetings

Robert E. Pence, supervisor of physical education for the Allegany County Board of Education, will participate in three meetings during the coming week.

Saturday as chairman he will preside at a session of the committee appointed by the State Department of Education to make plans for the state high school basketball tournament.

Then, because of his instituting the physical fitness program in county schools, he has been invited to attend the National Conference for Physical Fitness in Secondary Schools.

This meeting will be held Sunday through Thursday at the Willard Hotel in Washington. Pence said he plans to attend the session for city and county supervisors.

The national unit has been established to recommend ways of strengthening secondary school programs in the areas of health, safety, physical education, recreation, athletics, driver training and outdoor recreation, he pointed out.

Today, as a member of the Governor's Committee on Physical Education, he will attend a session of that body in Baltimore.

Iser, Bryant Face Prison Breach Charges

Charges of breach of prison will be placed against Howard M. Iser, 37-year-old local man, and Robert C. Bryant, 18-year-old Westernport youth, who escaped last month from the Allegany County jail.

Officials at the state's attorney's office yesterday said the charges will be preferred, adding that neither of the returned escapees has asked for an immediate hearing.

Spokesmen pointed out that Bryant will have completed a 90-day sentence at the end of this month on a charge of unauthorized use of an automobile. A warrant will be served on Bryant and he will be charged at the January term of Circuit Court, it was explained.

Iser's status depends on Sheriff Edward R. Muir since the sheriff can have him taken to the state penitentiary for safekeeping. His escape was made while he was awaiting an appeal from a 10-year sentence for armed robbery. In the event that he remains in jail here, Iser will also be charged with breach of prison at the January term of court.

Iser was questioned further yesterday by County Investigator Edwin R. Lilya, who said Iser has indicated he may drop his appeal.

Local Judges Are Attending State Meeting

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris and Associate Judges Neil C. Fraley, of Garrett County, and D. Kenneth McLaughlin, of Washington County are attending a two-day session of the judiciary of Maryland in Baltimore.

In conjunction with the judicial session, the Maryland Bar Association will meet Friday and Saturday in Baltimore with many of the jurists throughout the state staying over for this program.

One of the important subjects at the Bar Association meeting will come up Friday when a panel discussion will be held on the proposal to form a special Court of Appeals to help take some of the work load off the present Maryland Court of Appeals.

Delegate Noel Speir Cook said he will attend the bar group panel discussion as he is a member of the judiciary committee on the House and the matter may come up before this committee in the next session of the General Assembly.

Such a change in the Court of Appeals setup would require a constitutional amendment and would be on the ballot in the next general election in 1960, in the event it receives approval of the Legislature.

Proponents of the special Appeals Court say the caseload of the five-man high court is too burdensome and something should be done to alleviate the problem.

12 Residents Placed On Voting List

Since the registration books were reopened by the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors on November 20 there have been 12 voters who have signed up.

Four of the persons who registered were in their early 20s and were signing up for the first time. Three voters were in their 40s and two were in their 50s and one was 65 years of age.

The registration was even with both Democrats and Republicans gaining six new voters. Seven of the registrants were men and five women.

In addition to the persons who registered, 14 other voters came in to have their voting places changed to the areas where they have moved.

Political leaders are watching the new registrations carefully to determine the effect of the Democratic sweep nationally on possible changes in party affiliation.

Prior to the last primary and general election the Democrats had one of their best years in signing up voters in their party.

The Election Board is open daily Monday through Friday from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. and from 9 a. m. to noon on Saturdays.

Local Church Plans Tridium

St. Mary's Catholic Church will conduct a tridium, three days of special prayer, for the women of the parish, beginning Friday and ending Sunday.

Rev. Charles Bogan, pastor, said the services will be held daily at 7:30 p. m. and will include sermons each day by Rev. Regis F. Larkin, assistant pastor of St. Michael's Church of Frostburg. Novena prayers and benediction will conclude the services.

The tridium has been planned in preparation for the feast of the patron of the parish, which will be observed December 8, the feast of the Immaculate Conception, and a holy day of obligation for Catholics.

The tridium, Father Bogan said, will also mark the closing of the centenary year of the apparition of the Blessed Mother at Lourdes.

All girls and women of the parish will be enlisted in the parish sodality during the tridium, the pastor said.

Will The Hospitals Need Machinists?

A machine shop complete with high quality lathes, drills, milling machines, grinders and other necessities of a metal-working shop may seem like an incongruous addition to a hospital. But the necessity of replacing human organs with man-made substitutes coupled with the technical knowledge to accomplish this feat may make metal-working shops an important part of hospitals of the future.

Among the first surgeons to utilize the services of a master machinist in replacing worn out or damaged parts of the human machine are those affiliated with Western Reserve University's medical school in Cleveland, O. A machine shop in the basement of the building turns out made-to-order parts ranging from an aorta shunt —a device used to bypass the arterial stem of the heart while its human counterpart is being repaired—to kidney pumps and bladder valves.

Working without blueprints, and often with only a telephoned description to work on, the machine shop turns out many varied parts of the human anatomy, in addition to special surgical instruments and other paraphernalia peculiar to a hospital. Among the latter are several of its own invention, including a mechanical test tube shaker for nurses who make blood counts.

Man-made body organs and parts cannot be construed as equal to the original, but until complete and more successful transplanting of human tissues is possible, the machined parts may save many lives.

It is an interesting coincidence that the machine age, upon which many doctors blame the failings of human organs, should be responsible for their replacement as well. One can easily imagine post-operative patients of the future discussing the mechanical complexities of their metallic innards.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Six Years Of What?

I heard a man say, with full sincerity, that no matter what else has happened, we have had six years of peace.

What then is peace? If we have to have a budget of $80,000,000,000, most of which must be spent on military activities, are we at peace? If Soviet Russia makes war on us by new methods, are we at peace? Because we do not know how to use the new methods, or dare not use them if we do know how, are we at peace? If we have to send Marines to Lebanon and the Navy to Quemoy and are now prepared to send ground forces to protect Berlin, are we at peace?

It is essential to read "Wedemeyer Reports!", one of the most significant books in recent years, by General Albert C. Wedemeyer, really to grasp what has happened to this nation. This conversation between Wedemeyer and Pat Hurley is pertinent:

". . . One evening, when we were having a discussion about a certain individual and his loyalty to our effort in the area, Hurley said, 'When you have lived as long as I have, Al, you will learn not to trust anyone until he has proved worthy of your trust.' I thought that over for a minute. Then I said, 'But, Pat, I have always worked on the exact opposite theory. I believe in trusting people until they prove unworthy of my trust.' I developed the thought a little further, pointing out that it had been my experience that if you expect people to measure up to a certain standard and to give loyal and effective service, they will as a rule not disappoint you. I said to Pat: 'It seems to bring out the best in them.' "

Wedemeyer soon enough learned how mistaken he was. He tells that reading through reports from a number of State Department experts, ". . . it seems obvious not only that their sympathies lay with the Chinese Communists, but also that they were either consciously or unwittingly disseminating exaggerated or false, Communist-inspired, reports concerning the Nationalist Government designed to stir up all manner of Sino-American distrust . . ." If a nation cannot depend upon its own servants and officials to gather and tell the truth, it is bound to be fooled and tricked. During the war years, Wedemeyer says:

"We in the War Plans Division . . . had no voice as compared with that of the representatives of foreign countries, in particular Britain and Russia, who were dealing direct with the 'Palace Guard' in their demands for urgent deliveries of munitions and Lend-Lease aid. It soon became obvious that we must have some way of procuring armament and equipment for our own forces, then being mobilized, if U. S. production were not to be given away to all and sundry claimants on our bounty."

This was undoubtedly one of the most serious betrayals of the United States. He adds:

". . . Again and again, both before and after our involvement in the Second World War, General Marshall, his staff, and in particular those of us working in the War Plans Division, realized that American interests were being jeopardized by President Roosevelt's policy of extending all possible aid to any nation fighting 'those foes which the United States also recognized as enemies.' . . . President Roosevelt was the final arbiter and his coterie of advisers, in particular Harry Hopkins, had final authority concerning the allocation of war materiel as it flowed in ever increasing quantities from American factories. Congress had no power to control the mushrooming wartime agencies . . ."

This is no political attack. President Roosevelt is dead and the memoirs of the men who served with him will each add to or detract from his stature as an historical figure. Wedemeyer is retired and is not running for public office. His services in developing American strategy during the war go down in history for what they are worth. But this is so: that the more we read of the material that is being written farther away from personal relationships and personal ambitions, the more it is clear that the genesis of our present difficulties and of a Cold War that has outlasted any war in which we have been engaged is to be found in the errors and betrayals during the World War II period.

'Have To Put It Somewhere, Sam'

More On Kasper's Hate Movement: Admiral Crommelin For President

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's note—Drew Pearson today continuues his revelations of underground hate groups).

WASHINGTON—A dirty-collar crowd of hate peddlers recently drifted into Louisville's Liberty Hall, barred all outsiders from their third-floor meeting room and staged a hootin', hollerin' hate revival.

The bizarre affair was billed as a "closed convention" of the National States Rights Party, called by Louisville chiropractor Dr. Edward Fields. He brought together the nation's leading racial agitators to unite in a common crusade against minority groups.

This column can now report what happened behind those closed doors.

The hero of the motley crowd was tall, scowling John Kasper who was given a standing, stomping ovation every time his name was mentioned. He delivered the main speech, opening up with a snarling attack on Knoxville's Judge Robert Taylor who had sentenced him to jail after he incited riots in Clinton, Tenn.

"Hanging is too good for him!" Kasper denounced the judge. "In the old days, he would have been hanged, then taken down and drawn and quartered. And then they would have hoisted him on pikes above the city walls and let the crows eat on him three or four weeks."

Against Violence

Kasper next launched into a tirade against the Jews who, he charged, were behind dope rackets, corrupt labor unions, and school integration. He claimed that Jews control Congress, the Supreme Court, and "Ike the Kike" Eisenhower.

"When we knock down the Jews, we won't have any more Negro problem, that's for sure!" Kasper bellowed.

He tried to explain away his own past association with Negroes in New York's Greenwich Village where he once threw interracial parties and dated Negro girls.

"I used to think all our problems would be solved if every nigger would kill a kike," he explained. "That is what I was doing working with them in New York. But I find that I overestimated the nigger mind."

After confessing this murderous scheme, Kasper blandly insisted he was against violence.

"I don't believe in violence, chiefly because I don't think we can win that way," he said. "When we had our meeting in Nashville last fall, we had a crowd of about 10,000 people, and they were ready to go. If I had said, 'Come on, let's go clean out nigger town', they'd have gone. It would have been one of the biggest mass murders in history. But we didn't do that. We just wanted to do things the legal way."

Kasper also paid his respects to Governors "Happy" Chandler of Kentucky and Frank Clement of Tennessee.

"Happy Chandler and Frank Clement are in a contest," he snorted, "to see which one can outnigger the other one."

Later in the proceedings, Kasper introduced a New York associte, J. Dan Kurts, who began a long harangue about this being a Christian country and the Jews ought to be kicked out. Then he made a tactical error; he mentioned that he was a Catholic.

Anti-Catholicism

Apparently he didn't realize that the anti-Jewish, anti-Negro crowd was also anti-Catholic. For his announcement was greeted with disapproving scowls and impatient shuffling.

In the back of the room, Dr. Fields gestured vigorously to Kasper to make the old man sit down. But Kurts talked on. Finally Kasper handed him his pipe. The old man took the hint, clamped the pipe in his overextended mouth, and sadly took his seat.

Kasper and Fields appealed to the assembled agitators to step up their political activity, organize every precinct and make their movement a powerful political force. They nominated retired Adm. John Crommelin, onetime hero of the Navy brass for leaking secret information against the Air Force, as the National States Rights Party's candidate for President.

At one point, someone called for the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Everyone dutifully arose and recited the pledge. But half of them gave the stiff-arm, heil-Hitler salute.

Note: The group has adopted the lightning-bolt insignia of the defunct Columbians, a storm-trooper outfit that was broken up by the government in 1946. They have formed a united front bringing under one banner the hate movement's professional agitators, disgruntled disciples, and assorted crackpots.

The Responsibility For The Federal Budget

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — What would be thought of a man who kept on borrowing money and never paid back a dollar of it?

What shall be thought of a government that keeps on borrowing billions over a period of years and has a bigger debt today than it has ever had at any time in its history?

The annual interest now amounts to one-tenth of the United States budget. It adds up to between $7.5 and $8 billion a year. This interest payment will continue to grow unless somehow there is a beginning made toward reducing the principal.

It will be said that governments never pay off their debt. That's true. What they do instead is to cheat the citizen by devaluing whatever the purchasing power of the monetary unit happens to be.

If the millions of citizens who are thus being cheated understood it, they would not regard "inflation" as just a big word whose meaning they don't know. They would realize they are being robbed of their savings.

Today the dollar is worth 28 cents in comparison with what it was at the turn of the century 58 years ago.

In terms of 1930 values — when the public debt had been reduced to about $16 billion — the dollar today is worth 58 cents.

In terms of the dollar of 1939—just two years before America's entrance into World War II — the present dollar is worth only 48 cents.

This is a shrinkage of more than half the purchasing power of the American dollar in a period of less than 20 years.

It's true that two world wars and the Korean war have materially increased the public debt. But that's not the reason it is bigger today than when the Korean war spending was at its height in 1951 and 1952. Actually, non-defense spending has also gone up very rapidly. The politicians in both parties have been insisting that the nation can afford "guns and butter, too."

The Tax Foundation, Inc., of which Roswell Magill, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, is chairman, says in its November review that the "widely held" impression that defense spending is responsible for the growth of the public debt in recent years is inaccurate. It is pointed out that current expenses for defense are $350,000,000 less than they were in 1954, whereas non-defense spending is up $12 billion higher tha six years ago.

The President doesn't control the purse strings. Congress has the final word. One of the illusions spread generally is that the Chief Executive is responsible for the budget. He may suggest and recommend, but Congress writes the appropriation bills.

As long as Congress thinks the public wants more and more spending on what is generally called "welfare" or social benefits, the tendency will be to spend more and more and send the public debt higher and higher.

But who is going to be cheated? There are in America more than 15,000,000 citizens who are 65 years old or over. Of these, 11,640,000 are receiving benefits of some kind from government. An additional 1,500,000 get "old-age" income from private pensions, annuities or interest or dividends on savings invested for retirement. Even allowing for some duplication, this is a sizable number.

Then there are the persons below the age of 65 — the widows and orphans — who are dependant on fixed incomes from insurance policies or death-benefit funds. As the dollar fluctuates, these persons lose purchasing power each year.

The number of human beings affected directly or indirectly by the cheating process, whereby dollars originally saved are curtailed in purchasing power, may amount to at least 30,000,000 persons.

The Congress has never felt the pressure it should from these voters because they are unorganized. But someday the citizens will know where to put the blame for the drop in the purchasing power of the dollar, and they will express their opposition to the policy of "guns and butter, too."

Defense is all-important for national safety. Luxuries and extravagances are not so essential. Yet the lobbies in Congress for bigger and better welfare appropriations are very powerful. The Democratic Party today has to accept the responsibility for the budget because, no matter what the President suggests, it is the Congress that must decide on how much shall be spent.

New Kremlin Line

By Joseph Alsop

BAGHDAD, Iraq.

Despite the romance of its name and past, this squalid, teeming, mud-colored city has always been one of the dreariest capitals of the Arab lands. It is no less dreary now. But now Baghdad is vividly, even painfully interesting, as the place where you can see the Kremlin's new Middle Eastern line.

The Kremlin's adoption of a ne Middle Eastern strategy is a less dramatic development than the Kremlin's power play at Berlin. Yet it is comparable, all the same, for it is another striking proof of the Kremlin's growing boldness.

The essence of the change of strategy is simple. Formerly the Soviets supported and worked through Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser. Nasser's Arab nationalist movement was, so to say, the dagger the Soviets hoped to plunge into the West's soft belly. For this purpose, the Communist parties in all Arab countries were formerly ordered to serve under Nasser's command, as mere auxiliaries in his movement.

This system of using Nasser as the sole instrument of Soviet purposes in this area has now been abandoned. The Arab Communist parties are waging their own, wholly independent struggle for power, without regard to Nasser, and even in opposition to Nasser. Here in Iraq, for instance, the Communists are energetically working to transform the revolutionary Prime Minister, Brigadier Abdel Karim Kassem, into the Kremlin's Pasha, as responsive to Moscow's promptings as Nuri used to be responsive to the promptings of London.

The change in the Kremlin line was first revealed in Syria, in the coup d'etat at Damascus in the summer of 1957. The subsequent Syrian maneuver that produced the United Arab Republic was to contain and if possible destroy the growing power of the Syrian Communists, by merging Syria with Egypt.

Here in Baghdad, however, the Kremlin's new line has been much more boldly and frankly revealed. From the moment when the old government was upset, the pro-Nasser Arab nationalists actively agitated to merge Iraq with Egypt on the Syrian pattern. And from the same moment, the Communists opposed the Nasserites.

After the revolution, the Nasser underground and the Communist underground were the only political organizations with any strength in the bazars. Their conflict reached the stage of armed clashes more than once; but finally the Nasserites were roundly defeated. The end came with the arrest of Nasser's excitable supporter, the number two leader of the revolution, Colonel Abdel Salam Aref. The Nasserites have now yielded to the Communists, in effect acknowledging their enemies superior strength by rejoining the so-called "National Front" of revolutionary parties.

As one could see when the reestablishment of the "National Front" was celebrated here, the Communists now control the city crowds. The huge demonstration in one of the local parks was quite obviously organized by the Communists, almost single handed. By the same token, after the Nasserite forces announced a boycott, the Communists recently swept the elections in the Iraqi student unions. In the same manner, they are expected to gain control of the labor unions that are now being formed.

Most important of all, the Kremlin is carrying on an amazingly bold, even flagrant propaganda campaign among the non-Arab Kurds. Money is being spent. Arms are being sent to the Kurds from the Soviet Union (in addition to the arms previously sent by Nasser from Syria). The Kurds are being encouraged to hope for a "greater Kurdistan," including huge chunks of both Turkey and Iran. The organizer of all this is the Kurdish Communist agent, the Mullah Mustafa Barzani, who weaves his webs nowadays from the Semiramis Hotel here in Baghdad.

The agitation among the Kurds is so important for two reasons. On the one hand, the Kurds will be harder to control than a mere city crowd. On the other hand, almost all of Iraq's mineral resources, and especially the vital oil sources, are in predominantly Kurdish Northern Iraq.

Such is the progress that the Communists have already made outside the government. Inside the government, they have also made progress in three different ways. In the first place, they have posed and are still posing as the most enthusiastic supporters of Brigadier Kassem, who wants Iraq to be independent of Nassar for his own, quite different reasons. They gave Kassem valuable support during the crisis caused by Colonel Aref. Leading Communists are endlessly singing their siren songs to the Prime Minister at this moment.

In the second place, Communists now occupy at least one and probably two or three key ministerial posts. Thirdly, the Communist and Communist-sympathizing ministers are doing their best to create opportunities for Soviet and satellite technicians to enter Iraq in uncontrolled mobs, to run the new projects planned under Iraq's stepped up development program, to exploit formerly under-exploited oil concessions, and so on.

Altogether, the Communist effor here is very formidable indeed. Yet a visit to Baghdad is an oddly cheering experience. As already recorded, Brigadier Kassem does not look like the kind of man who will consent in the end to be the Kremlin's Nurio Anci, as will be shown, Kassem can still master the Communists just as he mastered the Nasserites, if he decides to do so before it is too late.

How School Children's Colds Get Around

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A school child may be responsible for a sudden increase in the number of colds at home. The youngster acquires the sniffles from classmates, and within 24 to 48 hours Mom and the younger brothers and sisters complain of a sore throat and begin to sneeze or cough. There is a 50 per cent chance that Dad will escape because he spends less time at home and is not as close to the youngsters.

The relationship between school and colds is not always understood. Parents often brag about the resistance of their eldest child to infection. The situation changes as soon as he goes to kindergarten, where he comes into contact with youngsters from all walks of life. Before long Junior comes home with a running nose or sore throat and passes on the infection to his younger brothers and sisters.

When this occurs to the two year old at home several times during the year, the mother may think the tyke is unusually susceptible to colds and is not as strong as his older brother. She does not realize that the first born did not have to contend with hand-me-down bacteria and viruses.

This problem will be with us until a suitable vaccine or other prophylaxis is developed. The child with a full-blown respiratory infection is highly contagious and should stay home. But the same youngster may have been more contagious the day before symptoms appeared, because the causative organisms exist in the respiratory secretions for 24 hours before the onset of symptoms.

Other possibilities exist. A pupil may go to school at 9 a. m. and be sent home by 11 because of sniffling. The cold that developed in the interim was unpredicted, yet the entire class was exposed. Children are naturals when it comes to passing on or acquiring a cold. They are chummy — standing, sitting, and playing close together—and rarely stifle a cough or wash their hands after wiping the nose. They often use the towels and drinking glasses of classmates. Parents have an obligation to society to train them in the right way.

Many new cold remedies are available, including tablets and capsules that dry up the nasal secretions and relieve ache and cough. A wonder drug is not always used but when needed it should be taken according to directions and long enough to stamp out the infection.

KIDNEY TEST

K. W. writes: What does an NPN laboratory test determine?

REPLY

It offers a clue as to how the organs eliminate the by-products of food protein from the blood stream. When this material is not excreted, because the kidneys are not functioning properly, it accumulates in the blood and is detected by the NPN test.

MILK AND SPASTIC COLON

Yes. Persons with type O are considered universal donors.

SCRATCHY THROAT

Yes, provided your physician has made a thorough search of the scratchy area.

E. L. writes: My eyelids are red and the doctor says I have conjunctivitis. What causes this condition?

REPLY

Irritation or inflammation of the inner lining of the eye-lids. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on conjunctivitis.

Yes, but convulsions are more likely to occur in children. Headache, drowsiness, and stiff neck are the usual symptoms of encephalitis.

No. The body uses as much iron as it needs; the excess is not absorbed.

Will The Hospitals Need Machinists?

A machine shop complete with high quality lathes, drills, milling machines, grinders and other necessities of a metal-working shop may seem like an incongruous addition to a hospital. But the necessity of replacing human organs with man-made substitutes coupled with the technical knowledge to accomplish this feat may make metal-working shops an important part of hospitals of the future.

Among the first surgeons to utilize the services of a master machinist in replacing worn out or damaged parts of the human machine are those affiliated with Western Reserve University's medical school in Cleveland, O. A machine shop in the basement of the building turns out made-to-order parts ranging from an aorta shunt —a device used to bypass the arterial stem of the heart while its human counterpart is being repaired—to kidney pumps and bladder valves.

Working without blueprints, and often with only a telephoned description to work on, the machine shop turns out many varied parts of the human anatomy, in addition to special surgical instruments and other paraphernalia peculiar to a hospital. Among the latter are several of its own invention, including a mechanical test tube shaker for nurses who make blood counts.

Man-made body organs and parts cannot be construed as equal to the original, but until complete and more successful transplanting of human tissues is possible, the machined parts may save many lives.

It is an interesting coincidence that the machine age, upon which many doctors blame the failings of human organs, should be responsible for their replacement as well. One can easily imagine post-operative patients of the future discussing the mechanical complexities of their metallic innards.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Six Years Of What?

I heard a man say, with full sincerity, that no matter what else has happened, we have had six years of peace.

What then is peace? If we have to have a budget of $80,000,000,000, most of which must be spent on military activities, are we at peace? If Soviet Russia makes war on us by new methods, are we at peace? Because we do not know how to use the new methods, or dare not use them if we do know how, are we at peace? If we have to send Marines to Lebanon and the Navy to Quemoy and are now prepared to send ground forces to protect Berlin, are we at peace?

It is essential to read "Wedemeyer Reports!", one of the most significant books in recent years, by General Albert C. Wedemeyer, really to grasp what has happened to this nation. This conversation between Wedemeyer and Pat Hurley is pertinent:

". . . One evening, when we were having a discussion about a certain individual and his loyalty to our effort in the area, Hurley said, 'When you have lived as long as I have, Al, you will learn not to trust anyone until he has proved worthy of your trust.' I thought that over for a minute. Then I said, 'But, Pat, I have always worked on the exact opposite theory. I believe in trusting people until they prove unworthy of my trust.' I developed the thought a little further, pointing out that it had been my experience that if you expect people to measure up to a certain standard and to give loyal and effective service, they will as a rule not disappoint you. I said to Pat: 'It seems to bring out the best in them.' "

Wedemeyer soon enough learned how mistaken he was. He tells that reading through reports from a number of State Department experts, ". . . it seems obvious not only that their sympathies lay with the Chinese Communists, but also that they were either consciously or unwittingly disseminating exaggerated or false, Communist-inspired, reports concerning the Nationalist Government designed to stir up all manner of Sino-American distrust . . ." If a nation cannot depend upon its own servants and officials to gather and tell the truth, it is bound to be fooled and tricked. During the war years, Wedemeyer says:

"We in the War Plans Division . . . had no voice as compared with that of the representatives of foreign countries, in particular Britain and Russia, who were dealing direct with the 'Palace Guard' in their demands for urgent deliveries of munitions and Lend-Lease aid. It soon became obvious that we must have some way of procuring armament and equipment for our own forces, then being mobilized, if U. S. production were not to be given away to all and sundry claimants on our bounty."

This was undoubtedly one of the most serious betrayals of the United States. He adds:

". . . Again and again, both before and after our involvement in the Second World War, General Marshall, his staff, and in particular those of us working in the War Plans Division, realized that American interests were being jeopardized by President Roosevelt's policy of extending all possible aid to any nation fighting 'those foes which the United States also recognized as enemies.' . . . President Roosevelt was the final arbiter and his coterie of advisers, in particular Harry Hopkins, had final authority concerning the allocation of war materiel as it flowed in ever increasing quantities from American factories. Congress had no power to control the mushrooming wartime agencies . . ."

This is no political attack. President Roosevelt is dead and the memoirs of the men who served with him will each add to or detract from his stature as an historical figure. Wedemeyer is retired and is not running for public office. His services in developing American strategy during the war go down in history for what they are worth. But this is so: that the more we read of the material that is being written farther away from personal relationships and personal ambitions, the more it is clear that the genesis of our present difficulties and of a Cold War that has outlasted any war in which we have been engaged is to be found in the errors and betrayals during the World War II period.

'Have To Put It Somewhere, Sam'

The Responsibility For The Federal Budget

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — What would be thought of a man who kept on borrowing money and never paid back a dollar of it?

What shall be thought of a government that keeps on borrowing billions over a period of years and has a bigger debt today than it has ever had at any time in its history?

The annual interest now amounts to one-tenth of the United States budget. It adds up to between $7.5 and $8 billion a year. This interest payment will continue to grow unless somehow there is a beginning made toward reducing the principal.

It will be said that governments never pay off their debt. That's true. What they do instead is to cheat the citizen by devaluing whatever the purchasing power of the monetary unit happens to be.

If the millions of citizens who are thus being cheated understood it, they would not regard "inflation" as just a big word whose meaning they don't know. They would realize they are being robbed of their savings.

Today the dollar is worth 28 cents in comparison with what it was at the turn of the century 58 years ago.

In terms of 1930 values — when the public debt had been reduced to about $16 billion — the dollar today is worth 58 cents.

In terms of the dollar of 1939—just two years before America's entrance into World War II — the present dollar is worth only 48 cents.

This is a shrinkage of more than half the purchasing power of the American dollar in a period of less than 20 years.

More On Kasper's Hate Movement: Admiral Crommelin For President

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's note—Drew Pearson today continuues his revelations of underground hate groups).

WASHINGTON—A dirty-collar crowd of hate peddlers recently drifted into Louisville's Liberty Hall, barred all outsiders from their third-floor meeting room and staged a hootin', hollerin' hate revival.

The bizarre affair was billed as a "closed convention" of the National States Rights Party, called by Louisville chiropractor Dr. Edward Fields. He brought together the nation's leading racial agitators to unite in a common crusade against minority groups.

This column can now report what happened behind those closed doors.

The hero of the motley crowd was tall, scowling John Kasper who was given a standing, stomping ovation every time his name was mentioned. He delivered the main speech, opening up with a snarling attack on Knoxville's Judge Robert Taylor who had sentenced him to jail after he incited riots in Clinton, Tenn.

"Hanging is too good for him!" Kasper denounced the judge. "In the old days, he would have been hanged, then taken down and drawn and quartered. And then they would have hoisted him on pikes above the city walls and let the crows eat on him three or four weeks."

Against Violence

Kasper next launched into a tirade against the Jews who, he charged, were behind dope rackets, corrupt labor unions, and school integration. He claimed that Jews control Congress, the Supreme Court, and "Ike the Kike" Eisenhower.

"When we knock down the Jews, we won't have any more Negro problem, that's for sure!" Kasper bellowed.

He tried to explain away his own past association with Negroes in New York's Greenwich Village where he once threw interracial parties and dated Negro girls.

"I used to think all our problems would be solved if every nigger would kill a kike," he explained. "That is what I was doing working with them in New York. But I find that I overestimated the nigger mind."

After confessing this murderous scheme, Kasper blandly insisted he was against violence.

"I don't believe in violence, chiefly because I don't think we can win that way," he said. "When we had our meeting in Nashville last fall, we had a crowd of about 10,000 people, and they were ready to go. If I had said, 'Come on, let's go clean out nigger town', they'd have gone. It would have been one of the biggest mass murders in history. But we didn't do that. We just wanted to do things the legal way."

Kasper also paid his respects to Governors "Happy" Chandler of Kentucky and Frank Clement of Tennessee.

"Happy Chandler and Frank Clement are in a contest," he snorted, "to see which one can outnigger the other one."

Later in the proceedings, Kasper introduced a New York associate, J. Dan Kurts, who began a long harangue about this being a Christian country and the Jews ought to be kicked out. Then he made a tactical error; he mentioned that he was a Catholic.

Anti-Catholicism

Apparently he didn't realize that the anti-Jewish, anti-Negro crowd was also anti-Catholic. For his announcement was greeted with disapproving scowls and impatient shuffling.

In the back of the room, Dr. Fields gestured vigorously to Kasper to make the old man sit down. But Kurts talked on. Finally Kasper handed him his pipe. The old man took the hint, clamped the pipe in his overextended mouth, and sadly took his seat.

Kasper and Fields appealed to the assembled agitators to step up their political activity, organize every precinct and make their movement a powerful political force. They nominated retired Adm. John Crommelin, onetime hero of the Navy brass for leaking secret information against the Air Force, as the National States Rights Party's candidate for President.

At one point, someone called for the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Everyone dutifully arose and recited the pledge. But half of them gave the stiff-arm, heil-Hitler salute.

Note: The group has adopted the lightning-bolt insignia of the defunct Columbians, a storm-trooper outfit that was broken up by the government in 1946. They have formed a united front bringing under one banner the hate movement's professional agitators, disgruntled disciples, and assorted crackpots.

New Kremlin Line

By Joseph Alsop

BAGHDAD, Iraq.

Despite the romance of its name and past, this squalid, teeming, mud-colored city has always been one of the dreariest capitals of the Arab lands. It is no less dreary now. But now Baghdad is vividly, even painfully interesting, as the place where you can see the Kremlin's new Middle Eastern line.

The Kremlin's adoption of a new Middle Eastern strategy is a less dramatic development than the Kremlin's power play at Berlin. Yet it is comparable, all the same, for it is another striking proof of the Kremlin's growing boldness.

The essence of the change of strategy is simple. Formerly the Soviets supported and worked through Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser. Nasser's Arab nationalist movement was, so to say, the dagger the Soviets hoped to plunge into the West's soft belly. For this purpose, the Communist parties in all Arab countries were formerly ordered to serve under Nasser's command, as mere auxiliaries in his movement.

This system of using Nasser as the sole instrument of Soviet purposes in this area has now been abandoned. The Arab Communist parties are waging their own, wholly independent struggle for power, without regard to Nasser, and even in opposition to Nasser. Here in Iraq, for instance, the Communists are energetically working to transform the revolutionary Prime Minister, Brigadier Abdel Karim Kassem, into the Kremlin's Pasha, as responsive to Moscow's promptings as Nuri used to be responsive to the promptings of London.

The change in the Kremlin line was first revealed in Syria, in the coup d'etat at Damascus in the summer of 1957. The subsequent Syrian maneuver that produced the United Arab Republic was to contain and if possible destroy the growing power of the Syrian Communists, by merging Syria with Egypt.

Here in Baghdad, however, the Kremlin's new line has been much more boldly and frankly revealed. From the moment when the old government was upset, the pro-Nasser Arab nationalists actively agitated to merge Iraq with Egypt on the Syrian pattern. And from the same moment, the Communists opposed the Nasserites.

After the revolution, the Nasser underground and the Communist underground were the only political organizations with any strength in the bazars. Their conflict reached the stage of armed clashes more than once; but finally the Nasserites were roundly defeated. The end came with the arrest of Nasser's excitable supporter, the number two leader of the revolution, Colonel Abdel Salam Aref. The Nasserites have now yielded to the Communists, in effect acknowledging their enemies superior strength by rejoining the so-called "National Front" of revolutionary parties.

As one could see when the re-establishment of the "National Front" was celebrated here, the Communists now control the city crowds. The huge demonstration in one of the local parks was quite obviously organized by the Communists, almost single handed. By the same token, after the Nasserite forces announced a boycott, the Communists recently swept the elections in the Iraqi student unions. In the same manner, they are expected to gain control of the labor unions that are now being formed.

Most important of all, the Kremlin is carrying on an amazingly bold, even flagrant propaganda campaign among the non-Arab Kurds. Money is being spent. Arms are being sent to the Kurds from the Soviet Union (in addition to the arms previously sent by Nasser from Syria). The Kurds are being encouraged to hope for a "greater Kurdistan," including huge chunks of both Turkey and Iran. The organizer of all this is the Kurdish Communist agent, the Mullah Mustafa Barzani, who weaves his webs nowadays from the Semiramis Hotel here in Baghdad.

The agitation among the Kurds is so important for two reasons. On the one hand, the Kurds will be harder to control than a mere city crowd. On the other hand, almost all of Iraq's mineral resources, and especially the vital oil sources, are in predominantly Kurdish Northern Iraq.

Such is the progress that the Communists have already made outside the government. Inside the government, they have also made progress in three different ways. In the first place, they have posed and are still posing as the most enthusiastic supporters of Brigadier Kassem, who wants Iraq to be independent of Nassar for his own, quite different reasons. They gave Kassem valuable support during the crisis caused by Colonel Aref. Leading Communists are endlessly singing their siren songs to the Prime Minister at this moment.

In the second place, Communists now occupy at least one and probably two or three key ministerial posts. Thirdly, the Communist and Communist-sympathizing ministers are doing their best to create opportunities for Soviet and satellite technicians to enter Iraq in uncontrolled mobs, to run the new projects planned under Iraq's stepped up development program, to exploit formerly under-exploited oil concessions, and so on.

Altogether, the Communist effor here is very formidable indeed. Yet a visit to Baghdad is an oddly cheering experience. As already recorded, Brigadier Kassem does not look like the kind of man who will consent in the end to be the Kremlin's Nurio Anci, as will be shown, Kassem can still master the Communists just as he mastered the Nasserites, if he decides to do so before it is too late.

West Virginia Supreme Court Upholds Auditor's Delay Of State Paychecks

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The West Virginia Supreme Court has ruled that State Auditor Edgar B. Sims has the right to delay salaries of state employes until services for which they are paid have been rendered.

In handing down an unanimous opinion Tuesday, the high court turned down petitions by Road Commissioner Pat C. Graney and state personnel director Martha Ford, both of whom claimed Sims had over-stepped his authority in instituting such delays.

Effective with the October pay period, Sims began a new policy whereby pay vouchers from individual state departments were not processed until after the end of the month, thereby causing some delay in the distribution of the paychecks.

Graney claimed his pay period, as a state official, is set by law, while Miss Ford, as a state employe, maintained her pay period was determined by the Board of Public Works.

Sims based his new procedure on a state law enacted in 1943, giving the auditor the power to regulate payroll procedures "to promote efficiency and economy," largely to make income tax and saving bonds deductions from state employes' pay.

Judge Chauncey Browning, who wrote the opinion, said the act was specific in giving Sims the authority to fix the time for submission of payroll requisitions.

The primary purpose of the act was to empower the auditor to make certain payroll deductions and while the section giving him the right to set the time when payrolls are submitted was only "a detail," it was as binding as any other part of the act, the judge said.

The petitions of Graney and Miss Ford said Sims violated a section of law indicating paychecks should be distributed at the end of each month.

But Browning said this did not supercede previous acts on the matter which did not say specifically state employes were to be paid on the end of a month.

The court interpreted the statute to mean that paychecks should be distributed "on or about the end of each month."

Browning wrote that it was not the intent of the Legislature to "work a manifest injustice on the auditor" by strictly saying payrolls had to be processed and checks distributed at the end of each 31 days.

W.Va. Budget To Exceed $100 Million

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Department of Finance and Administration will recommend a 1959-60 West Virginia general revenue budget of $109,527,695.

The recommendation to be presented to the State Board of Public Works next week is $1,042,926 above the $108,484,796 budget approved by the Legislature for this fiscal year. It also is some $4,000,000 more than State Finance Director George B. Vieweg Jr. recommended a year ago.

State agencies have submitted requests calling for an expenditure of $129,590,424 out of the General Revenue Fund and $38,788,641 from surplus during the next fiscal year. The 1958 Legislature appropriated $719,000 from surplus revenues.

After three days of budget hearings starting next Monday, the Board of Public Works will prepare a budget bill for presentation to the Legislature on Jan. 14.

Vieweg estimated revenues available for appropriation at the end of this fiscal year would amount to $109,690,018, including an estimated unencumbered balance of $1,630,018.

A general breakdown of Vieweg's recommendations with amounts requested by various agencies in parentheses include:

Education $74,421,827 ($80,041,940), health and welfare 20,629,156 (30,863,050), executive department 4,193,950 (4,933,207), charities and corrections 2,671,983 (3,216,362), protection 2,334,279 (3,719,264.)

A total of $1,788,723 was asked for conservation and development but Vieweg recommended only $776,540.

W.Va. Court Rules Mother Entitled To Child's Custody

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A natural mother is entitled to custody of her child unless the child has been legally transferred to someone else, the State Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

The high court, in a unanimous opinion written by Judge Leslie E. Given, thus ordered two-year-old Penny Lou Hoy returned to her mother, Mrs. Delores E. Hoy, 25, of Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. Hoy, in an appeal from a Jackson County decision, said she had left the child with relatives but that when she returned a year later, she was informed Penny had been placed with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dooley of Jackson County.

The Jackson County Circuit Court ruled that the Dooleys had obtained legal custody of the baby. However, the high court said Mrs. Hoy had "made no agreement, had no understanding" that the relatives could turn the little girl over to someone else.

W.Va. Doctors Will Meet On Sunday

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The West Virginia Chapter of the American Academy of General Practice will hold its 10th annual meeting here on Sunday.

Dr. Seigle W. Parks of Fairmont, president, said speakers would includ Dr. John H. Holzaepfel, assistant professor of obstetrics at Ohio State University, and Dr. Charles M. Carvatai, associate professor of clinical medicine at the Medical College of Virginia.

Report Shows Potomac Low During Month

The meteorological and runoff report compiled here for November by the local office of Geological Survey shows the Potomac River was very low and that rainfall was normal and temperatures averaged above normal.

The daily flow of the Potomac at Cumberland was 248 cubic feet per second or 160 million gallons per day. This is 42.7 per cent of the 29-year November average recorded here. Daily flow varied from 176 cubic feet per second or 114 million gallons on November 26-27, to 353 cubic feet per second of 228 million gallons on November 5.

A seasonal decrease in storage in Savage River reservoir caused an average increase of 48 cubic feet per second or 31 million gallons per day. This represents 19.4 per cent of the flow in the North Branch here.

Total precipitation in Cumberland as reported by the Weather Bureau for the month was 2.18 inches. This is the November average. The daily mercury readings averaged 46.8 degrees, which is 3.7 degrees above normal.

A. A. Vickers, engineer in charge here, said that due to the usual winter freezing conditions, this will be the last monthly report compiled for the next two or three months, as accurate measurements are not practical due to ice and snow in and along the streams.

Month-Long Work Stoppage Ended

PT. PLEASANT, W. Va. (UPI)—A month - long work stoppage that halted construction of a fifth unit of a 60-million dollar addition to the big Philip Sporn power plant near here has ended.

More than 150 construction workers returned to the job Tuesday after being idled since Nov. 2 by an electricians' strike. However, union employes of the substation just across the road from the main plant continued idle because of picket lines established by the electricians.

Some 30 electricians were indirectly involved in strikes against two subcontractors at the plant. Their picketing, to enforce wage demands, idled some 200 other workers.

W.Va. Toll Bridge Fails To Pay Way

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Road Commission dipped into its primary road fund Wednesday to bail a new toll bridge out of the red at Winfield, Putnam County.

Auditor Edgar B. Sims approved transfer of $25,000 from the commission's primary fund to the Winfield Bridge Fund. Sims said toll revenue had not been sufficient to even meet expenses of the one-year-old bridge.

The bridge, which connects Winfield and Red House, replaced a ferry which formerly operated across the Kanawha River at that point.

School Fire Laws Termed Adequate

Rohrbough Says Hazards Checked

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State School Supt. R. Virgil Rohrbough said Wednesday he felt West Virginia laws pertaining to inspection of schools for fire hazards were adequate.

Commenting on fire safeguards as a result of the Chicago parochial school disaster which claimed 90 lives Monday, Rohrbough said the state fire marshal's office has "done a very good job of inspection and I think it is adequate."

State Insurance Commissioner C. Judson Pearson, under whose jurisdiction the fire marshal's office falls, said it is standard procedure for schools to be inspected at least twice a year.

Pearson said other requirements are that doors in schools be kept unlocked during school hours and that fire drills be held at least twice monthly.

Local fire departments also conduct fire inspections at schools in many cities.

The state superintendent has authority to close any school where recommendations by a fire marshal to eliminate hazards are not carried out. But Rohrbough said this has not been necessary "because of the cooperation county school boards have been giving the fire marshal."

The fire marshal also can go to court to see that hazards are eliminated.

Young Mother Faces Baby Murder Charge

KINGWOOD, W. Va. (UPI)—A young mother was charged with murder Wednesday in the death of a newborn infant son whom she allegedly confessed throwing into a brush heap near her home in freezing weather.

Preston County Prosecutor James T. Dailey said Mrs. Elizabeth V. Reed, 21, told authorities she gave birth to the child unattended last Saturday night at the home of her parents, then wrapped it in a blanket and threw it outside.

Mrs. Reed is estranged from her husband, Ray Reed, and had been living at the home of her parents at nearby Borgman. They were not at home when the child was born, Dailey said, but later brought her to a hospital here for examination when she complained of being ill.

Hospital attendants notified police Sunday that the woman had apparently given birth and a search for the body was begun even though Mrs. Reed denied she had had a baby. Sheriff C.S. Harriman found the snow-covered body Tuesday some 60 feet from the house.

Dailey said the autopsy showed that the child was born fully developed and died of exposure.

Mrs. Reed was to be released from the hospital Thursday and will be arraigned before a magistrate after being brought to the county jail. She is the mother of another 20-month-old son.

Bomb Scare Causes School Evacuation

Police Act After Anonymous Call

PT. PLEASANT, W. Va. (UPI)—Pt. Pleasant High School was evacuated Wednesday afternoon following an anonymous telephone report to police—apparently by a prankster — that a bomb was planted in the building.

Police conducted a thorough search of the school building after it was emptied and they found no trace of any bomb. The only thing they found out of the ordinary was escaping gas from three gas jets which had been turned on the physics room.

Police indicated they believed the jets might have been turned on about the time they arrived by the perpetrator of the hoax.

Authorities suspected a student was responsible. The telephone call, which police traced to a pay booth about a block and a half from the school, was received by the State Police detachment here.

A radio operator who took the call said the voice sounded like that of a boy or a young man. The voice said, "There is a bomb in the senior high school."

Chief Mason County Deputy Sheriff Mark Harshbarger and another deputy went to the school and talked with Principal Benjamin Franklin IV, who agreed the building should be emptied. Because of a lunch period, only about 400 of the 800 students were in the building at the time.

About 25 policemen, firemen and students designated by Franklin took part in the search for the alleged bomb. Authorities said every effort would be made to find out who turned in the report.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—An application by the city of Elkins for authority to construct a new $995,000 sewage disposal system was taken under consideration Wednesday by the Public Service Commission.

The city said the project would be financed through revenue bonds and a federal grant of $250,000.

Country Club Drive Shows Progress

They also indicated a report of promised support from Romney, Moorefield and Petersburg, making a possible total of 225-250 subscribers.

The Upper Potomac Shrine Club, in leasing the required land for the golf course, swimming pool and tennis courts, has further enhanced the opportunities for the proposed club by also leasing the large downstairs room in the Shrine Club building for use as a lounge and club room.

The remainder of the building, including the public dining room and large dinner hall, will continue to be operated by the Shrine Club. These facilities will provide the area with one of its finest recreation centers, officials said.

Month-Long Work Stoppage Ended

PT. PLEASANT, W. Va. (UPI)—A month - long work stoppage that halted construction of a fifth unit of a 60-million dollar addition to the big Philip Sporn power plant near here has ended.

More than 150 construction workers returned to the job Tuesday after being idled since Nov. 2 by an electricians' strike. However, union employes of the substation just across the road from the main plant continued idle because of picket lines established by the electricians.

Some 30 electricians were indirectly involved in strikes against two subcontractors at the plant. Their picketing, to enforce wage demands, idled some 200 other workers.

W.Va. Toll Bridge Fails To Pay Way

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Road Commission dipped into its primary road fund Wednesday to bail a new toll bridge out of the red at Winfield, Putnam County.

Auditor Edgar B. Sims approved transfer of $25,000 from the commission's primary fund to the Winfield Bridge Fund. Sims said toll revenue had not been sufficient to even meet expenses of the one-year-old bridge.

The bridge, which connects Winfield and Red House, replaced a ferry which formerly operated across the Kanawha River at that point.

School Fire Laws Termed Adequate

Rohrbough Says Hazards Checked

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State School Supt. R. Virgil Rohrbough said Wednesday he felt West Virginia laws pertaining to inspection of schools for fire hazards were adequate.

Commenting on fire safeguards as a result of the Chicago parochial school disaster which claimed 90 lives Monday, Rohrbough said the state fire marshal's office has "done a very good job of inspection and I think it is adequate."

State Insurance Commissioner C. Judson Pearson, under whose jurisdiction the fire marshal's office falls, said it is standard procedure for schools to be inspected at least twice a year.

Pearson said other requirements are that doors in schools be kept unlocked during school hours and that fire drills be held at least twice monthly.

Local fire departments also conduct fire inspections at schools in many cities.

The state superintendent has authority to close any school where recommendations by a fire marshal to eliminate hazards are not carried out. But Rohrbough said this has not been necessary "because of the cooperation county school boards have been giving the fire marshal."

The fire marshal also can go to court to see that hazards are eliminated.

Young Mother Faces Baby Murder Charge

KINGWOOD, W. Va. (UPI)—A young mother was charged with murder Wednesday in the death of a newborn infant son whom she allegedly confessed throwing into a brush heap near her home in freezing weather.

Preston County Prosecutor James T. Dailey said Mrs. Elizabeth V. Reed, 21, told authorities she gave birth to the child unattended last Saturday night at the home of her parents, then wrapped it in a blanket and threw it outside.

Mrs. Reed is estranged from her husband, Ray Reed, and had been living at the home of her parents at nearby Borgman. They were not at home when the child was born, Dailey said, but later brought her to a hospital here for examination when she complained of being ill.

Hospital attendants notified police Sunday that the woman had apparently given birth and a search for the body was begun even though Mrs. Reed denied she had had a baby. Sheriff C.S. Harriman found the snow-covered body Tuesday some 60 feet from the house.

Dailey said the autopsy showed that the child was born fully developed and died of exposure.

Mrs. Reed was to be released from the hospital Thursday and will be arraigned before a magistrate after being brought to the county jail. She is the mother of another 20-month-old son.

Bomb Scare Causes School Evacuation

Police Act After Anonymous Call

PT. PLEASANT, W. Va. (UPI)—Pt. Pleasant High School was evacuated Wednesday afternoon following an anonymous telephone report to police—apparently by a prankster — that a bomb was planted in the building.

Police conducted a thorough search of the school building after it was emptied and they found no trace of any bomb. The only thing they found out of the ordinary was escaping gas from three gas jets which had been turned on the physics room.

Police indicated they believed the jets might have been turned on about the time they arrived by the perpetrator of the hoax.

Authorities suspected a student was responsible. The telephone call, which police traced to a pay booth about a block and a half from the school, was received by the State Police detachment here.

A radio operator who took the call said the voice sounded like that of a boy or a young man. The voice said, "There is a bomb in the senior high school."

Chief Mason County Deputy Sheriff Mark Harshbarger and another deputy went to the school and talked with Principal Benjamin Franklin IV, who agreed the building should be emptied. Because of a lunch period, only about 400 of the 800 students were in the building at the time.

About 25 policemen, firemen and students designated by Franklin took part in the search for the alleged bomb. Authorities said every effort would be made to find out who turned in the report.

BASEBALL TALK — Will Harridge, who resigned yesterday as president of the American League, and Joe Cronin, right, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, stopped for a discussion yesterday at the meeting of baseball executives at Washington, D. C. Cronin, it is rumored, is favored by American League team owners to succeed the 72-year-old Harridge. A screening committee has been named to select a successor to the retiring president. Will Harridge Resigns As Head Of Junior Loop

Joe Cronin Seen Possible Successor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stately, 72-year-old Will Harridge resigned Wednesday as president of the American League. He said baseball in its troubled times needs younger men.

Speculation arose immediately as to who would take over the post the white-haired Harridge vacated without advance public notice.

It was reliably learned the ready were favoring Joe Cronin, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, but a screening committee of six was appointed.

Other candidates mentioned included Bill Dewitt, administrator of the major leagues' $500,000 fund; Frank Lane, general manager of the Cleveland Indians, and Earl Hilligan, assistant to Harridge.

The next A.L. president, who will be the fourth in the 55-year-old history of the circuit, is not expected to be named for at least three to four weeks. In the meantime, Harridge continues to preside over the league meetings here.

Gets Re-Elected

The National League, at its meeting, re-elected Warren Giles president. They gave the 62-year-old Cincinnatian a five-year contract.

Giles, former president of the Redlegs, has been head of the league since September 1951. He succeeded Ford Frick when the latter was elected baseball commissioner. Giles' old contract was not due to expire until December 1959.

Harridge said advanced age was the only reason he is retiring after 47 years with the American League, the last 28 as president.

He emphasized that nobody used any pressure whatsoever to force him out of office. Although he got a new 10-year contract two years ago, he said he has been considering retirement about two years.

"I felt the American League should have the opportunity of bringing in a younger and more energetic man to handle the problems confronting it," Harridge said. "The American League, and all baseball, for that matter, has some serious problems. My retirement will give them the benefit of new thinking and a younger man who can do a better job than I can."

Asked what he regarded as baseball's most serious problems, Harridge deliberated a while before replying.

"The player situation is a very serious one and needs careful attention," he said, referring to the recent player demands to be cut in on the owners' revenue.

Problem Of Expansion

"Then there's the problem of expansion, of organizing a third league," he went on. "I've always felt the American League should not expand to 10 teams. There's nothing to be gained by it. The American League is much better off with eight teams. I've always said it was bad enough to finish seventh and eighth. Finishing ninth and tenth would be disastrous.

"As for a third league, I was through that back in 1914-15, when the Federal League was formed, and I know how awful that was. It almost wrecked baseball."

Although Harridge said he had no idea who would succeed him, it was learned that Cronin, former star shortstop and manager of the Washington Senators and Red Sox, was an almost unanimous choice of the owners.

"If you're a betting man," one club official told the writer, "you can go out and lay 10 to 1 on Cronin. He's a sure thing."

Cronin, present at the meeting, appeared embarrassed by all the attention. Asked whether he would be interested in the presidency, the hall of famer said:

"I certainly would. I'm very flattered and complimented to be considered. But it's all a little premature. No one has talked to me about it."

Colts Retain Offense Lead In Pro League

Jimmy Brown Still Is Rushing Leader

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Baltimore Colts, who won the Western Conference championship in the National Football League the hard way with a second half come - from - behind victory last weekend, stayed out in front Wednesday in the league's overall ground gaining statistics.

The Colts, closing their season on the West Coast, had a net of 3,891 for their 10 league games to date, a bulge of 121 yards over the second place Los Angeles Rams, their opponents of next Saturday.

Baltimore maintained its yardage leadership as Jim Brown continued as the leading rusher with 1,241 yards, despite being held to 12 yards by Washington last Sunday.

Eddie Le Baron was the leading individual passer with an 9.23 yard average, although Pittsburgh's Bobby Lane, with five straight Steeler victories behind him, was challenging from second place. Layne was eighth two weeks ago.

Cleveland, behind the bolting Brown's league record performance, was the top rushing team of the league with a net of 2,126 yards with Baltimore second with 1,862.

Airwise, the Eastern Conference's two lowest teams have compiled the greatest yardage from passing. The Philadelphia Eagles led the throwers with 2,302 yards with the Chicago Cardinals second with 2,226 yards. Each has won two games.

The Colts' total offense joined two other factors in contributing to the Western title. Baltimore has scored the most points with 341, and allowed the least, 152.

The overall defensive statistics go to the Chicago Bears and the Colts, with the Bears allowing a net of 2,618 yards while the Colts gave up 2,637. The Colts gave up the least yardage by rushing, a total of 1,119, while the Bears followed with 1,129. Chicago gave up 1,518. They were the best performances in those categories.

The New York giants' line throttled opponents most successfully, allowing but 3.5 yards per rush, the league's best mark. Pittsburgh's line gave up 3.7 yards and that of Philadelphia 3.8 yards.

Three Added To Maryland Hall Of Fame

Rommel, Shipley, Dundee Are Named

BALTIMORE (AP) — Three more names have been added to the Maryland Sports Hall of Fame roster.

The selection committee announced Wednesday the trio, along with another Marylander who made a name for himself in sports, will be honored at the annual M-Club dinner in Baltimore Dec. 13.

The three newcomers to the select group are Eddie Rommel, a pitcher with the old Philadelphia Athletics; Burton Shipley, baseball coach at the University of Maryland for 35 years, and Joe Dundee, welterweight boxing king from 1927-1929.

Last Saturday the committee announced the addition of the late Edwin (Ned) H. W. Harlan to the Hall of Fame. Harlan was a member of Walter Camp's 1907 All-America football team while attending Princeton. His only son, Edwin Harlan Jr., will receive the plaque listing the Bel Air attorney's sports achievements.

Rommel started pitching for Seaford, Del. in 1916 and moved the next year to the old Baltimore Orioles in the International League. He joined the A's in 1920 and pitched for them until 1934. He turned to officiating after his retirement.

Shipley won letters in football, baseball and basketball while attending Maryland. He coached for a time at Delaware, and returned to Maryland in 1924 as head basketball and baseball coach. He coached basketball for 24 years, and now is on his 36th year as baseball mentor.

Dundee won the welterweight title from Pete Lasazo by a decision in 1927. Several months later, former champ Mickey Walker tried to recapture the crown, but Dundee won a TKO victory.

Minors Accept 'Watered-Down' Draft Version

Compromise Still To Be OK'd By Majors

By JACK HAND

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball's minor leagues Wednesday adopted a watered-down version of the unrestricted player draft, offered by the farm system of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The compromise was adopted after the minors had rebuffed the New York Yankees by rejecting a proposal made through their Binghamton, N.Y., farm of the Eastern League, to restore the bonus rule. But the minors also voted down a proposal by a powerful major-minor committee that might have jeopardized the whole farm system.

The new plan will not go into operation unless it is okayed by the majors at their joint meeting later in the week. This may turn on a tie-breaking vote by Commissioner Ford Frick if the majors are divided. Frick has favored the unrestricted draft all the way.

The new legislation, known as the St. Paul proposition, was adopted by a 20-4 vote at the closed session of the National Assn (minors). Its sponsor was Fresco Thompson, Dodger vice president and farm director.

In simple terms, the St. Paul plan permits the draft of any first year player at the end of his first season unless he has been advanced to a major league roster. If the player is not drafted in the first year, he then is ineligible for selection until he has completed the normal draft period. This period varies from two to four years depending on the classification of the league in which he is playing.

Under the present system, nobody can touch a promising player for four years if he has been moved up the minor league system ladder to Triple A. By that time, the man usually is on a major league roster or no longer considered a prime prospect.

Renew Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The St. Petersburg Saints of the Florida State League have renewed their working agreement with the New York Yankees, club President Herb Smith announced Wednesday night.

Jackie Gordon, coach of the Cleveland Barons, holds the American Hockey League record for assists. He made 428.

Phils Trade Jack Sanford To Giants, Get 2 Players

Gomez And Thomas Go To Philadelphia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies traded pitcher Jack Sanford to the San Francisco Giants Wednesday night for pitcher Ruben Gomez and catcher Valmy Thomas.

Sanford was the "big name" in the three-player deal. The 30-year old right-hander, who won the National League's rookie of the year in 1957 when he compiled a 19-8 record, slumped to 10-13 this season but still is considered one of the better pitchers in the league.

Several clubs have been after Sanford during the current major minor league meetings but the Phillies explained they made the trade because they received a front-line pitcher in return in Gomez and also strengthened their weak catching staff with the addition of Thomas.

Gomez, a 31-year-old right-hander fro.. Arroyo, Puerto Rico, has long been considered one of the most promising pitchers in the circuit but has not lived up to his reputation since he was a 17-game winner for the 1954 Giants.

However, Gomez won only 10 games and lost 12 this year. In 1955 he was 9-10, in 1956 he was 7-17 and in 1957 he was 15-13.

Thomas, a 30-year - old native of the Virgin Islands, hit .249 for the Giants as a rookie in 1957 but lost his regular job to rookie Bob Schmidt this year and hit only .259 in 63 games.

The Phillies pinch for catching talent has been so desperate that he could be in line for the first-string job next year. Stan Lopata was sidelined most of this year with a knee injury and the Phillies were so strapped for catching that they were forced to obtain 38-year-old Jim Hegan from Detroit.

Johnson Runs Streak To Eight, Wins Over King

CHICAGO (UPI)—Harold Johnson, second ranked contender for the world heavyweight title, ran his winning streak to eight consecutive fights Wednesday night with an easy and unanimous decision over heavyweight Howard King in the weekly TV fight.

King was tagged repeatedly with left jabs which rocked his head on his shoulders and frequently Johnson would come through with a right hook which staggered his foe. King retaliated briefly in the final two rounds when Johnson, apparently sure he had won the 59th triumph in his

Johnson lost only one round on the card of both judges, Jim McManus and Frank Clarke, while referee Walter Brightmore gave King, who suffered his 16th defeat against 34 wins and seven draws, two rounds. McManus gave Johnson a 49-44 edge, Clarke had it 49-43, and Bright More 48-43. The United Press International card also was 48-43.

The Winged Foot Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., where the 1959 U. S. Open will be held, was the scene of the 1929 Open, won by Bob Jones in a playoff against Al Espinosa.

Deer Kill Falls Off To 69 On 3rd Day In County

The Allegany County deer kill slacked off to only 69 yesterday as hunters found the going rough in the sleet-swept area on the third day of the hunting season in Maryland.

This brought the total for three days in the county to 430 whitetails slain.

One hunter, a former Hyndman, Pa., man who now resides in Washington, D. C., bagged two deer yesterday. Robert V. Kelly Jr., shot a 4-point, 150-pound buck at Gravel Pit near Hyndman in Pennsylvania about 10 a.m. yesterday, then crossed into Maryland to kill a 6-point, 127-pounder on Evitts Mountain about five hours later.

Alma Hinkle, Flintstone, shot a spike buck weighing 30 pounds in her front yard on Polish Mountain.

Pucillo's Jump Shot Wins In Last Second

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Lou Pucillo, a jumping jack among a court of basketball giants, popped in a one-hand side shot with two seconds to play Wednesday for a 55-53 victory by North Carolina State over Maryland.

It was the sixth basket by the 5-9 Pucillo in a second half rally that brought the Wolfpack its second straight victory of the season. It was the opening game for Maryland, sixth-ranked nationally last year and winner of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

The Terps tied the score five times after Bob McGillivray put North Carolina State ahead for the first time 41-40 with a three-point cluster. The last time was with 21 seconds to play on a basket from the foul circle by Jerry Bechtle.

The Wolfpack then worked the ball downcourt cautiously with an eye on the clock until Pucillo could let fly with his pet jump shot. Pucillo wound up sharing scoring honors of 16 points with his 6-8 teammate, John Richter. Gene Danko was high for Maryland with 13.

The Terps, with only two of last year's starters back, jumped off to a 5-0 lead in the game before 10,800. They enjoyed a 10-point bulge midway in the half but at intermission were ahead only 28-23.

Bobby Kirk, new coach of the Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League, coached the Flin Flon Bombers of the Saskatchewan Junior League a few years ago when they went 33 games without losing.

BASEBALL TALK — Will Harridge, who resigned yesterday as president of the American League, and Joe Cronin, right, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, stopped for a discussion yesterday at the meeting of baseball executives at Washington, D. C. Cronin, it is rumored, is favored by American League team owners to succeed the 72-year-old Harridge. A screening committee has been named to select a successor to the retiring president. Will Harridge Resigns As Head Of Junior Loop

Joe Cronin Seen Possible Successor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stately, 72-year-old Will Harridge resigned Wednesday as president of the American League. He said baseball in its troubled times needs younger men.

Speculation arose immediately as to who would take over the post the white-haired Harridge vacated without advance public notice.

It was reliably learned the ready were favoring Joe Cronin, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, but a screening committee of six was appointed.

Other candidates mentioned included Bill Dewitt, administrator of the major leagues' $500,000 fund; Frank Lane, general manager of the Cleveland Indians, and Earl Hilligan, assistant to Harridge.

The next A.L. president, who will be the fourth in the 55-year-old history of the circuit, is not expected to be named for at least three to four weeks. In the meantime, Harridge continues to preside over the league meetings here.

Gets Re-Elected

The National League, at its meeting, re-elected Warren Giles president. They gave the 62-year-old Cincinnatian a five-year contract.

Giles, former president of the Redlegs, has been head of the league since September 1951. He succeeded Ford Frick when the latter was elected baseball commissioner. Giles' old contract was not due to expire until December 1959.

Harridge said advanced age was the only reason he is retiring after 47 years with the American League, the last 28 as president.

He emphasized that nobody used any pressure whatsoever to force him out of office. Although he got a new 10-year contract two years ago, he said he has been considering retirement about two years.

"I felt the American League should have the opportunity of bringing in a younger and more energetic man to handle the problems confronting it," Harridge said. "The American League, and all baseball, for that matter, has some serious problems. My retirement will give them the benefit of new thinking and a younger man who can do a better job than I can."

Asked what he regarded as baseball's most serious problems, Harridge deliberated a while before replying.

"The player situation is a very serious one and needs careful attention," he said, referring to the recent player demands to be cut in on the owners' revenue.

Problem Of Expansion

"Then there's the problem of expansion, of organizing a third league," he went on. "I've always felt the American League should not expand to 10 teams. There's nothing to be gained by it. The American League is much better off with eight teams. I've always said it was bad enough to finish seventh and eighth. Finishing ninth and tenth would be disastrous.

"As for a third league, I was through that back in 1914-15, when the Federal League was formed, and I know how awful that was. It almost wrecked baseball."

Although Harridge said he had no idea who would succeed him, it was learned that Cronin, former star shortstop and manager of the Washington Senators and Red Sox, was an almost unanimous choice of the owners.

"If you're a betting man," one club official told the writer, "you can go out and lay 10 to 1 on Cronin. He's a sure thing."

Cronin, present at the meeting, appeared embarrassed by all the attention. Asked whether he would be interested in the presidency, the hall of famer said:

"I certainly would. I'm very flattered and complimented to be considered. But it's all a little premature. No one has talked to me about it."

Jimmy Brown Still Is Rushing Leader

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Baltimore Colts, who won the Western Conference championship in the National Football League the hard way with a second half come - from - behind victory last weekend, stayed out in front Wednesday in the league's overall ground gaining statistics.

The Colts, closing their season on the West Coast, had a net of 3,891 for their 10 league games to date, a bulge of 121 yards over the second place Los Angeles Rams, their opponents of next Saturday.

Baltimore maintained its yardage leadership as Jim Brown continued as the leading rusher with 1,241 yards, despite being held to 12 yards by Washington last Sunday.

Eddie Le Baron was the leading individual passer with an 9.23 yard average, although Pittsburgh's Bobby Lane, with five straight Steeler victories behind him, was challenging from second place. Layne was eighth two weeks ago.

Cleveland, behind the bolting Brown's league record performance, was the top rushing team of the league with a net of 2,126 yards with Baltimore second with 1,862.

Airwise, the Eastern Conference's two lowest teams have compiled the greatest yardage from passing. The Philadelphia Eagles led the throwers with 2,302 yards with the Chicago Cardinals second with 2,226 yards. Each has won two games.

The Colts' total offense joined two other factors in contributing to the Western title. Baltimore has scored the most points with 341, and allowed the least, 152.

The overall defensive statistics go to the Chicago Bears and the Colts, with the Bears allowing a net of 2,618 yards while the Colts gave up 2,637. The Colts gave up the least yardage by rushing, a total of 1,119, while the Bears followed with 1,129. Chicago gave up 1,518. They were the best performances in those categories.

The New York giants' line throttled opponents most successfully, allowing but 3.5 yards per rush, the league's best mark. Pittsburgh's line gave up 3.7 yards and that of Philadelphia 3.8 yards.

Three Added To Maryland Hall Of Fame

Rommel, Shipley, Dundee Are Named

BALTIMORE (AP) — Three more names have been added to the Maryland Sports Hall of Fame roster.

The selection committee announced Wednesday the trio, along with another Marylander who made a name for himself in sports, will be honored at the annual M-Club dinner in Baltimore Dec. 13.

The three newcomers to the select group are Eddie Rommel, a pitcher with the old Philadelphia Athletics; Burton Shipley, baseball coach at the University of Maryland for 35 years, and Joe Dundee, welterweight boxing king from 1927-1929.

Last Saturday the committee announced the addition of the late Edwin (Ned) H. W. Harlan to the Hall of Fame. Harlan was a member of Walter Camp's 1907 All-America football team while attending Princeton. His only son, Edwin Harlan Jr., will receive the plaque listing the Bel Air attorney's sports achievements.

Rommel started pitching for Seaford, Del. in 1916 and moved the next year to the old Baltimore Orioles in the International League. He joined the A's in 1920 and pitched for them until 1934. He turned to officiating after his retirement.

Shipley won letters in football, baseball and basketball while attending Maryland. He coached for a time at Delaware, and returned to Maryland in 1924 as head basketball and baseball coach. He coached basketball for 24 years, and now is on his 36th year as baseball mentor.

Dundee won the welterweight title from Pete Lasazo by a decision in 1927. Several months later, former champ Mickey Walker tried to recapture the crown, but Dundee won a TKO victory.

Minors Accept 'Watered-Down' Draft Version

Compromise Still To Be OK'd By Majors

By JACK HAND

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball's minor leagues Wednesday adopted a watered-down version of the unrestricted player draft, offered by the farm system of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The compromise was adopted after the minors had rebuffed the New York Yankees by rejecting a proposal made through their Binghamton, N.Y., farm of the Eastern League, to restore the bonus rule. But the minors also voted down a proposal by a powerful major-minor committee that might have jeopardized the whole farm system.

The new plan will not go into operation unless it is okayed by the majors at their joint meeting later in the week. This may turn on a tie-breaking vote by Commissioner Ford Frick if the majors are divided. Frick has favored the unrestricted draft all the way.

The new legislation, known as the St. Paul proposition, was adopted by a 20-4 vote at the closed session of the National Assn (minors). Its sponsor was Fresco Thompson, Dodger vice president and farm director.

In simple terms, the St. Paul plan permits the draft of any first year player at the end of his first season unless he has been advanced to a major league roster. If the player is not drafted in the first year, he then is ineligible for selection until he has completed the normal draft period. This period varies from two to four years depending on the classification of the league in which he is playing.

Under the present system, nobody can touch a promising player for four years if he has been moved up the minor league system ladder to Triple A. By that time, the man usually is on a major league roster or no longer considered a prime prospect.

Phils Trade Jack Sanford To Giants, Get 2 Players

Gomez And Thomas Go To Philadelphia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies traded pitcher Jack Sanford to the San Francisco Giants Wednesday night for pitcher Ruben Gomez and catcher Valmy Thomas.

Sanford was the "big name" in the three-player deal. The 30-year old right-hander, who won the National League's rookie of the year in 1957 when he compiled a 19-8 record, slumped to 10-13 this season but still is considered one of the better pitchers in the league.

Several clubs have been after Sanford during the current major minor league meetings but the Phillies explained they made the trade because they received a front-line pitcher in return in Gomez and also strengthened their weak catching staff with the addition of Thomas.

Gomez, a 31-year-old right-hander fro.. Arroyo, Puerto Rico, has long been considered one of the most promising pitchers in the circuit but has not lived up to his reputation since he was a 17-game winner for the 1954 Giants.

However, Gomez won only 10 games and lost 12 this year. In 1955 he was 9-10, in 1956 he was 7-17 and in 1957 he was 15-13.

Thomas, a 30-year - old native of the Virgin Islands, hit .249 for the Giants as a rookie in 1957 but lost his regular job to rookie Bob Schmidt this year and hit only .259 in 63 games.

The Phillies pinch for catching talent has been so desperate that he could be in line for the first-string job next year. Stan Lopata was sidelined most of this year with a knee injury and the Phillies were so strapped for catching that they were forced to obtain 38-year-old Jim Hegan from Detroit.

Johnson lost only one round on the card of both judges, Jim McManus and Frank Clarke, while referee Walter Brightmore gave King, who suffered his 16th defeat against 34 wins and seven draws, two rounds. McManus gave Johnson a 49-44 edge, Clarke had it 49-43, and Bright More 48-43. The United Press International card also was 48-43.

Deer Kill Falls Off To 69 On 3rd Day In County

The Allegany County deer kill slacked off to only 69 yesterday as hunters found the going rough in the sleet-swept area on the third day of the hunting season in Maryland.

This brought the total for three days in the county to 430 whitetails slain.

One hunter, a former Hyndman, Pa., man who now resides in Washington, D. C., bagged two deer yesterday. Robert V. Kelly Jr., shot a 4-point, 150-pound buck at Gravel Pit near Hyndman in Pennsylvania about 10 a.m. yesterday, then crossed into Maryland to kill a 6-point, 127-pounder on Evitts Mountain about five hours later.

Alma Hinkle, Flintstone, shot a spike buck weighing 30 pounds in her front yard on Polish Mountain.

The deer kill reported yesterday:

Shipway's Inn, Green Ridge	15
Huffman's Store, Sideling Hill	4
Ankeney's Store, Clear Spring	0
Westernport Police	6
Bridge Diner, Hancock	6
State Police, LaVale	21

Pucillo's Jump Shot Wins In Last Second

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Lou Pucillo, a jumping jack among a court of basketball giants, popped in a one-hand side shot with two seconds to play Wednesday for a 55-53 victory by North Carolina State over Maryland.

It was the sixth basket by the 5-9 Pucillo in a second half rally that brought the Wolfpack its second straight victory of the season. It was the opening game for Maryland, sixth-ranked nationally last year and winner of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

The Terps tied the score five times after Bob McGillivray put North Carolina State ahead for the first time 41-40 with a three-point cluster. The last time was with 21 seconds to play on a basket from the foul circle by Jerry Bechtle.

The Wolfpack then worked the ball downcourt cautiously with an eye on the clock until Pucillo could let fly with his pet jump shot. Pucillo wound up sharing scoring honors of 16 points with his 6-8 teammate, John Richter. Gene Danko was high for Maryland with 13.

The Terps, with only two of last year's starters back, jumped off to a 5-0 lead in the game before 10,800. They enjoyed a 10-point bulge midway in the half but at intermission were ahead only 28-23.

Bobby Kirk, new coach of the Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League, coached the Flin Flon Bombers of the Saskatchewan Junior League a few years ago when they went 33 games without losing.

No Fear 2nd Cops Feature At Pimlico

Winner Was Longest Priced In Field Of 6

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3 (AP) — Diamond Stable's No Fear 2nd was the longest priced member of the six-horse field in today's Parkway Purse at Pimlico, but won as an odds-on favorite with Jockey Nick Shuk aboard.

Rewarding a few faithful backers with $17.80 for $2, No Fear 2nd took the lead after leaving the barrier and galloped out the mile and seventy yards in 1:45 3/5.

At the wire, Shuk looked back to see Frances A. Genter's Out Holiday finishing second two-and-a-half lengths to the rear. Our Holiday was about six lengths in front of Roslyn Farms' Inswept with S. A. L. Satable's Bunny's Babe taking fourth.

No Fear 2nd was not involved in the crowding and bumping which marred the middle distance race. He went out to a good lead on the first turn and galloped without being seriously threatened in the late stages.

Snow, which had whitened the infield during morning exercising hours, turned to a light rain before noon and was replaced by fog for the second half of the program.

Favored Oregon Flies To Miami

Meet In Nationally Televised Contest

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) —A favored University of Oregon football team flies to Florida Thursday for Saturday's nationally-televised game against the Miami Hurricanes in the Orange Bowl.

Coach Len Casanova said his squad was in near top shape for the game. Only halfback Charlie Tourville, who has a knee injury, is on the doubtful list.

Casanova planned to start a backfield composed of three juniors and a sophomore. The juniors include speedboy halfbacks Willie West and Dave Grayson and fullback Dave Powell. Directing the Webfoots' split-T attack will be quarterback Dave Grosz.

Oregon has a chance to wind up the season as the nation's best defender against touchdowns. The Webfoots, outstanding defensive team on the West Coast, have given up but 48 points in nine games. The Oregon record is four wins and five defeats.

End Ron Stover, who missed most of the last part of the season because of injury, may be able to start. If he doesn't, defensive ace Pete Welch will get the call. Stover is the lad who caught 10 passes in the Rose Bowl game Jan. 1 against Ohio State.

Franklin Named Back-Of-Week By Associated Press

By The Associated Press

Bobby Franklin, the nimble quarterback who clinched Mississippi's place in the Gator Bowl, Wednesday was named college football's back of the week by The Associated Press.

The 5-10, 169-pound junior from Clarksdale, Miss., handled most of the offensive in a second-quarter splurge last Saturday that enabled Ole Miss to whip arch-foe Mississippi State, 21-0.

Three of the four quarters of the game were scoreless but in the 15 minutes of the second period, Franklin clinched the Mississippi victory by passing for two touchdowns and scoring a third himself. For good measure, he kicked the conversion after the third touchdown.

Immediately after the game, Mississippi (8-2) accepted an invitation to play Florida in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 27.

Deer Slayers Start Out Young

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) —Deer slayers apparently get an early start in this area.

Kenneth Owens, 11, bagged a five-point buck on the opening day of deer season Monday and his brother Gary, 14, shot a two-pointer Tuesday, their family reported. Both kills were made in Tyler County.

It was no new experience for Gary, who shot his first deer three years ago when he was 11.

MacKay Shows Some Of Old Time Net Form

Brings Hope For U.S. Davis Cuppers

MELBOURNE (AP) — Tireless effort has brought big Barry MacKay to the fringe of his 1957 form, thus tossing a little ray of sunshine over America's troubled Davis Cup tennis forces.

If anybody is to beat Australia's favored Ashley Cooper in the victorian championships opening Thursday, many observers believe it may well be the 6-4 giant from Dayton, Ohio, who is hitting the ball with more venom and effectiveness than at anytime in the last several months.

"Barry is working like a plough horse," Perry Jones, U.S. Davis Cup captain, said Wednesday. "He is one of the most conscientious and determined players on the squad and his devotion is beginning to show results."

Jones has given MacKay instructions to quit trying to baby the ball and start hitting all out. "MacKay has tremendous power," Jones said. "He should utilize it. We have told him to abandon excess caution and to blast away for winners."

Earl Buchholz, 18, of St. Louis, riding a wave of popularity after gaining the New South Wales finals, would create a near miracle if he should duplicate that feat here.

Other U.S. players are Peruvian Alex Olmedo of Los Angeles and Chris Crawford, of Piedmont, Calif. They know a possible Davis Cup berth hinges on their performances.

Veteran Ham Richardson, Arlington, Va., passed up the tournament because of an aggravated diabetic condition.

Wilson Signs New Pact With Detroit's Lions

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Lions Wednesday night gave Coach George Wilson another one-year contract to coach the National Football League team. Terms of the pact were not disclosed.

It was learned several weeks ago that Wilson, completing his second season as coach, would be back regardless of what the defending world champions did in the remaining games.

The board of directors of the Detroit Football Co. met Wednesday to make it official.

Lions officials said no decision had been reached on the status of Wilson's assistant coaches, but Wilson expressed belief all would return.

The Lions, with two games remaining, have won 4, and lost 5 and tied 1.

Seminoles Ready For Bowl Game

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Florida State's Seminoles began getting ready for the Blue Grass Bowl this week with workouts on Wednesday.

FSU, which takes on Oklahoma State in the bowl Dec. 13, will have only sophomore end Bob Kavanaugh out of action. Kavanaugh has a back injury.

Cards Trade Amaro For Chuck Essegian

WASHINGTON (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday traded infielder Ruben Amaro to the Philadelphia Phillies for outfielder Chuck Essegian.

Amaro, 23, a Mexican-born shortstop, batted .224 after he was brought up from Rochester of the International League where he hit .200. He is known as a good fielder but poor hitter.

Essegian, right-handed power hitter, batted .246 for the Phillies last year before being optioned to Miami where he hit .248.

Jailbreak Wins Bristol Handicap At Narragansett

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Dec. 3 (AP) —Jailbreak, a 5-year-old son of Bold Venture, today carried the silks of the Riverwood Farm to victory in the longest race of the Narragansett Park meeting, the Bristol Handicap No. 5, two miles and 70 yards for 3-year-olds and up.

With Phil Grimm riding to his second victory of the day, Jailbreak came from far back in the field of 11 and led the favorite, Mrs. Julie Miron's Collision by 2½ lengths at the wire.

The winner's time was 3:37 3/5. It was Jailbreak's second victory in four starts at the meeting. He paid $12.60, $6.40 and $3.40.

Collision returned $3.80 and $2.40 after finishing half a length in front of C. F. Chapman's George Hosh. The latter ran coupled with K. J. Green's Iceman, both being trained by F. H. Merrill Jr., the entry paid $2.60 to show.

A $80.20 double resulted from the victory of the favorited Sandusky, owned by J. H. Clark, and E. E. Millen's Dot's Boy. There were 18 ten-dollar tickets and 693 two-dollar tickets sold on the winning combination.

Bob Novogratz Top Lineman

Army Guard Wins Coveted Honors

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Army's Bob Novogratz had his finest hour in the game he wanted to win above all others in an illustrious football career.

For his stirring play in the big one, the 22-6 victory over Navy, the strapping senior guard Wednesday was named "lineman of the week" by the Associated Press.

"This is really good news," said Novogratz. "It's a greay way for me personally to sign off a most satisfactory season."

Bill Gunloch, Army's offensive line coach, said "His blocking as graded in the films approximated 85 per cent all season, which is phenomenal.

"As a linebacker, he made 138 tackles, 18 of them against Navy which ranked as his best effort all season. He is well deserving of the honor."

Besides the tackling and blocking, Novogratz receovered three fumbles in the service classic. His recovery of one of the fumbles by teammate Bob Anderson on the Navy 24 kept alive Army's second touchdown drive.

The Sports Patrol

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Add Warren Spahn of the Milwaukee Braves to the list of baseball veterans who'd like to see the "spitball" made legal again.

The years are creeping up on baseball's greatest left-handed pitcher, now 37 and goin' on 38, so you can't blame the old boy for dreaming about that well-known fountain of youth—the legal spitter.

"I don't have one now," said Spahn at a gabfest in Buffalo, N.Y., this week, "but I'm going to get one if it becomes legal."

And why not? The spitter kept ancient Jack Quinn in the majors until he was nearly 50. Red Faber still was chuckin' his spitter at 45. Burleigh Grimes, the last to throw a legal "wetback" in the majors in 1954, stuck it out until he was 41.

The spitter was banned in 1920 but the 17 spit-specialists of the day were permitted to continue their moistening as long as they "lived" in pro baseball and it was 14 more years before the last of them, Grimes, departed.

Less Arm Strain

Since then, such important baseball men as Commissioner Ford Frick, Branch Rickey and International League President Frank Shaughnessy have come out in favor of a legal spitter.

Generally, they agreed it would make young pitchers more effective and old pitchers last longer since a spitter puts less strain on the arm than the trick pitches the stars are using today.

Up to here, Spahn obviously doesn't need a new pitch to keep him on top.

The nifty lefty amassed a 22-11 record for the Braves last season, the ninth year in which he racked up 20 or more, and no other southpaw has done as well.

"I believe," he says, "I can go another five years."

Spahnie never had arm trouble, so maybe he could stretch it another five even without the spitter. His only bad seasons in the majors were induced by troubles with his knees, not his arm, and the knees have been repaired.

Pitcher's Best Friend

But with a spitter, if he could master it, the best of the Braves might go even longer than another five years.

"A spitter," says Grimes, "is the pitcher's best friend. It kept me going a long time and it could do the same for anyone. My arm today is just as straight as it ever was."

Rickey insisted once he could teach any young baseball pitcher to throw a spitter "in a couple of hours." A pitcher who couldn't master an effective curve thus could get a breaking pitch in short order.

"One thing, though," Grimes warns, "you have to have that fastball. A spitter all alone won't help."

Illegal spitters, it has been charged, can be seen almost every day somewhere around the circuit.

"I'd rather hit at a spitter any day than against a knuckler," said veteran Pee Wee Reese of the Dodgers.

So, in time, the spitter may come back. And you can't blame the aging pitchers like Spahn for dreaming.

Deer Slayers Start Out Young

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) —Deer slayers apparently get an early start in this area.

Kenneth Owens, 11, bagged a five-point buck on the opening day of deer season Monday and his brother Gary, 14, shot a two-pointer Tuesday, their family reported. Both kills were made in Tyler County.

It was no new experience for Gary, who shot his first deer three years ago when he was 11.

MacKay Shows Some Of Old Time Net Form

Brings Hope For U.S. Davis Cuppers

MELBOURNE (AP) — Tireless effort has brought big Barry MacKay to the fringe of his 1957 form, thus tossing a little ray of sunshine over America's troubled Davis Cup tennis forces.

If anybody is to beat Australia's favored Ashley Cooper in the victorian championships opening Thursday, many observers believe it may well be the 6-4 giant from Dayton, Ohio, who is hitting the ball with more venom and effectiveness than at anytime in the last several months.

"Barry is working like a plough horse," Perry Jones, U.S. Davis Cup captain, said Wednesday. "He is one of the most conscientious and determined players on the squad and his devotion is beginning to show results."

Jones has given MacKay instructions to quit trying to baby the ball and start hitting all out. "MacKay has tremendous power," Jones said. "He should utilize it. We have told him to abandon excess caution and to blast away for winners."

Earl Buchholz, 18, of St. Louis, riding a wave of popularity after gaining the New South Wales finals, would create a near miracle if he should duplicate that feat here.

Other U.S. players are Peruvian Alex Olmedo of Los Angeles and Chris Crawford, of Piedmont, Calif. They know a possible Davis Cup berth hinges on their performances.

Veteran Ham Richardson, Arlington, Va., passed up the tournament because of an aggravated diabetic condition.

Wilson Signs New Pact With Detroit's Lions

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Lions Wednesday night gave Coach George Wilson another one-year contract to coach the National Football League team. Terms of the pact were not disclosed.

It was learned several weeks ago that Wilson, completing his second season as coach, would be back regardless of what the defending world champions did in the remaining games.

The board of directors of the Detroit Football Co. met Wednesday to make it official.

Lions officials said no decision had been reached on the status of Wilson's assistant coaches, but Wilson expressed belief all would return.

The Lions, with two games remaining, have won 4, and lost 5 and tied 1.

Seminoles Ready For Bowl Game

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Florida State's Seminoles began getting ready for the Blue Grass Bowl this week with workouts on Wednesday.

The Seminoles worked their offense and got in some quick running, wind sprints and conditioning Wednesday afternoon before rain forced them indoors.

FSU, which takes on Oklahoma State in the bowl Dec. 13, will have only sophomore end Bob Kavanaugh out of action. Kavanaugh has a back injury.

Cards Trade Amaro For Chuck Essegian

WASHINGTON (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday traded infielder Ruben Amaro to the Philadelphia Phillies for outfielder Chuck Essegian.

Amaro, 23, a Mexican-born shortstop, batted .224 after he was brought up from Rochester of the International League where he hit .200. He is known as a good fielder but poor hitter.

Essegian, right-handed power hitter, batted .246 for the Phillies last year before being optioned to Miami where he hit .248.

Jailbreak Wins Bristol Handicap At Narragansett

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Dec. 3 (AP) —Jailbreak, a 5-year-old son of Bold Venture, today carried the silks of the Riverwood Farm to victory in the longest race of the Narragansett Park meeting, the Bristol Handicap No. 5, two miles and 70 yards for 3-year-olds and up.

With Phil Grimm riding to his second victory of the day, Jailbreak came from far back in the field of 11 and led the favorite, Mrs. Julie Miron's Collision by 2½ lengths at the wire.

The winner's time was 3:37 3/5. It was Jailbreak's second victory in four starts at the meeting. He paid $12.60, $6.40 and $3.40.

Collision returned $3.80 and $2.40 after finishing half a length in front of C. F. Chapman's George Hosh. The latter ran coupled with K. J. Green's Iceman, both being trained by F. H. Merrill Jr., the entry paid $2.60 to show.

A $80.20 double resulted from the victory of the favorited Sandusky, owned by J. H. Clark, and E. E. Millen's Dot's Boy. There were 18 ten-dollar tickets and 693 two-dollar tickets sold on the winning combination.

Bob Novogratz Top Lineman

Army Guard Wins Coveted Honors

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Army's Bob Novogratz had his finest hour in the game he wanted to win above all others in an illustrious football career.

For his stirring play in the big one, the 22-6 victory over Navy, the strapping senior guard Wednesday was named "lineman of the week" by the Associated Press.

"This is really good news," said Novogratz. "It's a greay way for me personally to sign off a most satisfactory season."

Bill Gunloch, Army's offensive line coach, said "His blocking as graded in the films approximated 85 per cent all season, which is phenomenal.

"As a linebacker, he made 138 tackles, 18 of them against Navy which ranked as his best effort all season. He is well deserving of the honor."

Besides the tackling and blocking, Novogratz receovered three fumbles in the service classic. His recovery of one of the fumbles by teammate Bob Anderson on the Navy 24 kept alive Army's second touchdown drive.

The Sports Patrol

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Add Warren Spahn of the Milwaukee Braves to the list of baseball veterans who'd like to see the "spitball" made legal again.

The years are creeping up on baseball's greatest left-handed pitcher, now 37 and goin' on 38, so you can't blame the old boy for dreaming about that well-known fountain of youth—the legal spitter.

"I don't have one now," said Spahn at a gabfest in Buffalo, N.Y., this week, "but I'm going to get one if it becomes legal."

And why not? The spitter kept ancient Jack Quinn in the majors until he was nearly 50. Red Faber still was chuckin' his spitter at 45. Burleigh Grimes, the last to throw a legal "wetback" in the majors in 1954, stuck it out until he was 41.

The spitter was banned in 1920 but the 17 spit-specialists of the day were permitted to continue their moistening as long as they "lived" in pro baseball and it was 14 more years before the last of them, Grimes, departed.

Less Arm Strain

Since then, such important baseball men as Commissioner Ford Frick, Branch Rickey and International League President Frank Shaughnessy have come out in favor of a legal spitter.

Generally, they agreed it would make young pitchers more effective and old pitchers last longer since a spitter puts less strain on the arm than the trick pitches the stars are using today.

Up to here, Spahn obviously doesn't need a new pitch to keep him on top.

The nifty lefty amassed a 22-11 record for the Braves last season, the ninth year in which he racked up 20 or more, and no other southpaw has done as well.

"I believe," he says, "I can go another five years."

Spahnie never had arm trouble, so maybe he could stretch it another five even without the spitter. His only bad seasons in the majors were induced by troubles with his knees, not his arm, and the knees have been repaired.

Pitcher's Best Friend

But with a spitter, if he could master it, the best of the Braves might go even longer than another five years.

"A spitter," says Grimes, "is the pitcher's best friend. It kept me going a long time and it could do the same for anyone. My arm today is just as straight as it ever was."

Rickey insisted once he could teach any young baseball pitcher to throw a spitter "in a couple of hours." A pitcher who couldn't master an effective curve thus could get a breaking pitch in short order.

"One thing, though," Grimes warns, "you have to have that fastball. A spitter all alone won't help."

Illegal spitters, it has been charged, can be seen almost every day somewhere around the circuit.

"I'd rather hit at a spitter any day than against a knuckler," said veteran Pee Wee Reese of the Dodgers.

So, in time, the spitter may come back. And you can't blame the aging pitchers like Spahn for dreaming.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Spencer J. Drayton, president of the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau, Wednesday resigned as executive secretary of the Thoroughbred Racing Assn., a post he held 12 years.

He said he had asked to be relieved of the post two years ago but stayed on at the request of TRA President James Stewart, vice president of Hollywood Park.

WORLD VETS HELP VETS

Three times in ten years, war has raged through the islands of Indonesia, now an independent nation, leaving thousands of maimed and wounded among its 80,000,000 inhabitants. Only recently a center has been established at Solo, in central Java, that promises to rescue many of the crippled and to restore them to useful and productive lives. It comprises a joint effort among the United Nations, the Indonesian Government, and the World Veterans Federation, representing 18,000,000 veterans in thirty countries. Dr. Douglas Toffelmier from California, an orthopedic surgeon, has been called to Solo to help plan the extension of the center, and to teach the new type of surgery required.

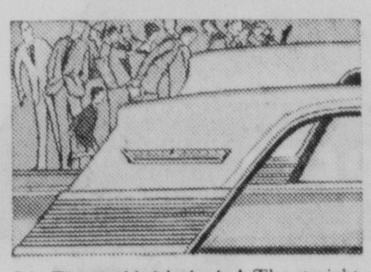
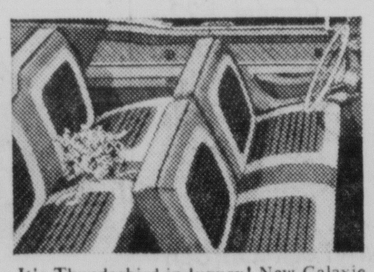
THE MOST BEAUTIFUL WEDDING OF THE YEAR

They're married in style and luxury! The Thunderbird and the new Ford Galaxie.

Announcing
THE NEW FORD Galaxie



It's Thunderbird in looks! The straight-line Galaxie roof and see-it-all rear window say Thunderbird unmistakably. So does the classic simplicity of its body lines. It's the most perfect match yet of the Thunderbird's clean, low-swept silhouette.



It's Thunderbird in luxury! New Galaxie appointments—like the plush, deep-pile carpets—are so very Thunderbird in taste. There's Thunderbird V-8 power, too! A surpassing luxury that tells you how superbly these newlyweds "GO" together.

Just Married in Style to the Thunderbird!

It's the most exciting of all the 59 Fords—the elegant new Galaxie. A bright new personality in cars—and more. The Galaxie is a full "fine car" 6-passenger expression of Thunderbird grace and luxury in an altogether new line of Fords. It's as wonderfully all-the-way Thunderbird as a low-price Ford can be.

Reception now—you are invited. Come and see the Galaxie and the very full measure of elegance it brings to the low-price field. True, Ford owners are accustomed to luxury—and at the low Ford price. But never in any Ford—nor in cars costing far more—have you seen anything as sweet, smart and glamorous as this! Come see Ford's new Galaxie today . . . and bring the entire family.

You'll want to honeymoon again in a 59 FORD

WORLD VETS HELP VETS

Three times in ten years, war has raged through the islands of Indonesia, now an independent nation, leaving thousands of maimed and wounded among its 80,000,000 inhabitants. Only recently a center has been established at Solo, in central Java, that promises to rescue many of the crippled and to restore them to useful and productive lives. It comprises a joint effort among the United Nations, the Indonesian Government, and the World Veterans Federation, representing 18,000,000 veterans in thirty countries. Dr. Douglas Toffelmier from California, an orthopedic surgeon, has been called to Solo to help plan the extension of the center, and to teach the new type of surgery required.

W.Va. Hunter Is Killed

WEST UNION, W. Va. (UPI)—The body of Sam Stalnaker, prominent Doddridge County businessman, was found in his parked car near here Wednesday afternoon.

Police said Stalnaker, about 60, had been shot in the head and died instantly. He reportedly left here shortly after noon Wednesday to go deer hunting.

Authorities theorized that Stalnaker spotted a deer in the woodland area near Maxwell Ridge Road several miles south of here and stopped the car.

Two spent shells were found beside the vehicle indicating that Stalnaker had fired at something. Doddridge County Sheriff Charter D. Stinespring said Stalnaker apparently then got back into the car, dragging the deer rifle in over the seat.

It is believed, Stinespring said, that the weapon accidentally discharged, killing Stalnaker.

Stalnaker, who resided at nearby Salem, owned an automobile agency and farm implement company here and was a director of the West Union Bank in addition to being a substantial property owner in this area.

The Jaycess closed their meeting befor 9 p.m. in order to go to the Clary Club to complete the decorations for the fifth annual Winter Frolic dance for the benefit of the Christmas children's clothing fund.

Russ Romero's orchestra from Pittsburgh, Pa., will provide music for the dance from 10 until 2 Friday night at the Clary Club. Proceeds are used to buy clothing for needy children at Christmas. About 200 couples will attend the dance.

Psychiatrists Will Examine W.Va. Slayer

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Three psychiatrists have been appointed at the request of Gov. Cecil H. Underwood to examine condemned slayer Elmer David Bruner of Huntington, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The governor's office said the psychiatrists' report is expected "in a few days." Bruner is scheduled to die in the electric chair at Moundsville Penitentiary Dec. 12 for the bludgeon slaying of Mrs. Ruby Miller, 58, 18 months ago at her Huntington home.

Meanwhile, the State Supreme Court refused Bruner's appeal for a stay of execution on grounds it lacked jurisdiction. Only two days ago it had rejected his petition for a writ of habeas corpus after earlier denying his appeal from his first degree murder conviction.

Bruner sought the stay of execution to allow him to appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court from the state appeals' bench refusal to grant his habeas corpus petition.

The governor's office also said it received another clemency plea Wednesday from the 41-year-old ex-convict and former odd - jobs man. In it, he repeated some of the contentions of his attorneys in legal appeals that he did not receive a fair trial in Cabell County Common Pleas Court.

An estimated 72 million persons in the world speak Arabic. Some 272 million speak the English language.

Sims Attacks 'Skinflint' Businessmen

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State Auditor Edgar B. Sims found a new target for his ire Wednesday — alleged shady practices of certain "skinflint" businessmen who try to garnishee the wages of state employes.

Sims released a letter he sent to a Lincoln County justice of the peace, refusing to honor a garnishee filed by the JP against a State Road Commission worker on behalf of a jewelry store here.

The judgment against the man amounted to $25, but added to it was $13.76 in interest, $6.75 in court costs and a $1.50 garnishee filing fee.

Sims said the Lincoln County magistrate lacked jurisdiction because the state employe was a long-time resident of Charleston; said the jeweler has "no legal right to charge interest on an open account," and said the filing fee should have been $1 instead of $1.50.

"I will defend state employes whoever they are against skinflints..." the letter said.

Only a day ago Sims was upheld by the Supreme Court on his new "late payday" policy which brought him into conflict with Gov. Cecil H. Underwood, former West Virginia University President Irvin Stewart and other state officials.

Youngsters May Get Letters From Santa

Dennis McIntyre, operator of McIntyre's Chevrolet, Inc., has a plan whereby children will be able to get a letter during the Christmas season from Santa Claus, Ind.

The auto company will supply the letters and envelopes, and parents may stop in at the agency's showroom on North Mechanic Street to address the letters to their children.

Mr. McIntyre said over 200 letters already have been sent to the Indiana community for its famous postmark. The special service will be continued until December 15.

Psychiatrists Will Examine W.Va. Slayer

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Three psychiatrists have been appointed at the request of Gov. Cecil H. Underwood to examine condemned slayer Elmer David Bruner of Huntington, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The governor's office said the psychiatrists' report is expected "in a few days." Bruner is scheduled to die in the electric chair at Moundsville Penitentiary Dec. 12 for the bludgeon slaying of Mrs. Ruby Miller, 58, 18 months ago at her Huntington home.

Meanwhile, the State Supreme Court refused Bruner's appeal for a stay of execution on grounds it lacked jurisdiction. Only two days ago it had rejected his petition for a writ of habeas corpus after earlier denying his appeal from his first degree murder conviction.

Bruner sought the stay of execution to allow him to appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court from the state appeals' bench refusal to grant his habeas corpus petition.

The governor's office also said it received another clemency plea Wednesday from the 41-year-old ex-convict and former odd - jobs man. In it, he repeated some of the contentions of his attorneys in legal appeals that he did not receive a fair trial in Cabell County Common Pleas Court.

An estimated 72 million persons in the world speak Arabic. Some 272 million speak the English language.

Sims Attacks 'Skinflint' Businessmen

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State Auditor Edgar B. Sims found a new target for his ire Wednesday — alleged shady practices of certain "skinflint" businessmen who try to garnishee the wages of state employes.

Sims released a letter he sent to a Lincoln County justice of the peace, refusing to honor a garnishee filed by the JP against a State Road Commission worker on behalf of a jewelry store here.

The judgment against the man amounted to $25, but added to it was $13.76 in interest, $6.75 in court costs and a $1.50 garnishee filing fee.

Sims said the Lincoln County magistrate lacked jurisdiction because the state employe was a long-time resident of Charleston; said the jeweler has "no legal right to charge interest on an open account," and said the filing fee should have been $1 instead of $1.50.

"I will defend state employes whoever they are against skinflints..." the letter said.

Only a day ago Sims was upheld by the Supreme Court on his new "late payday" policy which brought him into conflict with Gov. Cecil H. Underwood, former West Virginia University President Irvin Stewart and other state officials.

Youngsters May Get Letters From Santa

Dennis McIntyre, operator of McIntyre's Chevrolet, Inc., has a plan whereby children will be able to get a letter during the Christmas season from Santa Claus, Ind.

The auto company will supply the letters and envelopes, and parents may stop in at the agency's showroom on North Mechanic Street to address the letters to their children.

Mr. McIntyre said over 200 letters already have been sent to the Indiana community for its famous postmark. The special service will be continued until December 15.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—The very first picture made on the 20th Century-Fox lot the beginning of the year will be "Holiday for Lovers" and one of its most important stars, Carol Lynley, arrives here later this month. Clifton Webb, Gary Crosby and Diana Varsi are the other three already lined up. Diane and Carol play sisters.

Later Carol will star in "Blue Denim" for 20th, the stage play in which she was a hit on Broadway. I interviewed her when she and James MacArthur co-starred in "Light in the Forest" and she is so young and so cute.

David Weisbart, the producer, and Henry Levin, the director, are getting ready to leave for South America where locations for the film will be made.

One stop that Alfred Hitchcock will make when he goes to St. Moritz to spend the holidays will be in London. He has a date with producer Schuyler Livingstone, who wants Hitchy to direct two one-act plays of "Sherlock Holmes," Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's thrillers.

Hitchy has never directed a stage play and the idea of putting the father of detective tales on the stage intrigues him no end. He has been promised that if he will direct the play it will be taken to Broadway later in the year.

Who better than publicist Bill Doll could write the life story of Mike Todd with whom Bill was associated for over 20 years?

Frankly I was disappointed in Art Cohn's book, "The Nine Lives of Michael Todd." The first part was well written and then I thought it bogged down in the middle. Maybe that's unfair because Art was a very fine writer whose life was tragically snuffed out in the crash with Mike before he completed the book.

Anyway, there will be much about Todd's earlier career of which Cohn wasn't a part in Bill's biography.

Friday David Niven reports at MGM for "Ask Any Girl." He's delighted that Shirley MacLaine is to play opposite him again because they were so lucky for each other in "Around the World in 80 Days." David said that he and Shirley and her husband, Steve Parker, had a wonderful time in Honolulu earlier this year and that Steve is now here to spend the holidays with his wife and baby.

David always leaves me with a laugh. He said he had dinner with William Randolph Hearst, Jr., and Mrs. Hearst on her birthday. David asked Bill, "What about the Berlin situation?" (It was just at the time the newspapers broke the first stories on the Berlin crisis).

"What Berlin," quipped, "Dick or Irving?"

Every time I talk with Debbie Reynolds she's up to her neck in the Thalian party, which comes off at the Beverly Hilton Hotel on Dec. 12.

She's very pleased over having the first automobile she ever owned, a 1930 Chevrolet which was older than she was when she bought it years ago, turned back to her by the owner. It will be raffled off at the Thalian party. The car is really an antique and Debbie had so little money when she bought it that her mother sewed in the upholstery and her father kept up the mechanical repairs. She bought it when she had her first contract with MGM.

Marie McDonald is back home after three months of nightclub engagements and touring with "Geisha Boy," the picture she made with Jerry Lewis. She says all her old loves are in the past now, and that she's expecting Michael Gordon of Houston, Texas, to visit her over the holidays.

Marie tells me she broke attendance records in New Orleans and Phoenix. She's glad to be home and expects to stay put until Dec. 21, when she'll appear on the local City of Hope benefit.

Television and Radio

by John Crosby

Fun With Reservations

The story of a couple of innocent girl yokels from Columbus, Ohio, having some wildly funny adventures in a pre-war Greenwich Village apartment may well go down in literary history as more durable than "Hamlet." From a collection of short stories, it grew into a play, a movie, a musical named "Wonderful Town" and—thinly disguised as "My Friend Irma"—a radio and television series. Sunday it was a two-hour super spectacular with Rosalind Russell, which set some sort of record for sheer expense, and was generally a thorough-going disappointment.

I suppose the main thing wrong with "Wonderful Town" on TV was the sort of reverence with which the highly successful stage musical was transferred to television. Right from the opening number, it was as if the cameras had been trained on the stage and simply allowed to photograph the stage production. It was proscenium direction without any proscenium. However, it's unfair to tab the director, Mel Ferber, with all the blame for this singularly unimaginative and turgid treatment since, my spies tell me, Miss Russell was reluctant to change anything that had worked on stage.

This sort of direction, this sort of philosophy has never worked on television. In fact, the whole idea of putting on a whopping stage success with the original cast distresses me a little. This is playing it safe in the most disastrous way. I don't think you can insure success on television simply by shopping around for things that have been successful elsewhere. The most successful things on TV have been done by the bold, free spirits who pioneered.

And, having made all these churlish remarks, I must admit that "Wonderful Town" had its moments. I was charmed right at the outset by its opening number, "Christopher Street," which was so gay, so impudent, so redolent of the '30s, and so promising of a rich evening. Even after all these years, the lyrics of "What a Waste" and "One Hundred Ways To Lose a Man," and "Conversation" have the bite of truth and pointed observation.

Miss Russell is a personality full of sharp edges and explosive charm, who will command attention until she's 102. In this romp, at least insofar as television is concerned, I thought she was a little too noisy, that she was projecting clear to the second balcony. This criticism applies also to Dort Clark whose resonance got on my nerves. All the acting was full of large movements and incessant business—folding up the ironing board and so forth—and what seemed like an inordinate amount of entrances and exits. On television, what with the fluid multiple cameras, you don't have to walk out on stage center. But the actors kept striding stage center as if nothing had changed since Richard Brinsley Sheridan's day.

And, while I'm carping, I might as well complain about the integrated commercials. The wonderful period feeling—full of references to Helen Wills, the NRA, TVA—got a sharp jolt in a commercial when a guy says: "Don't bug me! I'm in orbit."—a line as anachronistic as a jet plane in "MacBeth." And the credits at the end found space for Miss Russell's gowns and her makeup but not for the director, authors, or composer. (Ferber, Joseph Fields, Jerome Chodorov, Betty Comden, Adolph Green, and Leonard Bernstein.)

Jacquelin McKeever I found very pretty and appealing, if a little too sweet as Eileen. I wish also that the show had been in color, especially the last number "Wrong Note Bag" which is a wonderful bit of jazz and jazz dancing. In spite of all these reservations, I had a good time, largely because Ruth McKenny's story about a couple of innocents in Greenwich Village is a sunny and ageless story about the dear old Depression days which, in retrospect, seem positively inviting, though we didn't think so then.

"Peter and the Wolf" with Art Carney, the Bill and Cora Baird puppets and a lot of lyrics by Ogden Nash sounded promising but turned out really long-winded, repetitious and dull, I thought, though a young lady of three I know found it all delicious—if that's any comfort. (Her mother told me she hardly ever buys anything though, so the sponsor can't derive much comfort from that.) Art Carney is normally one of my favorite performers but he seemed a little self-conscious at being surrounded by all the little wild things of the forest.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

MEXICO CITY—We dropped by the press department the government set up in connection with the inauguration of President Adolfo Lopez Mateos, just after the ceremony, and asked for an English text of his nearly hour-long inaugural address.

The pretty Mexican girl in charge said "We don't even have the Spanish text."

"How would you suggest that I get an English text?" I asked.

"Pick it up tomorrow in the newspapers," a greenhorn assistant said.

"But I have to write something about it this minute."

He shrugged and said, "Don't worry, it will be in tomorrow's newspapers."

Father John Considine, the Maryknoll missionary and author, brings up a seldom discussed fact in his remarkably perceptive book, "New Horizons in Latin America," published by Dodd, Mead. He calls this particular point "the United States Catholic indifference factor." As a United States Catholic I was impressed as I read:

"An Argentinian Passionist remarked to me, 'At times in United States rectories I found myself in a fury at the bleakly ignorant statements levelled at me regarding my homeland and the church in Argentina and regarding life in other parts of Latin America'.

"A Colombian Jesuit friend who had studied in a United States college said to me one day in Bogota 'What is there in the United States Catholic that makes him, despite his lamentable ignorance of South American ways and religious traditions, assume the role of the Eternal Father Himself in tending us unsolicited advice as to what we must do to lift ourselves out of our shame? Heaven knows we need help but why not offer it to us not as masters but as our brothers?' "

There was a touching moment in the inauguration of Adolfo Lopez Mateos as the 57th constitutional president of the Mexican United States. Former President Ruiz Cortines took the brighlty colored red, white and green sash from his spotlessly white shirted chest and attempted to put it on Lopez Mateos. It turned out to be a difficult job. The retiring president-who was given a much warmer reception than we give our own ex-presidents — made a series of stabs at putting the symbol of office on his successor and failed utterly. Finally the handsome young and new president took the vestment and put it on himself, reminding Eric Severeid and a few other historically-minded souls of Napoleon seizing his crown from the prelate and crowning himself.

The important thing was that once the sash had been adjusted by Lopez Mateos he and his predecessor embraced each other and pounded each other's backs in a manner which we in the states seldom do. It is a wonderful practice, really. We should practice it.

Bill O'Dwyer, one of the most brilliant men I ever met, is doing well in Mexico City as an attorney. He will never return permanently to New York, where he once tended bar, pounded a beat as a cop, was a judge, smashed Murder Incorporated as Brooklyn district attorney, and was mayor. He is the most beloved North American in Mexico.

O'Dwyer is in the throes of writing a book. I wish I were a publisher.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Want To Gain Weight?

If you are 10 or more pounds underweight, you are missing out on a lot more than just the curves that a lovely feminine figure needs.

Start eating! Start with a good breakfast of fruit, cereal and cream, bacon and eggs, toast and butter; coffee and cream or cocoa and eat all of these items every morning—every single morning!

Let your lunch consist of a good-sized meat or cheese sandwich or its equivalent, plus a dessert.

Your dinner should consist of soup, meat, a creamed or buttered vegetable, potato with gravy or butter, bread and butter, a salad with dressing and a large portion of dessert and milk.

If you follow that plan of eating daily, you will gain. Do not expect to gain steadily. You are most likely to gain about three pounds, then lose two and then start to gain again.

Exercise is important during this period in order to stretch the frame of your body to accommodate the new poundage.

Stretching, limbering and breathing exercises should be performed for 10 to 15 minutes daily. Perform them rhythmically and then rest for 10 minutes before taking a long bath.

For stretching and limbering, perform the fencer's thrust. Throw your left arm straight forward at the shoulder at the same time as you bend your left knee and thrust your left foot forward in a lunging motion. Stretch both leg and arm as far as possible. Then face the opposite direction and go through the same motion with right arm and knee. Put as much verve and gusto into your motions as possible.

As a breathing exercise, hold your arms straight out sideways from your shoulders. Rotate them very slowly in a circular motion. With each circle inhale and exhale deeply.

With just these simple measures, even though you have been underweight for years, you will start to gain. You'll look better, feel better and do better. What a lot of gain that is!

With over 2,000,000 visitors last year, the United Nations headquarters area is now ranked as New York's primary tourist attraction. The busiest months are April and May, according to Glenn E. Bennett, chief of the Visitors' Service. Easter week normally brings the peak crowds, including busloads of school children. The 4,000,000th visitor was welcomed last March. "Even though you can't go to Europe, you can see a lot of the world right here," commented Max S. Crouder of Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan, on his way through the international enclave a few days ago.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Six of ♥.

East in today's hand discovered to his regret that the standard tables of leads featured in books are not always to be followed literally in practice. The dummy sometimes presents an appearance that should indicate a departure from normal procedure.

The bidding was rather routine. Although South had practically all of his high card strength concentrated in two suits, one no trump was the only available opening bid. North proceded directly to game since his nine points were promoted by possession of a five card suit plus three 10s.

West opened the 6 of hearts and East's 9 was taken by dedeclarer's queen. With nine tricks as his goal declarer was obliged to play for the club suit. He therefore led the jack and permitted it to ride. East won with the queen and realizing that the only hope for developing tricks lay in spades, decided to shift to that suit. Unfortunately he gave only superficial thought to the selection of the proper spade to lead and chose the queen.

On a blind opening, the queen is the textbook lead but the exposed dummy reveals that the lead of the deuce of spades is superior. The queen will work well enough if South has three spades or less, but if South has four, as he actually did, the lead of the honor provides him with another stopper.

Obviously East cannot hope to defeat the contract unless West has a high card trick (and from the manner in which clubs were attacked it appears probable that West has the ace of clubs). The low spade return permits declarer to win the trick cheaply, but when West regains the lead a spade through the dummy yield. East three tricks in the suit, enough to defeat the contract.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—The very first picture made on the 20th Century-Fox lot the beginning of the year will be "Holiday for Lovers" and one of its most important stars, Carol Lynley, arrives here later this month. Clifton Webb, Gary Crosby and Diana Varsi are the other three already lined up. Diane and Carol play sisters.

Later Carol will star in "Blue Denim" for 20th, the stage play in which she was a hit on Broadway. I interviewed her when she and James MacArthur co-starred in "Light in the Forest" and she is so young and so cute.

David Weisbart, the producer, and Henry Levin, the director, are getting ready to leave for South America where locations for the film will be made.

One stop that Alfred Hitchcock will make when he goes to St. Moritz to spend the holidays will be in London. He has a date with producer Schuyler Livingstone, who wants Hitchy to direct two one-act plays of "Sherlock Holmes," Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's thrillers.

Hitchy has never directed a stage play and the idea of putting the father of detective tales on the stage intrigues him no end. He has been promised that if he will direct the play it will be taken to Broadway later in the year.

Who better than publicist Bill Doll could write the life story of Mike Todd with whom Bill was associated for over 20 years?

Frankly I was disappointed in Art Cohn's book, "The Nine Lives of Michael Todd." The first part was well written and then I thought it bogged down in the middle. Maybe that's unfair because Art was a very fine writer whose life was tragically snuffed out in the crash with Mike before he completed the book.

Anyway, there will be much about Todd's earlier career of which Cohn wasn't a part in Bill's biography.

Friday David Niven reports at MGM for "Ask Any Girl." He's delighted that Shirley MacLaine is to play opposite him again because they were so lucky for each other in "Around the World in 80 Days." David said that he and Shirley and her husband, Steve Parker, had a wonderful time in Honolulu earlier this year and that Steve is now here to spend the holidays with his wife and baby.

David always leaves me with a laugh. He said he had dinner with William Randolph Hearst, Jr., and Mrs. Hearst on her birthday. David asked Bill, "What about the Berlin situation?" (It was just at the time the newspapers broke the first stories on the Berlin crisis).

"What Berlin," quipped, "Dick or Irving?"

Every time I talk with Debbie Reynolds she's up to her neck in the Thalian party, which comes off at the Beverly Hilton Hotel on Dec. 12.

She's very pleased over having the first automobile she ever owned, a 1930 Chevrolet which was older than she was when she bought it years ago, turned back to her by the owner. It will be raffled off at the Thalian party. The car is really an antique and Debbie had so little money when she bought it that her mother sewed in the upholstery and her father kept up the mechanical repairs. She bought it when she had her first contract with MGM.

Marie McDonald is back home after three months of nightclub engagements and touring with "Geisha Boy," the picture she made with Jerry Lewis. She says all her old loves are in the past now, and that she's expecting Michael Gordon of Houston, Texas, to visit her over the holidays.

Marie tells me she broke attendance records in New Orleans and Phoenix. She's glad to be home and expects to stay put until Dec. 21, when she'll appear on the local City of Hope benefit.

You can look better and do better, if you eat sensibly.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Want To Gain Weight?

If you are 10 or more pounds underweight, you are missing out on a lot more than just the curves that a lovely feminine figure needs.

Start eating! Start with a good breakfast of fruit, cereal and cream, bacon and eggs, toast and butter, coffee and cream or cocoa and eat all of these items every morning—every single morning!

Let your lunch consist of a good-sized meat or cheese sandwich or its equivalent, plus a dessert.

Your dinner should consist of soup, meat, a creamed or buttered vegetable, potato with gravy or butter, bread and butter, a salad with dressing and a large portion of dessert and milk.

If you follow that plan of eating daily, you will gain. Do not expect to gain steadily. You are most likely to gain about three pounds, then lose two and then start to gain again.

Exercise is important during this period in order to stretch the frame of your body to accommodate the new poundage.

Stretching, limbering and breathing exercises should be performed for 10 to 15 minutes daily. Perform them rhythmically and then rest for 10 minutes before taking a long bath.

For stretching and limbering, perform the fencer's thrust. Throw your left arm straight forward at the shoulder at the same time as you bend your left knee and thrust your left foot forward in a lunging motion. Stretch both leg and arm as far as possible. Then face the opposite direction and go through the same motion with right arm and knee. Put as much verve and gusto into your motions as possible.

As a breathing exercise, hold your arms straight out sideways from your shoulders. Rotate them very slowly in a circular motion. With each circle inhale and exhale deeply.

With just these simple measures, even though you have been underweight for years, you will start to gain. You'll look better, feel better and do better. What a lot of gain that is!

Television and Radio

Fun With Reservations

The story of a couple of innocent girl yokels from Columbus, Ohio, having some wildly funny adventures in a pre-war Greenwich Village apartment may well go down in literary history as more durable than "Hamlet." From a collection of short stories, it grew into a play, a movie, a musical named "Wonderful Town" and—thinly disguised as "My Friend Irma"—a radio and television series. Sunday it was a two-hour super spectacular with Rosalind Russell, which set some sort of record for sheer expense, and was generally a thorough-going disappointment.

I suppose the main thing wrong with "Wonderful Town" on TV was the sort of reverence with which the highly successful stage musical was transferred to television. Right from the opening number, it was as if the cameras had been trained on the stage and simply allowed to photograph the stage production. It was proscenium direction without any proscenium. However, it's unfair to tab the director, Mel Ferber, with all the blame for this singularly unimaginative and turgid treatment since, my spies tell me, Miss Russell was reluctant to change anything that had worked on stage.

This sort of direction, this sort of philosophy has never worked on television. In fact, the whole idea of putting on a whopping stage success with the original cast distresses me a little. This is playing it safe in the most disastrous way. I don't think you can insure success on television simply by shopping around for things that have been successful elsewhere. The most successful things on TV have been done by the bold, free spirits who pioneered .

And, having made all these churlish remarks, I must admit that "Wonderful Town" had its moments. I was charmed right at the outset by its opening number, "Christopher Street," which was so gay, so impudent, so redolent of the '30s, and so promising of a rich evening. Even after all these years, the lyrics of "What a Waste" and "One Hundred Ways To Lose a Man," and "Conversation" have the bite of truth and pointed observation.

Miss Russell is a personality full of sharp edges and explosive charm, who will command attention until she's 102. In this romp, at least insofar as television is concerned, I thought she was a little too noisy, that she was projecting clear to the second balcony. This criticism applies also to Dort Clark whose resonance got on my nerves. All the acting was full of large movements and incessant business—folding up the ironing board and so forth—and what seemed like an inordinate amount of entrances and exits. On television, what with the fluid multiple cameras, you don't have to walk out on stage center. But the actors kept striding stage center as if nothing had changed since Richard Brinsley Sheridan's day.

And, while I'm carping, I might as well complain about the integrated commercials. The wonderful period feeling—full of references to Helen Wills, the NRA, TVA—got a sharp jolt in a commercial when a guy says: "Don't bug me! I'm in orbit."—a line as anachronistic as a jet plane in "MacBeth." And the credits at the end found space for Miss Russell's gowns and her makeup but not for the director, authors, or composer. (Ferber, Joseph Fields, Jerome Chodorov, Betty Comden, Adolph Green, and Leonard Bernstein.)

Jacquelin McKeever I found very pretty and appealing, if a little too sweet as Eileen. I wish also that the show had been in color, especially the last number "Wrong Note Bag" which is a wonderful bit of jazz and jazz dancing. In spite of all these reservations, I had a good time, largely because Ruth McKenny's story about a couple of innocents in Greenwich Village is a sunny and ageless story about the dear old Depression days which, in retrospect, seem positively inviting, though we didn't think so then.

"Peter and the Wolf" with Art Carney, the Bill and Cora Baird puppets and a lot of lyrics by Ogden Nash sounded promising but turned out really long-winded, repetitious and dull, I thought, though a young lady of three I know found it all delicious—if that's any comfort. (Her mother told me she hardly ever buys anything though, so the sponsor can't derive much comfort from that.) Art Carney is normally one of my favorite performers but he seemed a little self-conscious at being surrounded by all the little wild things of the forest.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

MEXICO CITY—We dropped by the press department the government set up in connection with the inauguration of President Adolfo Lopez Mateos, just after the ceremony, and asked for an English text of his nearly hour-long inaugural address.

The pretty Mexican girl in charge said "We don't even have the Spanish text."

"How would you suggest that I get an English text?" I asked.

"Pick it up tomorrow in the newspapers," a greenhorn assistant said.

"But I have to write something about it this minute."

He shrugged and said, "Don't worry, it will be in tomorrow's newspapers."

Father John Considine, the Maryknoll missionary and author, brings up a seldom discussed fact in his remarkably perceptive book, "New Horizons in Latin America," published by Dodd, Mead. He calls this particular point "the United States Catholic indifference factor." As a United States Catholic I was impressed as I read:

"An Argentinian Passionist remarked to me, 'At times in United States rectories I found myself in a fury at the bleakly ignorant statements levelled at me regarding my homeland and the church in Argentina and regarding life in other parts of Latin America'.

"A Colombian Jesuit friend who had studied in a United States college said to me one day in Bogota 'What is there in the United States Catholic that makes him, despite his lamentable ignorance of South American ways and religious traditions, assume the role of the Eternal Father Himself in tending us unsolicited advice as to what we must do to lift ourselves out of our shame? Heaven knows we need help but why not offer it to us not as masters but as our brothers?' "

There was a touching moment in the inauguration of Adolfo Lopez Mateos as the 57th constitutional president of the Mexican United States. Former President Ruiz Cortines took the brighlty colored red, white and green sash from his spotlessly white shirted chest and attempted to put it on Lopez Mateos. It turned out to be a difficult job. The retiring president-who was given a much warmer reception than we give our own ex-presidents — made a series of stabs at putting the symbol of office on his successor and failed utterly. Finally the handsome young and new president took the vestment and put it on himself, reminding Eric Severeid and a few other historically-minded souls of Napoleon seizing his crown from the prelate and crowning himself.

The important thing was that once the sash had been adjusted by Lopez Mateos he and his predecessor embraced each other and pounded each other's backs in a manner which we in the states seldom do. It is a wonderful practice, really. We should practice it.

Bill O'Dwyer, one of the most brilliant men I ever met, is doing well in Mexico City as an attorney. He will never return permanently to New York, where he once tended bar, pounded a beat as a cop, was a judge, smashed Murder Incorporated as Brooklyn district attorney, and was mayor. He is the most beloved North American in Mexico.

O'Dwyer is in the throes of writing a book. I wish I were a publisher.

Stock Market Irregular; Late Rally Pares Losses

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks met support on increased activity late in the session after an interval of profit-taking had pared gains scored in the Friday-Tuesday rise.

Demand which developed as the climax of an irregular, moderate session was sufficient to put industrials into the plus side in the averages. Rails, despite a general improvement from the day's lows, finished slightly lower on balance. Utilities also had a small rise and the 65 - stock general Dow-Jones average showed a gain of 0.03 on the day.

Volume, lagging through the fourth hour, edged ahead of Tuesday in the late dealings, totaling 3,460,000 shares for the session, compared with 3,320,000.

Some individual specialties stood out with sizable gains—2 to more than 3 points each in Sealright-Oswego, James Lees, P. Lorillard, Hertz, Siegler, Parmelee Transportation, Grumman Aircraft, Oolaroid, International Paper, Zenith.

American Motors moved up on active trading, adding a point net and others in the group showed minor declines for the most part.

Coppers, under pressure of price declines for the metal, closed above their lows but still had losses running past a point in Anaconda and International Nickel.

Profit-taking put Goodyear down more than 2 points in the tires, Siegler down more than 2 in the electronics.

For steels, final prices were a fraction either side of the previous except for Simonds which dropped over 2 points. Among oils, Amerada closed nearly 2 lower while Jersey Standard rose almost a point in the chemicals where Hercules Powder lost 2, selling ex-dividend. Vick rose 2 points: American Home Products declined 1½ in the drugs.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Grain futures closed with about steady prices Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat closed off ½ to up ½ cent; corn (old) off ¼ to ⅝ cent; (new) off ⅜ to ½ cent; oats up 1 to off ¼ cent; rye up ⅛ to off ⅝ cent; soybeans off ⅛ to ¾ cent.

Moderate commercial buying held wheat fairly steady throughout the session. Selling was by locals, in addition to scattered liquidation in the December contract. Cash houses sold in the March and December deliveries.

With cash buyers active, December corn reached firm levels. Local longs and commission houses supplied the demand for the December. Spot corn edged higher. Northwest brokers bought December and sold March.

Oats trading centered in the December option. Cash houses bought December against sales of May oats.

Dullness was apparent in soybeans. Longs did most selling, but demand was limited.

Grains at outside markets were easy to steady. The range:

Stock Market Irregular; Late Rally Pares Losses

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks met support on increased activity late in the session after an interval of profit-taking had pared gains scored in the Friday-Tuesday rise.

Demand which developed as the climax of an irregular, moderate session was sufficient to put industrials into the plus side in the averages. Rails, despite a general improvement from the day's lows, finished slightly lower on balance. Utilities also had a small rise and the 65 - stock general Dow-Jones average showed a gain of 0.03 on the day.

Volume, lagging through the fourth hour, edged ahead of Tuesday in the late dealings, totaling 3,460,000 shares for the session, compared with 3,320,000.

Some individual specialties stood out with sizable gains—2 to more than 3 points each in Sealright-Oswego, James Lees, P. Lorillard, Hertz, Siegler, Parmelee Transportation, Grumman Aircraft, Ooloaroid, International Paper, Zenith.

American Motors moved up on active trading, adding a point net and others in the group showed minor declines for the most part.

Coppers, under pressure of price declines for the metal, closed above their lows but still had losses running past a point in Anaconda and International Nickel.

Profit-taking put Goodyear down more than 2 points in the tires, Siegler down more than 2 in the electronics.

For steels, final prices were a fraction either side of the previous except for Simonds which dropped over 2 points. Among oils, Amerada closed nearly 2 lower while Jersey Standard rose almost a point in the chemicals where Hercules Powder lost 2, selling ex-dividend. Vick rose 2 points: American Home Products declined 1½ in the drugs.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Grain futures closed with about steady prices Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat closed off ½ to up ½ cent; corn (old) off ¼ to ⅝ cent; (new) off ⅝ to ½ cent; oats up 1 to off ¼ cent; rye up ⅛ to off ⅝ cent; soybeans off ⅛ to ¾ cent.

Moderate commercial buying held wheat fairly steady throughout the session. Selling was by locals, in addition to scattered liquidation in the December contract. Cash houses sold in the March and December deliveries.

With cash buyers active, December corn reached firm levels. Local longs and commission houses supplied the demand for the December. Spot corn edged higher. Northwest brokers bought December and sold March.

Oats trading centered in the December option. Cash houses bought December against sales of May oats.

Dullness was apparent in soybeans. Longs did most selling, but demand was limited.

Grains at outside markets were easy to steady. The range:

Final Tasks Will Not Affect Traffic

Mayor J. Edwin Keech yesterday commended the companies and crews which completed repairs to the approach of the Baltimore Street Bridge in record time.

He said all of those who worked on the project are to be commended for their "wonderful work" on the difficult job.

Praised for their part in the project were the Western Maryland Railway, the George F. Hazelwood Company and the C & A Gas Company, who worked as a team and had the crossing back in service at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Early estimates called for a 24-hour, around-the-clock schedule.

Used Big Crews

Well manned crews, top supervision and plenty of equipment turned up at 7 a.m. to get the hump-trimming project on the road. By early afternoon, the work was advanced to the point where the crossing could be opened.

City officials said the Cumberland Contracting Company will go in today to do the final work. This includes a final coat of blacktop, but the work will be scheduled so traffic can be maintained.

C. R. Nuzum, city engineer, said the approach is back to where it was, with some minor improvements.

The work accomplished yesterday included the removal of the temporary bypass tracks, cutting off the hump which had to be placed for the approach to the temporary tracks, and the connection of high and low pressure gas lines.

Connect Gas Lines

The toughest job of all faced the gas company, which had to connect two gas lines, since the hookup could not be completed until the temporary tracks were out.

City officials said the company made the connections and backfilled, and will have the work area blacktopped today.

The work was accomplished during miserable weather which kept city traffic to a minimum.

The Air Force, according to local recruiter T/Sgt. Harold Waldrop, is making a special effort now to recruit men who can qualify for pilot and navigator training, and men and women who can qualify for assignment in the field of electronics.

Sgt. Waldrop said men with a high school education, if they can pass a special test, or men with two years of college or the equivalent, can be assigned for special training as pilots or navigators. The Air Force is interested now, he said, in recruiting an unlimited number of such personnel.

These men will be assigned to Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas, for six weeks of basic training and then to air bases in either Texas, Florida or Georgia for flight and navigation training.

Young men and women who qualify for electronics training will take their basic also at Lackland before assignment to specialist schools.

Girls interested in enlisting in the WAF must be high school graduates of good physical condition, high moral standards and able to pass several academic tests, Sgt. Waldrop said.

COLLECTION DAY TODAY

County Issues 29 Permits For New Buildings

Year's Construction Exceeds $4,214,000

Despite the usual seasonal slump in construction, November was still a reasonably good month in Allegany County as 29 building permits were issued for construction estimated by the builders to cost a total of $138,800.

The number of permits was two more than the corresponding month of 1957 but the total estimated cost was $82,635 below the $221,435 level of November a year ago.

For the first 11 months of 1958, the Allegany County assessing department has issued 387 building permits for construction estimated to cost a total of $4,214,734. That is 13 permits and $173,804 above the 374 permits and $4,040,930 recorded in the first 11 months of 1957.

Biggest single project in 1958 was the $2,308,254 waste treatment plant for the Tri-Towns and the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. That permit was issued in May and construction started immediately afterwards. Last year the biggest permit was issued in January for a proposed $2,000,000 shopping center along Winchester Road. That job never has been realized.

This shows that the 1958 total more nearly represents actual construction than does the 1957 figure when the one permit representing about half of the construction cost never has been utilized.

Construction authorized by the 29 November building permits approved work in 16 of the counties election districts. District 5 in the North End suburban area was the month's leader with four permits. There was a three-way tie for second place with three permits each for Districts 6, West Side suburban; 7, Cresaptown, and 29, LaVale. Four districts followed with two permits each. They were Districts 8, Westernport; 13, Mt. Savage; 16, North Branch, and 21, Gross.

Single November permits were issued for Districts 3, Flintstone; 11, Frostburg; 19, Borden Shaft; 20, Ellerslie - Corriganville; 24, Eckhart; 25, Lonaconing; 30, Zihlman; 31, McCoole.

Twelve of the 29 November permits were for construction of new dwellings. There were five others for additions to dwellings. Other permits included three for garages, one for a group of cabins, one for a storage, one for a chicken house and shed, one for an addition to a church rectory, one for a garage and workshop, one for a dwelling and storage shed, one for a foundation, another for a service station and one for a new roof.

Police Chief Gives Tips On Safe Winter Driving

Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn was reminded by yesterday's snowfall to offer a few pointers to motorists on the art of safe winter driving.

"After all, it will get worse later on and many people have the idea that accidents which occur when roads are slippery are caused entirely by the ice or snow," Chief Flynn said.

"But this is not the case at all: slippery roads do contribute to the factors which cause accidents, but most often, it's the driver's inability to cope with hazardous conditions that leads to an accident," he added.

He offered several suggestions for a successful approach to the problem of dangerous snow-ice driving conditions:

A motorist's judgment and coordination are basic qualifications for sizing up a potential danger and acting to avoid it. For example, one situation may call for slowing down and steering around it, or coming to a complete stop.

An important factor in safe winter driving is the prompt, sure response of the vehicle itself. A turn of the steering wheel should result instantly in the desired change in the direction of the vehicle's movement. A touch of the brake pedal must reduce the speed of the vehicle or bring it to a complete stop, with no related loss of control, particularly on slippery road surfaces.

Zion Youth Will Man SA Kettle

Zion Methodist Youth Fellowship from Bedford Road will provide a boost to the Salvation Army's Christmas kettle drive Saturday when members of that organization man the kettle house at Baltimore and Centre streets from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m.

Captain Daniel K. Biggs, commanding officer of the Salvation Army Citadel on North Mechanic Street, reported yesterday that $121.35 was contributed to the kettle in the first three days of its operation. Although that is an encouraging start, much more is needed to reach the goal of $5,000 to assure Christmas cheer for the less fortunate in Allegany and Mineral counties.

Registration for Christmas food orders started Monday and so far Captain Biggs reports that 65 families have registered for the orders. He requests that all desiring food orders for this special holiday register at the Citadel on or before Friday, December 12.

The Salvation Army conducts a varied Christmas cheer program each year in an effort to keep the real yuletide spirit in the season.

Last year there were 577 families with a total of 3,726 members who received Christmas food orders and baskets. Most of them lived in Allegany and Mineral counties and a few in nearby Pennsylvania and adjacent Garrett County.

Captain Biggs emphasized that the need this year is as great as a year ago because a great many individuals have been furloughed from their jobs.

Besides the Christmas orders and baskets, some 2,051 toys and dolls were distributed to deserving children last December. There were six Christmas parties for youngsters arranged by the Salvation Army and 500 treats and 300 gifts were presented there. In addition, there were 300 "sunshine" baskets distributed to persons in county institutions.

Sgt. Waldrop said men with a high school education, if they can pass a special test, or men with two years of college or the equivalent, can be assigned for special training as pilots or navigators. The Air Force is interested now, he said, in recruiting an unlimited number of such personnel.

These men will be assigned to Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas, for six weeks of basic training and then to air bases in either Texas, Florida or Georgia for flight and navigation training.

Young men and women who qualify for electronics training will take their basic also at Lackland before assignment to specialist schools.

Girls interested in enlisting in the WAF must be high school graduates of good physical condition, high moral standards and able to pass several academic tests, Sgt. Waldrop said.

During the past week four area men joined the Air Force here.

Lawrence Leo McKenzie, 133 Hill Street, Frostburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. McKenzie Sr., enlisted for four years.

Glenn Woodrow McTaggart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alvin McTaggart, RFD 1, Ridgeley; Orvin Ray Wagoner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ray Wagoner, Fort Ashby, and Elmer DeSales Donahoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas Donahoe, RFD 2, Flintstone, enlisted for four years each.

Sgt. Waldrop said recruiters will be in the office, third floor of the Post Office building, daily from 9 until 5 p. m. to interview young men and women interested in Air Force careers and enlistment.

County Issues 29 Permits For New Buildings

Year's Construction Exceeds $4,214,000

Despite the usual seasonal slump in construction, November was still a reasonably good month in Allegany County as 29 building permits were issued for construction estimated by the builders to cost a total of $138,800.

The number of permits was two more than the corresponding month of 1957 but the total estimated cost was $82,635 below the $221,435 level of November a year ago.

For the first 11 months of 1958, the Allegany County assessing department has issued 387 building permits for construction estimated to cost a total of $4,214,734. That is 13 permits and $173,804 above the 374 permits and $4,040,930 recorded in the first 11 months of 1957.

Biggest single project in 1958 was the $2,308,254 waste treatment plant for the Tri-Towns and the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. That permit was issued in May and construction started immediately afterwards. Last year the biggest permit was issued in January for a proposed $2,000,000 shopping center along Winchester Road. That job never has been realized.

This shows that the 1958 total more nearly represents actual construction than does the 1957 figure when the one permit representing about half of the construction cost never has been utilized.

Construction authorized by the 29 November building permits approved work in 16 of the counties election districts. District 5 in the North End suburban area was the month's leader with four permits. There was a three-way tie for second place with three permits each for Districts 6, West Side suburban; 7, Cresaptown, and 29, LaVale. Four districts followed with two permits each. They were Districts 8, Westernport; 13, Mt. Savage; 16, North Branch, and 21, Gross.

Single November permits were issued for Districts 3, Flintstone; 11, Frostburg; 19, Borden Shaft; 20, Ellerslie - Corriganville; 24, Eckhart; 25, Lonaconing; 30, Zihlman; 31, McCoole.

Twelve of the 29 November permits were for construction of new dwellings. There were five others for additions to dwellings. Other permits included three for garages, one for a group of cabins, one for a storage, one for a chicken house and shed, one for an addition to a church rectory, one for a garage and workshop, one for a dwelling and storage shed, one for a foundation, another for a service station and one for a new roof.

Police Chief Gives Tips On Safe Winter Driving

Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn was reminded by yesterday's snowfall to offer a few pointers to motorists on the art of safe winter driving.

"After all, it will get worse later on and many people have the idea that accidents which occur when roads are slippery are caused entirely by the ice or snow," Chief Flynn said.

"But this is not the case at all: slippery roads do contribute to the factors which cause accidents, but most often, it's the driver's inability to cope with hazardous conditions that leads to an accident," he added.

He offered several suggestions for a successful approach to the problem of dangerous snow-ice driving conditions:

A motorist's judgment and coordination are basic qualifications for sizing up a potential danger and acting to avoid it. For example, one situation may call for slowing down and steering around it, or coming to a complete stop.

An important factor in safe winter driving is the prompt, sure response of the vehicle itself. A turn of the steering wheel should result instantly in the desired change in the direction of the vehicle's movement. A touch of the brake pedal must reduce the speed of the vehicle or bring it to a complete stop, with no related loss of control, particularly on slippery road surfaces.

Zion Youth Will Man SA Kettle

Zion Methodist Youth Fellowship from Bedford Road will provide a boost to the Salvation Army's Christmas kettle drive Saturday when members of that organization man the kettle house at Baltimore and Centre streets from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m.

Captain Daniel K. Biggs, commanding officer of the Salvation Army Citadel on North Mechanic Street, reported yesterday that $121.35 was contributed to the kettle in the first three days of its operation. Although that is an encouraging start, much more is needed to reach the goal of $5,000 to assure Christmas cheer for the less fortunate in Allegany and Mineral counties.

Registration for Christmas food orders started Monday and so far Captain Biggs reports that 65 families have registered for the orders. He requests that all desiring food orders for this special holiday register at the Citadel on or before Friday, December 12.

The Salvation Army conducts a varied Christmas cheer program each year in an effort to keep the real yuletide spirit in the season.

Last year there were 577 families with a total of 3,726 members who received Christmas food orders and baskets. Most of them lived in Allegany and Mineral counties and a few in nearby Pennsylvania and adjacent Garrett County.

Captain Biggs emphasized that the need this year is as great as a year ago because a great many individuals have been furloughed from their jobs.

Besides the Christmas orders and baskets, some 2,051 toys and dolls were distributed to deserving children last December. There were six Christmas parties for youngsters arranged by the Salvation Army and 500 treats and 300 gifts were presented there. In addition, there were 300 "sunshine" baskets distributed to persons in county institutions.

Rain Forecast This Morning

A mixture of cold rain, sleet and snow which fell in the Tri-State area yesterday left highways in a generally hazardous condition.

However last night the snow on the ground had turned to slush, and rain was falling. About four inches of snow was reported in the Bedford, Pa., area, where highways were slick.

R. E. L. Putman, maintenance engineer of the State Roads Commission here, said that it was raining in the Garrett County area where temperatures were just above freezing at 10 p.m.

U.S. Route 50 east and west of Romney, and West Virginia Route 28 were wet but not slippery, police said. The temperature was about 36 degrees.
